Optimistic Report On Mental Health

By ERIK INGRAM

Despite numerous crises, Marin County's mental health department has made significant gains in treating the mentally ill since it was reorganized in 1972.

That is the conclusion of a report prepared by Dr. Robert L. Taylor, mental health program chief, who designed the controversial reorganization plan.

According to the county's chief psychiatrist, more patients are being treated in less time for less money per patient as a result of the changes.

Taylor said he did not know whether patients are receiving better services, since evaluation methods of programs and services "are still primitive in design."

The reorganization was aimed at "decentralizing" mental health services by creating four satellite centers in San Rafael, Mill Valley, Novato and Point Reyes Station, among other things.

Previously, most services were provided from the community mental health center in Greenbrae.

Another aim was to reduce patient hospitalization and put greater emphasis on out-patient services.

During fiscal 1971-72, Marin County residents used 27,688 "patient days" in state hospitals. That dropped to 16,683

Admission Day To Be Holiday For Many

It almost will require a program to remember what government offices will be open on Monday, the holiday marking California's admission to the Union.

Because Admission Day is a state holiday, federal offices will be open and the mailman will make his usual rounds.

Sonoma County offices will close, as will most of the Marin County Civic Center, including the courts. But the Marin county clerk's office will be open to issue marriage licenses and accept filings of civil suits.

Most city offices will be closed. Exceptions are those in Novato, Corte Madera, Petaluma and Cotati.

Offices of the Marin Municipal and North Marin County water districts will be closed.

The Independent-Journal will publish as usual.

Banks will be closed, but it will be business as usual for most retail stores.

All schools and school offices will be closed.

Libraries will be closed.

Parking meters will operate in all cities.

Meetings of many public agencies, scheduled for Monday, will be changed to other times. They include:

The Novato Sanitary District board will meet at 6 p.m. Wednesday at the district office.

The Corte Madera Planning Commission will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in town hall.

The Marin County Schools Personnel Commission will meet at 8 p.m. Sept. 16 in the county schools office.

Meetings which have been changed to Tuesday include: Mill Valley Planning Commission, 8 p.m., city hall; Mill Valley Parks and Recreation, 8 p.m., Mill Valley library gallery; Tiburon City Council, 7:30 p.m., city hall; Belvedere Board of Design Review, 8 p.m., city hall and Sonoma County Board of Supervisors, 10 a.m., county administration building.

DEADBEAT

The only man who is more anxious to get into debt than out of it.

CHANGES — Jimmy Quinn, 88-year-old propreitor of Quinn's Bar in Mill Valley, gazes sadly out the door of his establishment at a changing town, one that is about to pass him by. The county health department says the tavern needs about $20,000 in repairs and Quinn hasn't the money. So after 45 years in Mill Valley, Quinn's may be closing soon.

A STEP INTO THE PAST

Quinn's Bar — A Mill Valley Landmark — Nearly At An End

By REBECCA LARSEN

Jimmy Quinn's in Mill Valley is the kind of quiet, old-time neighborhood bar where patrons can drink without being hassled by rock bands or swinging singles.

Such watering spots are disappearing fast in Southern Marin and Quinn's, a 45-year landmark, maybe the next to dry up.

A nearby grocery store, the Mill Valley Market, bought his building and the one next to it a few years ago, and now would like to expand into those adjacent properties. The market has given Quinn until next April to move out.

James F. Quinn is now a white-haired wisp of 88 who can only walk — with visible pain — from one end of the bar to the other. He would like to hang on a while longer.

"Just three to five years more. That' all I want. I'm only breaking even now," he says. "I just want to seit here for myself for awhile for my own benefit. I can't make any money. These bartenders cost too much these days.

"it's hard to say what I'd do home along. I don't walk well, I'm all crippled up. I guess I'd just stand and look at the four walls."

A walk into Quinn's bar is a trip back into the 1940s or 50s. There's the traditional shiny dark wooden bar, linoleum floors, venetian blinds and neon beer signs on the windows.

The old-time look and feel is the bar's main problem, according to Mill Valley market owner James Canepa, and accounts for his expansion plans. The county health department says the bar needs about $20,000 worth of repairs to its floor and bathrooms if it's going to continue operating, Canepa reports.

"The floor is completely rotten, and the bathrooms have to be tiled," he said. "Quinn's old, and everyone feels sorry for him, but he can't pay for those repairs. The health department gave me a deadline of July of next year or they will close him down."

When asked about the problem, Quinn doesn't seem to understand what it's all about.

He's a little bit fuzzy about his 45-year history in Mill Valley, too.

He's a native of San Francisco who owned three bars in Truckee before coming to Mill Valley.

At one time he and his wife owned three bars in downtown Mill Valley — the Old Mill, the Office (now the Sweetwater) and Quinn's.

Some residents recall that Quinn's started out in 1929 as an ice cream parlor. But others say that during those prohibition days Quinn was selling bootleg liquor along with ice cream.

"That's a good question," is his onlyanswer when asked about his prohibition years.

His heyday was in the 1940s when customers poured in from the Sausalito shipyards on weekends. His liquor bill then was $90,000 a year, he says, and his receipts were $160,000 a year.

Now he's alone with only the tavern to cling to. His wife and relatives are dead. He has no children. He takes a cab every morning from his home a few blocks away to the bar.

The Old Mill and the Office have long since changed hands and become Meccas for the under-30 crowd.

Ross Residence Hit By $100,000 Blaze

Fire raced through an expensive hilltop home in Ross early this morning, killing the owner's pet dog, and causing approximately $100,000 damage.

The Huntley Bennett residence on Makin Grade was engulfed in flames shortly after 2 a.m. and virtually demolished.

Three fire trucks and 20 men from the Ross, Kentfield and San Rafael fire departments managed to control the blaze within 45 minutes and extinguish it by 4 a.m. Some firemen remained on the scene until daylight watching for flareups.

Fire officials said they did not know how the fire started.

Bennett's wife, Alice, was alone in the residence when the fire broke out. She was awakened by the family's pet dog, Lucy, and was able to flee. The dog was trapped in the house, however, and was killed.

"Everything I have is gone, including my dog," said Mrs. Bennett sadly. She was taken in by neighbors.

The first call to the fire department came about 2:15 a.m. and fire units were on the scene less than five minutes later.

The house was a "roaring inferno" when firemen arrived, according to observers. Flames leaped 40 feet in the air at the peak of the blaze, but neighboring houses and surrounding trees were not touched.

The three-story home was gutted in minutes. A grand piano plunged through the floor and landed on two cars that were in the first-level garage, firemen reported.

Mississippi Delta Gears For Hurricane

Coastal Residents Pack Up

HURRICANE'S PATH — Gales from Hurricane Carmen, rejuvenated in a week-long crossing of the Gulf of Mexico, reached land at the mouth of the Mississippi River today.

(UPI Telephoto map)

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The first gales of rejuvenated Hurricane Carmen struck today near the mouth of the Mississippi River where thousands of coastal inhabitants abandoned their homes in advance of rising tides.

The 130 mph center winds of the storm, which were rebuilt to a new fury during a week-long crossing of the Gulf of Mexico, were expected to howl ashore at sunset.

Thousands of coastal inhabitants in Louisiana and Mississippi left their homes and moved calmly inland, while more residents on the perimeter of the predicted path of the storm boarded windows and laid in supplies.

"Camille (a 1969 hurricane) is still fresh in their memory," said Mississippi Civil Defense operations officer Jim Maher. "I don't think we will have any trouble with people leaving this time."

Carmen arrived the day before the 9th anniversary of Hurricane Betsy, the worst storm to hit Louisiana, and five years after Camille, which trapped hundreds of persons who had decided to ride out that storm in their homes with "hurricane parties" and were smashed by 200 mph winds.

At 11 a.m., Navy reconnaissance located the center of the storm near latitude 27.5 north, longitude 9.04 west or about 175 miles south of New Orleans, moving northward at 12-15 mph. It packed winds of 130 mph and gusts to 160 mph.

The National Weather Service issued a hurricane warning from Morgan City, La., to Mobile, Ala., but the predicted center of the storm was at Grand Isle, La., located near the mouth of the Mississippi River south of New Orleans. The island was evacuated completely except for its Coast Guard rescue station.

"We started evacuating the lower end of the parish at four this morning," said Sheriff H.B. Schoenberger of Plaquemines Parish south of New Orleans. "We expect to evacuate perhaps in the neighborhood of 20,000 people. We're getting them out."

New Orleans police reported a chain reaction collision on Interstate 20 in the eastern part of New Orleans, reportedly involving 20 cars that were part of the huge crowd driving northward. All traffic southward and all public transportation ended at noon CDT in the city.

Carmen began as a tropical depression in the Atlantic about two weeks ago. It churned westward toward the Yucatan Peninsula on the southern edge of the Gulf of Mexico and struck land there first, killing four persons. Three drowned in Jamaica and a fisherman was swept to his death in Belize. It caused an estimated $10 million damage during that swing.

The winds dropped substantially as it crossed the land, but then the big storm entered open water again and slowly regained its killer force. It took a week to cross the Gulf of Mexico, and was slowly gaining size

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Peking Sets Diplomatic Rules

TOKYO (UPI) — Chinese leaders have told U.S. Sen. William Fulbright in Peking the United States must withdraw its ambassador from Taipei if Washington wants to establish full diplomatic relations with Peking.

Fulbright

The Kyodo news agency in a dispatch from the Chinese capital yesterday said the Arkansas Democrat, now visiting China with nine other U.S. legislators, disclosed the Chinese demand at a reception given by David Bruce, outgoing chief of the U.S. liaison office in Peking.

Kyodo said Fulbright told the newsmen "that the Taiwan issue was raised during a meeting with Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping and Vice Foreign Minister Chiao Kuang-hua and the Chinese position was to wait patiently until a solution is reached."

"But the Chinese side said it is the United States which should work for the solution of the Taiwan problem. . . and in order to establish full U.S.-Sino diplomatic relations the U.S. side would have to withdraw its ambassador from Taipei," Kyodo quoted Fulbright as saying.

Hunt For Gunmen

BELFAST (UPI) — Police made house-to-house checks in the Belfast suburb of Rathcoole today in a hunt for three suspected Protestant gunmen who killed a police inspector trying to stop their getaway from a bank robbery.

Yesterday's killing was the 1,067th in five years of violence among Northern Ireland's majority Protestants, minority Roman Catholics and security forces.

Police said they were working on the theory the holdup of the Ulster Bank branch in Rathcoole was carried out by Protestant extremists seeking funds to finance their underground organization.

The bank, in a Protestant northern suburb, has been a target of similar fund-raising holdups in the past, police said.

Will Not Abdicate

NEW DELHI (UPI) — The King of Sikkim said today he will not abdicate his throne despite New Delhi's move to reduce his tiny mountaintop Himalayan kingdom to an associate state of India.

"I have no intention of abdicating," King Pylthondup Nvamgyal told UPI in a telephone interview. "As long as I have a contribution to make to my people I will continue functioning."

The king's wife is former New York debutante Hope Cooke, who left Sikkim a year ago and has not returned.

Oil Talks Set

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu has ordered talks with Cambodia over disputed oil drilling in the Gulf of Thailand but he is keeping his navy on full alert, diplomatic and government sources said today.

Thieu met with military commanders yesterday to plan for naval and air action if his demand for the removal of a drilling rig is not met, sources said. However, other sources maintained that U.S. pressure has persuaded the South Vietnamese and Cambodians to settle the quarrel by diplomatic rather than military means.

Thieu also asked foreign minister Vuong Van Bac to continue his negotiations with Cambodia to resolve who owns the right to drill for oil near Poulo Wai Island in the Gulf, sources said.

Daughter Hopeful

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (UPI) — The wife of Mexican President Luis Echeverria said today she is hopeful guerrillas have not murdered her aged father.

"If my father manages to hear this, I want to tell him that we are all well and my mother is well," she said.

Her statement came only hours after leftist guerrillas released some poor quality snapshots and a tape recording of her father, Jose Guadalupe Zuno Hernandez, who was kidnaped 11 days ago.

Echeverria has remained firm in his policy of "no deals" with terrorists and has refused to pay a $1.6 million ransom and free 10 political prisoners for the life of his ailing 83-year-old father-in-law.

A Bitter Protest

SEOUL (UPI) — Thousands of South Koreans hurled rocks and bottles at helmeted police outside the Japanese embassy today in a bitter protest against the attempted assassination of President Park Chung-hee.

Angry demonstrators hurled a flaming gasoline bomb into police ranks and officers fired tear gas into the mob.

At least 32 policemen were injured, authorities said. The number of South Koreans injured was not known.

Historic Pact

LUSAKA (UPI) — Portugal and the guerrilla leaders of Mozambique were to sign an independence agreement for the West African territory today, ending five centuries of colonial rule, political sources said.

Sources close to the talks held in Zambia's capital between Portuguese Foreign Minister Mario Soares and a Mozambique Liberation Front (Frelimo) delegation led by the movement's president Samora Machel said an agreement was reached yesterday.

Rockefeller Expected To Play A Major Role In Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nelson A. Rockefeller apparently will play a major foreign policy role in the Ford administration if he is confirmed by Congress as vice president.

Rockefeller met for more than an hour yesterday with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Soviet Ambassador Anatoliy Dobrynin. Following that session he conferred with Ford at the White House and a spokesman said the meeting was on foreign policy.

Rockefeller would not comment on what transpired at the meetings when he talked with reporters.

"I'm just a private citizen and it would not be appropriate for me to comment," Rockefeller said.

A White House spokesman said Rockefeller would be having a number of foreign policy briefings and might sit in on National Security Council meetings even before Congress acts on his nomination.

Rockefeller also declined to answer most foreign policy questions posed by reporters, saying any statement before his confirmation hearings in Congress would be "inappropriate." But, asked if he had any reservations about the administration's policy of detente with the Soviet Union, Rockefeller replied with a firm: "No, sir."

Asked if the State Department luncheon with Dobrynin signaled that he would play a major foreign policy role, Rockefeller said: "No, but I would assume these foreign countries would wonder what type of prospect I am. I've never met the ambassador before."

The meeting with Dobrynin was Rockefeller's fourth visit to the State Department in his past two trips to Washington. Earlier in the day he had breakfast there with Kissinger, and on one of his previous trip he met with the Syrian Foreign Minister.

Turkish Troops Reported In New Cyprus Offensive

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Turkish troops, under the cover of heavy rifle fire, have pushed westward again along the Cyprus coast, a Greek Cypriot government spokesman said today.

He said at least two Greek Cyptiot national guardsmen were wounded in a bitter exchange of gunfire with the advancing Turks late last night. He did not specify how far the Turks advanced.

The Greek Cypriot statement came only hours after Turkey was reported ready to accept a proposal by the United States and Britain calling for the pullout of a substantial number of Turkish troops on the embattled Mediterranean island.

Greece has repeatedly refused to attend any peace talks until Turkey gives up the territory it overran when it pushed out from its north coast beachhead and overran about a third of the island in a mid-August blitz.

Earlier, Turkish and Greek Cypriot officials in Nicosia said they were compiling lists of prisoners as a first step toward carrying out an agreement for an exchange of captives.

The Greek Cyptiot spokesman said the clash last night occurred west of Limnitis. Turkish forces had advanced along the Morphou Bay coastline, he said but did not exactly pinpoint the area.

The spokesman did not say how far the Turks moved from the village of Galini, about 30 miles west of Nicosia which they overran Wednesday.

Greek Cypriot guardsmen are dug in near the village of Kato Pyrgos, forming a barrier between the forward Turkish positions and the Turkish Cypriot coastal village of Kokkina further west.

First Lady Charms Her Southern Hosts

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Mrs. Betty Ford, taking her first solo trip since her husband became President, was honored last night as one of America's "legendary women." She kicked off a weekend of fund-raising for Birmingham's St. Vincent's Hospital.

Mrs. Ford, wearing a floor-length green print gown, attended a reception and dinner party at the Birmingham Museum of Art, the first in a series of events hospital officials hope will provide $100,000 for badly needed special medical equipment. The weekend of activity is called "Gala II," and last year's event netted the hospital $75,000.

Mrs. Ford was invited to tour the hospital facilities today and to a luncheon and fashion show in honor of the 11 "legendary women" selected to receive the special awards. The weekend will culminate at a gala ball at the Birmingham Civic Center, where the awards will be presented and Mrs. Ford will make a brief speech.

The Southern audience was clearly enchanted with the First Lady, although many privately differed with her outspoken stand on the Equal Rights Amendment for women and her husband's proposal for amnesty for Vietnam war resisters.

After dinner, Mrs. Ford and her escort, Birmingham department store magnate Emil Hess, took to the dance floor, where she swirled gracefully with a number of partners.

Before beginning dancing, Hess confided he was a little scared and thanked his mother for giving him dancing lessons as a child. The lessons apparently worked, however, and he said he had found Mrs. Ford to be "excellent ... very easy-going."

Asked whether Alabama dancers met Washington standards, Mrs. Ford smiled and replied, "Oh yes, of course." The Firsy Lady, once a professional dancer and fashion consultant, said she found Birmingham citizens to be "warm and hospitable."

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Ford talked to reporters on the Presidential plane and said she may campaign for the ERA if her schedule permits. Five more states must ratify the amendment before it becomes law.

"I certainly am for it in every sense of the word, and my husband knows that very well because his ribs are so sore," she said in reference to kidding she had given the President on the women's rights issue.

Mrs. Ford said her husband was "too busy" with other things to give her any advice for the Southern trip, but she left a note on his pillow before departing. When asked what the note said, Mrs. Ford just laughed and said, "I refuse to answer that."

Arms Deal Conference Under Way

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The defense ministers of Belgium, Holland and Norway flew to Paris to meet with their French counterpart today, starting a hard-sell week in the French-American fight to win "the arms deal of the century."

The three nations and Denmark plan to buy 350 lightweight jet fighter planes over the next year to replace the aging U.S. F104 Starfighters in their air forces. The deal will be worth an initial $2 billion at least.

French Defense Minister Jacques Soufflet planned to brief his visitors on the merits of the French Dassault-Breguet Mirage F1 M53.

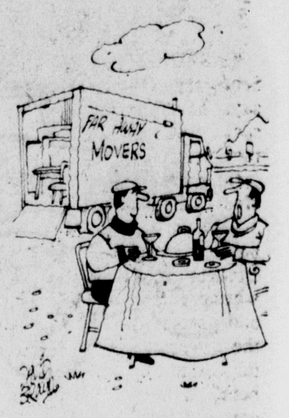

On Wednesday all four ministers plus the Danish defense minister will be in Washington to hear U.S. Defense Secretary James Schlesinger praise, two American planes —the Northrop YF17 Cobra and the General Dynamics YF16.

All four nations belong to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and have agreed to NATO urging that they all buy the same plane.

Monetary Talks

PARIS (UPI) — The finance ministers of the Western bloc's five major economic powers opened a two-day meeting at a secret location somewhere around Paris today to discuss the chaotic world monetary situation.

Welfare Spending Cuts Being Eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — HEW Secretary Caspar Weinberger says he is preparing a list of social welfare spending cuts to reduce inflation.

He mentioned Medicare and Medicaid as possible targets.

"No portion of the (federal) budget should be free from careful examination as to where reductions can safely and properly be made, because the government, by increasing its spending, is perceived as being a major factor in the cause of inflation," Weinberger said in an interview yesterday.

President Ford wants to reduce government spending to under $300 billion to help curb inflation. Some liberals fear an inordinate share of the cuts would come from Health, Education and Welfare programs.

Weinberger said that perhaps the climate is better in Congress for approval of some cost-cutting measures previously rejected by the lawmakers.

"We have had several proposals over the years to try to reduce the costs of Medicare and Medicaid that were not approved by Congress," he said.

"There may be more impetus now in the Congress, more willingness to accept a number of things proposed before if they feel there is a greater urgency. And I think they would have to feel there is a greater urgency."

The Nixon administration unsuccessfully tried to increase the share which elderly Medicare patients pay toward their hospital and doctor bills. Under Medicaid, proposals were made to discontinue federal contributions toward the costs of dental c for needy adults and to provide incentives to the states to contract with cost-saving group practice organizations for the treatment of Medicaid patients.

Weinberger criticized "a lot of loose thinking ... that if you touch anything in the HEW budget, you are harming the poor. That is not necessarily true at all."

If cuts were proposed for the $113 billion HEW budget, which includes social security funds, virtually all would have to get conrongressional approval, Weinberger said. He indicated some programs savings could be achieved administratively.

He cautioned, however, that no one sector of the government budget, neither welfare nor defense, should have to absorb all the spending cuts.

Accident Victim

Robert Englund, 22, of 13 Angela Avenue, San Anselmo, was reported in satisfactory condition at Marin General Hospital today after suffering internal injuries in an automobile accident early this morning. Details were not available by press time.

Baptists Give Support To Ford

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The National Baptist Convention has passed a resolution congratulating President Ford on his elevation to office, but has warned that "sinister forces still exist that threaten the nation."

In a resolution passed yesterday by the 94th annual convention, delegates commended Ford for his acceptance speech and his "determination to continue the struggle for the fulfillment of all American citizens and for the peace of the world."

The resolution said delegates "regret the unfortunate chain of circumstances that occasioned many brilliant Americans to be caught in the foul circumstances of disobedience to the rules of the nation ..." which led to the resignation of President Nixon.

An Attack Is Reported By Woman

A 33-year-old San Francisco woman was dragged behind an apartment robbed and forced to commit unnatural sex acts early this morning in Marin City.

The woman suffered facial bruises and was treated at Marin General Hospital. Her purse containing $120 was taken.

She told sheriff's deputies in the Marin City substation that she was attacked after accepting a ride to the bus stop about 1:30 a.m.

She said she was trying to find her way back to San Francisco after having an argument with some friends with whom she had come to Marin City. She was lost and walking at Cole and Drake avenues when the ride was offered.

She described her assailant as a clean-shaven black man in his late 20s, 5-feet-10, 170 pounds with short hair, wearing a dark blue sweatsuit.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., favors normalization of diplomatic relations with Cuba and says one good advantage would be lower prices on sugar.

Harry Belafonte Home Is Robbed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Harry Belafonte reported that his apartment was burglarized while he was out of town this week and between $30,000 and last worth of his wife's jewelry was taken, police said yesterday.

Officers said the singer told them he and his wife, Julie, had been away since Monday. The Belafontes said they discovered the jewelry had been taken from a bedroom dresser when they returned around midnight Thursday night.

Belafonte said the stolen jewelry consisted mainly of "ladies' rings," and was worth between $30,000 and $50,000.

Spotted Fever

Mormons Giving Up Hospital Operation

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (UPI) — The Mormon Church says it is turning over its 15 hospitals in three states to a non-profit corporation not controlled by the church.

The hospitals in Utah, Idaho and Wyoming have a total of 2,092 beds and are valued at $61 million.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints estimated replacement value of the facilities at more than $107 million.

The announcement yesterday said the new corporation will assume all credit indebtedness to the church, about $28 million.

"The growing worldwide responsibility of the church makes it difficult to justify provision of curative services in a single, affluent, geographical locality," the church said in announcing the decision.

The church's First Presidency said the move is not indicative of loss of interest or concern for the sick and afflicted.

"To the contrary, it provides greater flexibility as the church assists members and others everywhere with their temporal needs."

The church said emphasis on disease prevention elsewhere in the world will "require a substantial increase in the number of health service missionaries."

The facilities included the Idaho Falls Hospital, LDS Hospital, Cottonwood Hospital and Primary Children's Medical Center, all in Salt Lake City; McKay-Dee Hospital Center in Ogden; Logan Hospital; Utah Valley Hospital in Provo; San Pete Hospital in Mount Pleasant; and the 14-bed Fillmore Hospital, all in Utah.

They also include Bear River Valley Hospital in Tremeonton, Utah; Cassia Memorial Hospital in Burley, Ida., and Fremont General Hospital in St. Anthony, Ida., which are currently operated by the church on lease from a city or county, and Star Valley Hospital in Afton, Wyo.

Israeli Sees Mideast Peace Hopes As Dim

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres expressed pessimism today about prospects for Middle East peace, saying Egypt does not want a total settlement and Syria is planning for war. But he said Israel and Jordan could reach agreement.

"The ones planning the war are, in my opinion, the Syrians," Peres said. "The terrorist organizations are dreaming of war. Less enthusiastic about it all are the Egyptians."

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, in an interview with a Beirut newspaper, said he did not rule out the possibility of a fifth Arab-Israeli war, but said this depended on international conditions. He said Israel wants to enter peace talks from a position of strength.

The Israeli defense minister made his remarks in interviews for the Jewish New Year, which begins at sundown Sept. 16, with the armed forces radio and its magazine Bemahane. His central theme dwelled on the outlook for peace in the coming year and Israel's ability to fight a fifth war.

The Syrians, he said, are not only demanding the entire Golan Heights captured in the 1967 war "but also a 'just solution to the Palestinian problem,' and that 'just solution' is the partial or complete obliteration of the state of Israel."

He envisaged a peace agreement with Jordan, compromise with Egypt and "a determined stand" with Syria.

"If I am to formulate an opinion about the future I would say that from the standpoint of dangers ahead I am quite pessimistic," the defense minister said. "From the standpoint of our ability to withstand them, though, I am quite optimistic.

"We must build up a force able to cope — in composition, scope and armament — with future challenges. And that is what we are doing."

He outlined the current situation:

"Since Egypt does not want a definite peace, we must meet her halfway and compromise on peace as well as on territory. As for Syria, as long as she remains unable to pronounce the word 'peace' without severe stomach cramps, we must remain on the alert on that front.

"Here, we must stand fast and fortified, prepared and determined, and not mince words."

In an interview with Ghassan Tueni, editor of Beirut's An Nahar newspaper, Sadat did not rule out the possibility of another Mideast war.

"The world is full of developments, Sadat says, and there could be a condition where the Israelis will find it useful to enter into another war against the Arabs," Tueni wrote.

Sadat also indicated an improvement in Soviet-Egyptian relations, he said. The Egyptian leader indicated the Soviets were now responding to Egyptian demands, according to the newspaper, but he did not elaborate on the demands.

REPORT

during fiscal 1973-74 — a 39 per cent decrease, Taylor said.

On the other hand, he said, the number of patients being treated by his department has grown markedly in two years, with an 85 per cent increase in admissions.

Outpatient services were provided for 2,186 persons during fiscal 1972-73 and for 3,009 in fiscal 1973-74, he said. Individual therapy sessions have decreased while group and family sessions have increased.

A random sampling of cases indicated the number of sessions per patient has decreased from 39 in 1972 to 24 in 1974, Taylor added.

Outpatient services cost $1,307,575 in fiscal 1972-73 and that dropped to $954,953 in fiscal 1973-74. That averages out to a drop in per patient cost from $598 to a new figure of $317, Taylor said.

The report also shows the alcohol treatment unit as seeing more people at less cost per patient.

Taylor conceded during an interview that the report lacks any information on the effectiveness of his mental health program.

"Evaluation in this field is a very difficult thing... and a topic of debate everywhere. Just how do you decide if it's a good or bad sign when a patient divorces his wife?" the mental health chief asked.

While Taylor said he is pleased with the progress, he admitted many problems still exist.

He said coordination with other departments needs to be improved, among other things.

And he also said that "high turnover in personnel in the crisis unit creates continuing instability, and our failure to establish necessary leadership positions in that unit has reached a critical point."

The report, he said, was drafted in response to criticisms that mental health services are too costly and not reaching enough people.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere voiced such criticism during budget hearing in June.

15 Killed In Bombing Of Village

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Iraqi jet fighters bombed the village of Kohneh-Lahijan on the Irano-Iraqi border yesterday, killing 15 persons, nine of them children, the Iran government said.

The government news agency Pars said Iraqi planes dropped four bombs on the tiny Iranian village and destroyed six homes.

The two countries have fought a bitter border dispute over navigation rights on the Shatt Al Arab At the United Nations in New York yesterday, Ambassador Freydoun Hoveyda of Iran sent a strong protest to the Security Council.

The complaint referred to two previous complaints about border incidents caused by Iraq.

These incidents, Hoveyda said, had taken place "in spite of the bilateral accords agreed upon between our two countries and this, at the very time when negotiations were being undertaken between Iranian and Iraqi delegations at Istanbul."

Hoveyda said "we protest emphatically the bloody act of aggression" by the Iraqi government and callled for the international ccommunity to "condem it unequivocally.

The attacks, he said were "not only profoundly inhumane but also constitute grave violations against our territory. Their continuation cannot but lead to a situation inmensely dangerous where the Iraqis will have to assume the entire responsibility for the consequences of their actions."

are circulating a petition on his behalf: "Jimmy and his bar have become a Mill Valley tradition, if not a legend. It is our respect for this tradition and our love for this legendary character which prompts our urging that his tenancy be continued, perhaps on a month-to-month basis for yet a while longer."

But unless some dramatic events take place between now and spring, next St. Patrick's Day will be the last on which James F. Quinn will hold his traditional free corned beef and cabbage spread at his bar.

After that the doors will close and a little bit of Mill Valley will become history.

33-Year-Old Shoots Himself

A 33-year-old Corte Madera man shot himself in the abdomen with a .32-caliber pistol this morning, according to police.

John F. Fleming of 978 Meadowsweet Drive was taken to Marin General Hospital where a spokesman refused to reveal his condition.

Sheriff's deputies said they were told Fleming was depressed over breaking up with his girlfriend.

The girl, her employer and Fleming were talking at 6:45 a.m. when Fleming got up, went into the bedroom and shot himself, officers reported.

Woman Found Dead At Home

A 24-year-old San Rafael woman died yesterday, apparently from a self-inflicted gunshot wound, according to police.

Linda Ann Ashoff, of 107 California Street, was found dead in the family room of her home shortly after 4 p.m. Her boyfriend made the discovery when he returned from work.

Officers said she died from a single gunshot wound in the head. A .22 calibre revolver was found beside her.

San Francisco Tax Rate Set

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Board of Supervisors has set San Francisco's 1974-75 tax rate at $2.95, 70 cents over the current rate.

City Controller Nathan Cooper had insisted the hike is needed to meet the city's budgetary needs, but Mayor Joseph Alioto has said he will veto any tax rise.

Petaluma Cyclist Hurt In Accident

Douglas E. Ray, 21, of Petaluma, was listed in satisfactory condition today at Hillcrest Hospital following a motorcycle accident Thursday.

Police said Ray's motorcycle was struck in Cotati by a car driven by Leslie J. Frierman, 19, of Cotati. Frierman was cited for a right-of-way violation, according to officers.

OBITUARIES

MRS. MINOLI

Mass of Christian Burial for Caterina Minoli of Kentfield, a 37-year resident of Marin, will be at 11 a.m. Monday at Holy Angels Church in San Francisco.

Mrs. Minoli died Wednesday at a local convalescent hospital after a long illness. She was 90.

A native of Bedonia, Provincia de Parma, Italy, Mrs. Minoli came to San Francisco in 1907 to meet her husband, the late Giovanni Minoli, who had immigrated to the city a year earlier. He was a garbageman. The family moved to Marin in 1937.

Mrs. Minoli was a member of St. Sebastian's Catholic Church in Greenbrae.

Surviving are four daughters, Angelina Raggi of Kentfield, Mary Scardigli, Meda Pisa and Sylvia Flores, all of San Francisco, and two sisters, Domenica Ventelli of Stockton and Emilia Berni of San Francisco. She also leaves nine grandchildren and 16 great grandchildren.

Rosary will be at 8 p.m. Sunday at Duggan's Serra Mortuary in Daly City. Friends may call after 4 p.m. Saturday.

GEORGE ROGERS

A Mass of Christian Burial for George F. Rogers, Nicasio dairy rancher, will be offered at 10 a.m. Monday at Our Lady of Loretto Catholic Church in Novato.

Rogers died Thursday in a Petaluma hospital after a long illness. He was 83.

He was born and reared in Novato and moved to Nicasio when he was 20. He was a rancher for more than 50 years.

Rogers and his wife, Marie, bought their present 871-acre ranch on the Old Ranchero Road in 1947. They retired a year ago.

Rogers was a member of the United and Ancient Order of Druids, the Marin Farm Bureau and the Nicasio Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by three daughters, Ann Lafranchi of Livermore, Peggy Yetter of Meridian, Miss., and Jeanne Swift of Greenbrae; two brothers, Raymond Rogers of Petaluma and Clarence Rogers of Olema; five sisters, Elizabeth Dolcini of Petaluma, Veronica Ludy of San Mateo, Loretta Bettinelli of Petaluma, Eleanor Cheda of Point Reyes Station and Barbara Rogers of Napa and four grandchildren.

Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Keaton's Chapel of Marin, Novato. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

MRS. SITEK

Private funeral for Marjorie Stillwell Sitek of Tiburon was held today.

She died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness. She was 69.

Mrs. Sitek was born in Philadelphia, Pa. and grew up there. She met her husband, Francis J. Sitek, and married him there.

They had lived in Tiburon for the past 10 years.

Mrs. Sitek raised minature Schnauzers and belonged to the Miniature Schnauzer Association of California.

She is survived by her husband, manager of the office building department for Standard Oil of California and a sister, Alberta Stillwell Marty of Coronado, San Diego County.

Inurnment will be private.

Memorial contributions to a favorite charity would be preferred by the family.

TRAVIS STENSON

Graveside service for Travis Jeffrey Stenson, a 2-year-old Lucas Valley boy who drowned Aug. 31 in the McKenzie River near Eugene, Ore., will be at 10:30 a.m. Monday at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery in San Rafael.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Stenson. He also leaves a brother, Erik David Stenson.

The family requests memorial contributions to Deputy Sheriff Jere L. LaBonte for Lane County Search and Rescue, and Explorer Post 178, Room 020, 125 East Eighth Street, Eugene, Ore., 97401.

LINDA ASHOFF

Private funeral was held today for Linda Ann Ashoff of San Rafael, a native of Marin County.

Miss Ashoff died yesterday. She was 24.

A graduate of Redwood High School, she attended College of Marin and was employed as a pharmacy technician at Ross Hospital at the time of her death.

Surviving are her parents, George and Katherine Ashoff of Kentfield, and a brother, Frederick C. Ashoff of Zephyr Cove, Nev.

Classroom Aide Course Is Set

A course to train classroom aides will begin on Tuesday at La Tercera Elementary School in Petaluma.

Sponsored by the Old Adobe Union School District and the Petaluma Adult Education Authority, the course will meet from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. each Tuesday through Dec. 17.

Purpose of the classes is to train parents from the Petaluma area who may want to become classroom aides. The course is also open to those who are already paid or volunteer aides, a spokesman said.

Persons living outside the district will be required to pay a $2.50 fee, while district residents may attend free of charge.

Development Plans Due Study

The Novato Planning Commission will review precise development plans for commercial development on 24.5 acres of the Hanna Ranch at 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House.

The parcel, south of Novato Creek, is planned as the site of a K-Mart store, a restaurant and a service station.

The commission also will review a master plan for a neighborhood shopping center at the northeast corner of South Novato and Redwood boulevards.

Swedish Language Classes Scheduled

Classes in Swedish language and culture for children of Swedish descent will begin Sept. 18 at Redwood High School.

The weekly classes are for students aged 7-15. More information can be obtained from Ulla Sabelstrom, 10 Key Largo Cove, Corte Madera.

CUDDLY PET? — Nine-year-old Andrew Poutiatine of Mill Valley proudly displays his baby pet boa constrictor, but the youth might not have the snake for long. The Poutiatine family is trying to sell the snake before it reaches its mature length of 15 feet.

Friendly Boa Needs New Home

By REBECCA LARSEN

"South American Boa — Friendly, contented female. Eats well. $40 offer."

It's not easy selling a boa. Once one worms its way into your family, it's hard to pry it loose again.

The family of Mill Valley councilman Ivan S. Poutiatine has been trying to get rid of theirs for a few months now.

It's not that they don't like the snake, said Andrew, 9, the boa's owner. "But cleaning the mice and rat cages is a real hassle."

The main problem with boas is that they like their food live and wiggling. Since mice go for $1 a head, the Poutiatines have cut their costs by raising and breeding their own.

"That means feeding mice and cleaning cages and making sure your mothers and fathers are breeding properly," said Lochiel Poutiatine, Andrew's mother.

You have to try not to get too attached to the mice, said the Poutiatines.

As the boa constrictor has grown, her appetite had too, and it now would take nine or 10 mice a week to satisfy her. So recently she graduated to rats — three a week.

"I'm getting worried 'cause maybe she'll have to start eating chickens or cats," said Andrew, his eyes growing a little rounder and wider. "You probably could train 'em to eat ground meat, but it would take 'em a long time to learn."

Andrew got the snake at a pet store on his eighth birthday with money from his grandmother.

Since then the snake, known only as "the boa," has thrived and grown from 18 inches to four and a half feet. It could eventually get as long as 15 feet.

When it was little, the boa used to scoot around the house and climb the living room plants. But then it started to break off branches. So now it stays mainly in the glass cage that Ivan Poutiatine built for it.

In spite of the problems, the family, including Mrs. Poutiatine and Andrew's brothers, Michael, 11, and Peter, 5, have enjoyed their pet. Mrs. Poutiatine was reared with a brother who loved snakes.

That's why they want to sell the boa instead of giving it away. "If somebody has to buy an animal, I think they will take better care of it," said Mrs. Poutiatine.

Andrew also would like to recoup some of his investment in mice and rats.

The only really live bite on their ad so far was a young woman, Lisa, who came to the home, refused to give her full name or address and asked to buy the snake on an installment plan.

"She mader her second payment of $5 about five weeks ago and then disappeared," said Mrs. Poutiatine. "She really seemed crazy about the snake so I've been wondering what happened to her. I'd also like her to know she can have her money back."

Another inquiry was from a man with three boas already. He hoped to get the Poutiatines' free if they couldn't sell it. Another man had had a boa himself as a child and now wanted one for his daughter.

"But he got discouraged when he found out the prices of aquariums," said Mrs. Poutiatine.

The boa probably won't be the last reptile in the life of the Poutiatines, she said. The boys have had more common snakes before and an iguana, who favoared frozen mixed vegetables.

"I'm not giving the cage away with the boa because I know there's probably another snake down the road for us," she said.

In the meantime, the boa sits coiled in a plump spiral in her sandy cage with what seems to be a semismile on her lips as she sleeps obliviously through the crisis in her life.

Unfortunately or perhaps fortunately, she could not demonstrate to the reporter her speed at striking and overpowering rats because she had been fed the night before.

Anaconda Will Develope Underground Copper Mine

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The anaconda Co. announced yesterday it will develop a $135 million underground copper mine in the Oquirrh Mountains east of Tooele, Utah.

Anaconda president John B.M. Place said the new Carr Fork Mine would produce 56,000 tons of copper annually beginning in 1979.

He said the mine would employ 800 people with an annual payroll in excess of $15 million.

The project will also include a 10,000 ton per day concentrator located in Pine Canyon on the west side of the Oquirrh range directly east of Tooele.

Copper will be mined from ore bodies 2,000 to 5,000 feet below the surface, Place told a news conference in the office of Utah Gov. Calvin L. Rampton. The main shaft will be located about two miles west of Kennecott Copper's Bingham open pit mine, but the Carr Fork property extends right to the edge of the pit.

The Anaconda president also said the copper concentrates will be shipped to Anaconda, Mont., for smelting, although he did not rule out the possbility of constructing a smelter in Utah at some future time.

"We expect to be here for a long time mining," Place said, adding that the mine had a life expectancy of 20 to 30 years and probably more.

To Fight Fire, Remove Beans

YUMA, Ariz. (AP) — The Yuma Fire Department has come up with a new way to extinguish fires.

Firemen received two calls that a man, James Mergin, was trapped in a burning apartment.

Three fire engines were sent to the scene. When firemen arrived they found Mergin had fallen asleep and a pot of beans he was cooking had burned.

Cranston Calls For Swift Action To Check Growing U.S. Inflation

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston, saying Americans "cannot afford to lose three months," yesterday called on the Ford administration to present its anti-inflationary program to Congress immediately.

Speaking at a statewide convention of the United Transportation Union here, Cranston called for swift and decisive government action to "bring inflation under control and ease the threat of further recession."

Senate Democrats Thursday unanimously endorsed a proposal that Congress remain in session to complete action on President Ford's economic proposals.

The suggestion of lameduck Congressional action drew criticism of "breastbeating" today from Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania. The Ford administration has indicated it would rather wait until January of 1975 before presenting its proposals.

"The American people cannot afford to lose three months during which measures could be enacted and put into effect to ease the growing burden of price increases and head off further recession," the senator said.

Cranston said there would be no "simplistic, single answer" solutions to the economic troubles plaguing the nation. He accused those who suggest massive budget cuts as the only answer of "talking economic nonsense."

Instead, Cranston called for reduced government spending and a balanced budget coupled with relaxation of the federal government's "tight" money policy and a possible tax cut for low and middle-income families.

"Whatever is done should be a cooperative effort of the administration, the Congress, business, labor and consumers," he said.

Cranston is scheduled to take part in the President's summit conference on inflation later this month.

Pasta Shortage Looms In Italy

ROME (UPI) — Italy's pasta price war threatened yesterday to produce a countrywide spagheti shortage.

Industry Minister Ciriaco Demita ruled yesterday that pasta makers could have a price hike but he allowed them only half their demand, authorizing a 23 per cent increase.

The spokesman said the increase from 53 to 65 cents for 2.2 pounds was not enough. The producers had demanded a 76-cent price hike.

The shelves of most stores throughout Italy already are virtually bare of pasta, bought up by hoarders with the first report of a possible price rise.

Great homes on the water in Mill Valley? Sounds fishy.

Is this another fish story?

We don't expect you to go for our story hook, line and sinker... until you've seen Shelter Bay. But here's our story anyhow.

You can now buy an exceptional condominium home, in Mill Valley, on the edge of Richardson Bay, at a price from $41,000 to over $70,000.

A genuine "bay window."

Water water everywhere. That's your view from the large picture windows that look out over Richardson Bay. Quite a sight from sunrise to sunset.

The view is just as fine inside Shelter Bay's homes.

The rooms are roomy. (The living rooms measure up to 15x24 feet.) Separate dining areas. Oodles of closet space. And master bedrooms large enough that you don't block your path every time you pull out a drawer.

The kitchens, with their stainless steel ranges, are designed to make cooking as easy as pie. While throughout the house, plush carpet stretches from wall to wall.

And to make your home sweet home even sweeter, there's a fireplace in every living room.

And outside, are spacious decks, patios and rooftop gardens to get you out into the sun.

Our neighborhood's all wet.

Between the bay, the cove and the swimming pool, ours is a pretty splashy area.

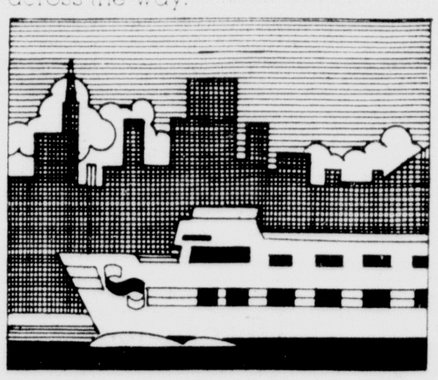

But there's more to our neighborhood than water. Tennis, for instance. On Shelter Bay's own court.

Or exploring. Along the edges of Richardson Bay. Up the green heights of Mt. Tamalpais. Or in the quaint, colorful shops of Sausalito, Tiburon and Mill Valley.

Of course there's sunning. On your own private deck. And since we're in Mill Valley's "banana belt"—there are plenty of warm, sunny days.

There's biking. Hiking. Fishing.

And for Shopping with a Capital "S" there's the Strawberry Town and Country Village just across the way.

Smooth sailing to the City.

If you work in San Francisco, your commute will be a breeze. It's just over five freeway miles from Shelter Bay to the Golden Gate Bridge. So even in the thick of the rush hour you won't have far to go. And the view along the way is worth slowing down for.

If you prefer to leave the driving to them, take the bus. Golden Gate Transit makes scheduled stops just outside our front door.

Another smooth sail—the Sausalito Ferry. A wonderful way to go to and from work.

Homes purchased since opening August 24th!

Buying a home at Shelter Bay—what's in it for you?

Say you're a renter. And you're tired of watching your rent go up and your rent checks go down the drain.

Or perhaps you're maintaining a house and yard larger than you need.

Owning a Shelter Bay condominium makes sense in more ways than one.

One. You own your own home with all its Marin County potential for appreciation.

Two. Every monthly mortgage payment builds up your equity in your home.

Three. The interest payments on your home loan can be a tax deduction for you.

Four. No landlord is going to raise your rent.

Five. The heated swimming pool.

Six. The tennis court.

Seven. The poolside clubhouse.

And since Shelter Bay has had time to mature, the lawns have grown lush, the landscaping is full and green, and the trees are tall enough to cast a stately shadow. And someone else takes care of all the maintenance—while you can go off to Timbuktu without a care in the world.

The end.

So that's our story.

And if it still sounds fishy, you can always check it out for yourself. By driving five miles north from the Golden Gate Bridge on Highway 101, take the Seminary Road exit, follow the frontage road to the right under the freeway and feast your eyes. (On our furnished model homes, among other things.)

And if you have any questions, step into the Sales Information Center between the bay and the tennis court.

We'd be happy to expand on our story, it's bound to have a happy ending.

FORD INSPECTS LIBERTY BELL

An Independence National Park official points out the crack in the Liberty Bell to President Ford upon the chief executive's visit to Philadelphia. Ford was in Philadelphia last night to address the final dinner of the "Reconvening of the First Continental Congress," a two-day event held to commemorate the first meeting of the Continental Congress in 1774.

Hub 'Crisis Center' Is Protested

Thirty-seven residents of San Anselmo's Grove Lane have signed a petition protesting a plan to locate a "crisis center" for youthful narcotics addicts in their neighborhood, but they have no place to take the document.

The center is to be established by Youth Advocates, Inc., operators of Huckleberry House in San Francisco. It will provide temporary housing for up to six young drug addicts at a time, until they can be placed elsewhere under some form of longterm treatment.

Youth Advocates already has received a three-year grant for the operation from the National Institute of Mental Health, and is in process of purchasing a two-story, four-bedroom home at 9 Grove Lane from Lloyd and Stanley Good through Lash Realty of Fairfax.

All this is frustrating to the 37 Grove Lane residents, according to their spokesman, B. K. Probert of 24 Grove Lane.

"We don't want this in our neighborhood, but there seems to be no place to go to do anything about it," Probert said today.

He said he tried the San Anselmo City Hall, but was informed that housing six people in a single-family residence needs no permit. And he learned that the "crisis center" already has approval of county agencies involved.

Such approval was, in fact, obtained by Youth Advocates before the application for funding was submitted by its director, Steven Lieberman of Woodacre.

Dr. Robert L. Taylor, then head of Marin County's community mental health program, endorsed the proposal as "a meaningful addition to Marin County."

The plan also was endorsed by Center Point, which operates a narcotics treatment center in San Rafael; by the Marin Suicide Prevention Center; by the Family Service Agency of Marin County; by the Novato Human Needs Center, and by Foxborough West, Inc., of San Francisco. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare's youth development office, while advising it would not fund the project, gave its endorsement in a letter by Elizabeth H. Gorlich, regional program director and herself a Marin resident.

Besides offering temporary care for teen-age addicts found in a crisis situation, the center will operate an "outreach" program to pick up young people in all parts of the county for transportation to the Grove Lane home.

Youths taken there will remain, in most cases, only a few days, and never longer than 30 days, according to the application filed with the National Institute of Mental Health.

Probert and his neighbors say they do not object to the prupose of the center, but they don't want it in their neighborhood. The highly transitory character of the residents is an especially disturbing factor, Probert said.

Richard Klein, Marin director of Youth Advocates who has recently set up an office in Corte Madera, said the location was chosen merely because it was the best house for the purpose that the group could find. The application had listed the location as "between San Rafael and Novato in the central corridor." No suitable house could be found there, however, Klein said.

Ski Firm Loses Citation Appeal

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Squaw Valley Ski Corp. has lost its bid to win state withdrawal of three lift citations issued last March against the firm for operating two unsafe chairlifts.

The state Occupational Safety and Health Appeals Board has turned down the corporation's appeal but it modified two of the three citations issued by the state Division of Industrial Safety and reduced the lines from $17,700 to $6,700.

The Division of Industrial Safety had cited Squaw Valley Ski Corp. for failure to have an operative emergency bullwheel break on Exhibition chairlift, failure to have an operative backstop break on the same lift and failure to have an operative backstop break on KT-22.

Visitor Not Shocked By Watergate

By BARBARA HOSMER

The people of Nicaragua weren't too shocked by U.S. Watergate revelations because "they have an eternal Watergate by their government," according to an editor of La Prensa, Managua's daily newspaper.

Mario Alfaro, who is visiting his family in San Rafael, said the large Central American country's government is totally dominated by President Anastasio Somoza. He controls all elections and courts with Somoza men, covers up problems and protest through censorship of media and has failed to take measures to curb a growing inflation, the newsman said.

Alfaro added that the Somoza family, which has ruled Nicaragua for 43 years, has enriched itself with large estates and business through its government power.

He candidly described how the government controls the media through censorship of news it feels is critical or unfavorable and said it forced La Prensa to shut down for 10 days about four months ago.

"A strike in the hospital was growing; the newspaper was informing the people. The government didn't like it and sent military censors," the political and international affairs writer said.

Censors told La Prensa's director that all articles would first have to be read by the censors, Alfaro said. The director, in defiance, just closed down the newspaper. When it reopened, the newspaper printed the whole story of the censorship.

"Circulation jumped from 67,000 to 90,000," he said with a grin. But the fight continues, he added.

"It doesn't happen often now. About 10 years ago they used to close it often," he said.

"I'm used to working under these conditions," he said.

Radio stations, numbering some 20 in Managua, are completely government controlled, though all but one is privately owned, Alfaro said.

An official can pick up the telephone and tell a station, "Don't say this," and the station doesn't, Alfaro said. "Censorship by telephone!"

The newspaperman compared Nicaraguan censorship with that in Spain, where he studied and worked for newspapers and television. In Spain, he said, "everything had rules and everyone followed the rules and it was all right. In Nicaragua they keep changing the rules and nobody knows."

Currently, he said opponents of the regime are waging a legal battle to oust Somoza by means of a law passed by the strong man himself, a regulation saying that a president can't succeed himself. Somoza is trying to do just that, according to the newsman.

MARIO ALFARO

But the courts too are dominated by Somoza, he added with a shrug.

Inflation has become a growing problem in Nicaragua in the past few years, but the government hasn't taken any measures to curb it, Alfaro said.

"The government says inflation is the product of the earthquake (which in December, 1972, destroyed 90 per cent of Managua businesses and 70 per cent of housing) and of continued drought. "But the people don't believe that. They know the government is making nice business with the reconstruction.

"Sometimes there are elections, but everybody knows who wins so they don't care to vote," he said.

He said that many persons in Nicaragua listen to overseas radio news from the United States, London, Spain and Moscow. Country people, however, have transistors which don't receive such distant broadcasts and the government keeps rigid controls on the Nicaraguan stations because they reach most of the people.

At La Prensa Alfaro writes international news stories and interviews foreign and national officials. During the Managua earthquake he coordinated and wrote comprehensive stories about the disaster and Red Cross programs to aid victims.

Before he joined La Prensa, where he is second in command of the news staff, Alfaro worked in radio, was a correspondent for Tiempo de Mexico and wrote for magazines.

In San Rafael for the first time in 18 years, he came to attend the 50th wedding anniversary of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Alfaro of San Rafael. He will return home next week.

Ford Sets Arms Talks In Motion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford is sending Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson to Geneva Sept. 16 and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to Moscow in late October to try to negotiate a 10-year arms control agreemnt with Russia, administration officials said today.

Ford announced yesterday that the United States and Soviet Union have agreed to resume their Geneva disarmament negotiations Sept.18 after a suspension of six months.

Officials reported that in anticipation of the U.S. delegation's departure, senior government officials have been going over the American negotiating position in an effort to resolve differences of approach between Kissinger and Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger.

The seriousness of the administration's concern for further arms control agreements with the Russians was underlined by Director Fred C. Ikle, of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, who warned that nuclear war could result in the destruction of the ozone layer in the stratosphere which protects living beings from ultraviolat radiation. Ikle made the remark in a speech in Chicago on Thursday.

Officials said Kissinger is deeply concerned about the proliferation of nuclear weapons and the spread of multiple nuclear wahreads. On the other hand, Schlesinger is anxious that the United States have sufficient modern nuclear weapons to meet defense needs in the years ahead.

Consequently, the defense secretary is reported to be less willing than Kissinger to agree to compromises with the Russians which would limit multiple nuclear warheads, known as OIRVs, while allowing the Soviet Union to continue some aspects of its defense development programs.

The United States will be seeking a 10-year agreement at the renewed Strategic Arms Limitation Talks to supersede the current five-year Interim Agreement which was completed through negotiations in Vienna, Helsinki and Moscow in 1972.

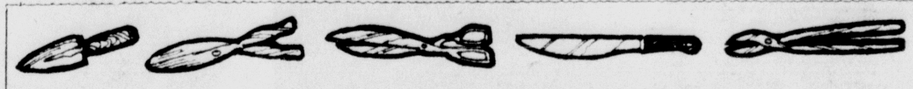

The immediate goals will be to limit the deployment of MIRV warheads and control bomber-carried nuclear weapons and missiles.

The United States and Soviet Union also face a procedural dispute — how to handle American nuclear weapons stationed in Europe. The United States maintains these are "tactical" weapons, part of the NATO defense of Europe and not part of the U.S.-Soviet strategic arms equation.

But the Soviet Union says they can strike Russian territory, are therefore strategic and should be discussed at the Geneva talks.

Arrive Tomorrow

'IN FASHIONS' ON THE CAMPUS

From Paris, New York and other fashion capitals of the world have come a preview for Marinites of what is "in" for fall. But none has given so much as a passing nod to the realities of campus wear. Independent-Journal photographer Alfred Arn uncapped his lens on the College of Marin campus this week to show what is truly, authentically "in." One subject was disconcerted. "You took a picture of me? In this? (pulling at tee shirt) "I only wore it because it was the cleanest thing I could find on the floor this morning." Shown are students (from left) Iris Meyers of Larkspur, Amanze Patric of San Francisco and Steven Peavy of Kentfield.

DOZING IN THE SUN — College of Marin student Carey Egger of Mill Valley relaxes on campus in a pair of jeans, shirt and cardigan sweater. Her outfit is typical of those worn by young women on campus — and not too unlike those worn by male students.

A BIT OF NOSTALGIA — A College of Marin student, who would not give her name to the I-J photographer, wears a ruffly, lacy, floor length dress covered by a rather large man's corduroy jacket.

THE LAST WORD

Battle Of The Bugs Worth It When You Harvest Your Garden

By KAREN PETERSON

Snails and slugs never really bothered me in the past. Aphids and white flies were creatures unknown.

Not anymore. Today they are Public Enemy Number One — those obnoxious varmints that creep to feed on my garden, thinking only of their appetites, not of my toil.

I do not stand alone in this never-ending battle against these stalwart insects, their lines of battle always poised at the garden fence.

THE BACKYARD gardener has come of age. Where there is a smidgen of workable soil, county residents are planting their garden plots. And taking it all very, very seriously.

The evidence can be found at the newsstand in San Rafael.

One afternoon I happily noted the bible of the gardener, "Organic Gardening," propped up among the newspapers.

"Where did you hear about this," queried the man at the counter as I searched for change.

ASSUMING he was ready to scoff at my taste, I answered defensively, "From friends."

Shaking his head, he said in wonderment, "They're sold as soon as I put them out."

Never would I have believed that any satisfaction could be gained from reading about composting and mulching. Now I even find myself daydreaming about just a bit more land to plant those tiny seeds that miraculously turn into ears of corn.

SOME SAY gardening is an outgrowth of high prices. But the first year garden is in itself pretty expensive, especially for the novice.

There's the rental fee for a rototiller; the purchases of garden tools, soaker hoses, redwood stakes, fencing material, (organic) starter plants, wooden flats, seed packets, gardening books; and despite the pint of ladybugs, (organic, at least) bug spray, and inorganic snail bait.

(Is it a dream to believe that someday gardening supplies could actually be tax deducti-

The Harmons will play in the tournament, which begins the best day, as will Donna and Don Kelleher of Ross; Byron and Pat Leydecker, Joyce and Ken Wells, Marce and Dick Tyler and Ginny and Dick Hanna, all of Tiburon.

The "more fun than serious" tournament will be based on the World Team Tennis concept, and will include eight top professionals as captains.

Cocktails and dinner at the Dollar estate on the Chinquapin properties Saturday night, cocktails and awards luncheons on the courts at conclusion of the tourney Saturday are included in the schedule.

MRS. M. P. SCHAU of San fRafael took her first airplane trip Aug. 30 when she accompanied her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Schau of San Rafael, on a trip to Santa Barbara.

They visited the elder Mrs. Schau's granddaughter, Lynn Berlin, and her husband, Bob.

AFTER A wedding trip to Martinique in the French West Indies, the newly married Mr. and Mrs. Wulf Clemens are making their first home in Tiburon

The bride is the former Mary-Jill Blethen. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard T. Blethen Jr. of Tiburon. The bridegroom is a native of Austria.

The wedding was held at Old St. Hilary's Church in Tiburon on July 12, and was followed by a reception at the home of Mrs. Frederick Q. Tredway in Belvedere. Mrs. Tredway is a longtime family friend of the Blethens.

MARIN YACHTSMEN are heading for the America's Cup Races which begin in Newport, R. I. on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Brent of the Corinthian Yacht Club will be sailing in the Triton Class National Regatta at Milford, Conn., this week-end and go on to Newport for the big yachting duel. Mr. and Mrs. Dirk Te Roller of San Francisco Yacht Club, Belvedere, are also heading East for the America's Cup contest.

FOLLOWING A two-week stay on their houseboat on the Sacramento Delta, the newlyweds, Dr. and Mrs. Robert S. Tuttle, are living in Santa Rosa.

The bride is the former Marie Goff, who teaches French at San Rafael High School. She also served for several years on the faculty at Dominican College.

Dr. Tuttle, a dentist, is president of the California State Board of Dental Examiners and former president of the Sonoma County Dental Association. He is also a former mayor of Santa Rosa.

The new Mrs. Tuttle's children are Jean-Louis, Steven, Gordon and Raoul Goff, and Dr. Tuttle has two sons, Jeffrey and William.

The wedding, Aug. 19, was held at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. B. H. Yeu, in San Francisco. The bride's father is the late Gen. Yeu of Taipei, Taiway. Dr. Tuttle is the son of Dr. Ovid S. Tuttle and the late Ruth Tuttle of Santa Rosa.

GENERATION RAP

Dad's Bulging Middle Causing Great Worry To His Daughter

RAP:

My dad is over 40 and has a wonderful physique — all 6 feet of it —except for several spare tires around his middle!

The root of his difficulty is, plainly, he eats too much! His family has a history of heart trouble.

How do I get him on a diet for his own good, when he isn't interested All the family has tried and failed. I love my father too much to see him ruin his health. — DAUGHTER OF AN OVERWEIGHT DAD

DAUGHTER:

The mid-40 bulge: sometimes eating is just an excuse for nothing better to do.

Why not get your dad interested in a hobby? Or take up golf or tennis and drag him along? Or as a family gift, buy him a membership to a health spa or gymnasium?

Good luck! — SUE

DEAR DAUGHTER:

Your mother can help by "cooking thin" — which, if she doesn't make an issue of it, may be accomplished without too many howls from her man.

She can probably cut over 600 calaries a day from his diet by reducing the fats and carbohydrates, except on special occasions. — HELEN

DEAR SUE:

I'm 14, black, and an A student. I've heard of an organization for high IQ people. Could you give me the address? — INTERESTED

DEAR INTERESTED:

Write to MENSA, 50 East 42nd Street, New York, N. Y., 10017. You'll receive a preliminary IQ test, which, if you pass, entitles you to further personal testing by a member of the organization, at a small fee.

The first exam is quite easy. The second — tough! — SUE

RAP:

My brother is in the Army, stationed down South. Last time he was home he brought his new fiancee, and he acted real sour-apple to the family — wouldn't talk or help around the house at all. I know he hurt Mom and Dad a lot.

When he returned to the base, I wrote him a scorching letter telling him what I thought of his actions and attitude. It's been six weeks, and we haven't heard from him, so I told Mom what I'd done and she was very upset with me. She and Dad are afraid he might have hard feelings and spoil the wedding. I say he deserved my blast, and if he's sulking, that's babyish.

Do I deserve the flak I'm getting from my parents? Should I write and apologize to my brother? — FURIOUS SISTER

DEAR SIS:

Let's not hassle over whether you were right or wrong: That would only create more problems between you and your folks. Instead, why not write your brother a "Let's be friends again" letter — which wouldn't be an apology for how you felt, but only for how you expressed your feelings. — SUE

DEAR SIR:

It's tough, being blamed by the very people you tried to defend. On the other hand, your parents should be allowed to fight their own battles (or hurts).

A letter to your brother will probably smooth things over. By this time he may be feeling apologetic too. — HELEN

Got a problem? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel — or both, if you want a combination mother-daughter answer — c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Highest 4H Award Is Announced

The top award given by the 4-H organization, the meritorious service award, was given Tuesday night to Helen Youngclaus of Fairfax at the annual achievement night of Marin 4-H Clubs at Miller Creek School in Lucas Valley.

Mrs. Youngclaus has served as a 4-H leader for 22 years and with her husband Bryan has reared three award-winning 4-H children all now serving as 4-H leaders themselves.

Mr. and Mrs. Youngclaus became leaders of the Ross Valley 4-H Club soon after their oldest child Charles became a member at age 10.

Charles and Loren, their second son, in 1959 won honors as among the top four 4-H members in the nation — "first time in the history of the organization two young people from the same state had won, let alone the same house," reported their father.

Sister Lorelyn subsequently won national honors also. All three won 4-H scholarships.

Their mother worked with them throughout their 4-H careers, primarily acting as a leader in home economics:

cooking, canning, home improvement.

Her husband was also a leader for 20 years.

Mrs. Youngclaus served as curriculum coordinator in the San Francisco school system.

The family won KTIM Marin Family of the Year honors in 1959, and a 1962 headline in the Independent-Journal read, "In Fairfax, 4-H Means Youngclaus."

The Youngclaus children, Charles of Madera, Loren of Fresno and Laurelyn of Walnut Grove, were present at the award ceremonies Tuesday.

Rainbow Liaison Officer Will Be Honored Tonight

Susan George, grand officer of the International Order of Rainbow Girls, will be honored this evening at a reception at the Masonic Temple in San Rafael.

Miss George, a member and past worthy adviser of San Rafael Assembly No. 195, was named Grand Representative of New Jersey in California at the 1974 Grand Assembly in Anaheim in April. She serves as liaison officer between New Jersey and California for the Rainbow Girls and will attend the New Jersey Grand Assembly in October.

Susan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nevin George, a graduate of San Rafael High School and is a student at the University of California at Davis. Her sisters Nancy and Wendy are also active members of Rainbow Girls.

Laurie Hutchison, worthy adviser of the San Rafael assembly, will preside at the reception. Linda Lex is chairman.

WORD

ble? Yes, in fact. A House tax reform bill, yet to be passed, would allow an income tax credit for the purchase of home gardening equipment. If passed, it would mean gardners could deduct 7 per cent of the pruchase price of such equipment up to a maximum of $100.)

SOME SAY gardening is man's quest to return to the simple life of our ancestors, when cupboards were filled with canned fruits and vegetables and hands were calloused from the rewarding toil in the fields.

Despite the fact that canning equipment is in short supply, and some manufacturers warn that it may not ease next year, there is some truth to the garden work ethic. It is rewarding to work and watch your efforts grow into tall, healthy plants.

IT ISN'T exciting, though, to bury rotted food in the compost pile, shovel manure into burlap bags or have earwigs crawl out of a pile of lettuce leaves.

As every gardener knows, the greatest thrill is picking the end result. Nothing tastes better than sweet fresh corn, vine-ripened tomatoes or tender squash (even if your four small zucchini plants are producing enough for an army).

Create A Holiday Gift From Washable Velour

By EUNICE FARMER
(Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate)

Believe it or not, the holiday season isn't far away and everyone is hungry for some new ideas for gift giving. It's not too soon to plan the gifts we want to make for those on our list. I've found a delightful leaflet, full of ideas to make from the luscious, soft, washable velour in many colors, which is readily available almost everywhere fabric is sold.

There are many exceptional ideas for gifts for your home, such as round tablecloths, pillows and shower curtains, plus stoles, skirts, caftans, very large stuffed animals for every person on your list. This leaflet "Velour . . . For The Designing Female" gives complete instructions for cutting, pressing, and stitching this velour. To receive your copy, please send a self-addressed, stamped envelope with 10 cents to cover the cost of handling to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

DEAR EUNICE,

Please explain the word "nap" given on patterns in reference to the amount of yardage required. I was under the impression that nap meant velvet or corduroy, and I've just ruined a beautiful dress because the cutting instructions showed one piece of the skirt cut in one direction and the other fitted into the fabric but was reversed in direction. Since this was a print that wasn't reversible, the skirt is a disaster. I was able to salvage the bodice and add a solid skirt, but there must be more to cutting than the pattern tells us. — MRS. M.B.

DEAR MRS. M.B.,

Perhaps the pattern companies should be more specific when they tell us about nap. Actually, the word is used to describe any fabric that has a one way design as well as fabric with a nap such as velvets, cashmeres and knits. Many plaids must also be placed in one direction.

With the newer style skirts, that form a much deeper "A" line at the hem, more fabric will be needed when you use these one way designs. Check your pattern layout before making a purchase. It is often necessary to purchase an extra length for the skirt. Remember, even knits that are a solid color have a direction and must be cut with all pieces of your pattern placed in the same direction.

DEAR EUNICE,

You have always been a great help to me with your suggestions and know-how, perhaps you have an idea for my little problem. I bought a beautiful blouse with a puffed sleeve at the shoulder. I find it does nothing for me. Since I can sew a little, am wondering if I can take this fullness out? — MRS. W.M.

DEAR MRS. W.M.,

This depends on how skimpy the ready-make blouse is. You will possibly lose a little of the length of the sleeve. Carefully, rip it out and press and sleeve flat. Place a standard sleeve pattern over the cap of the sleeve and recut the sleeve, usually the puffed sleeve would be considerably larger so you shouldn't have a problem. Ease the new cap of your sleeve into the armhole. Since you won't have any marks to match except the underarm and the shoulder, possibly you should pin or baste the sleeves in before the final stitching. This shouldn't be too difficult an alteration to make, and since you don't like the existing sleeve, you won't have much to lose.

DEAR EUNICE,

I know the problems of those of us who do crewel work and needlepoint are not in your domain, but perhaps you can give us an idea about threading needles. It seems that the most difficult part of doing this kind of work is trying to thread a needle, and as much time is spent trying this as actually doing the needlework. I'm not alone in this. Please help. — MRS. M.R.

DEAR MRS. M.R.,

Believe it or not, I do a little of this for relaxation myself and know just what you're talking about. Someone else has already heard your plea. I was sent a new product that will cure all your problems. It is a needle threader especially designed for yarns and made rather sturdy which should hold up for some time. It is a product put out by Belding and can probably be found wherever sewing notions are found, either department stores or fabric shops. (Perhaps, it might be sold eventually in yarn shops.). Check your local supplier. You will find three in a package for only 50 cents.

Grandeur Being Downgraded In Paris

By PHILIP W. WHITCOMB
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

PARIS — France's postwar desire for leadership has taken new form under Valery Giscard d'Estaing, and grandeur is being downgraded as one of the key elements.

Symbolic of the trend is the Paris International Trade Center, which vanished as a plan before it could be built — vanished as completely as had the seven-century-old Paris market, the Halles, that it was intended to replace.

Some expressions of the glamorous postwar concept had been successful, even though contested: the modern structures on the hill of the Defense, overlooking Paris, a startling version of New York; the great office tower that overshadows the Pantheon and the Sorbonne; and the world's largest convention center, replacing the old Luna Park down the slope from the Arch of Triumph, linked by nonstop motorway with every Paris airport.

Other efforts have missed their targets. The world's largest and finest slaughterhouse, costing several hundred million dollars, had to be abandoned and pulled down as soon as it was built. The Franco-British Concorde, world's fastest passenger plane, for ministers and millionaires but not for traveling salesmen or tourists, has so far created only a colossal debt. The beautiful liner France, scheduled for abandonment this autumn, had lived on the charity of the French taxpayer.

Now the international trade center, with its planned eight stories dominating the adjacent historic church of Saint-Eustache, has been banned by Giscard d'Estaing.

Why did he ban the proposed center — on which, incidentally, work was already well under way?

Quite obviously because he decided that the concept of a world leadership based on grandeur-before-all can never succeed in Paris. General de Gaulle's enemies had blamed him for the postwar policy of isolated grandeur. But the new school of sociological psychiatrist — formerly "social psychologists" — holds that General de Gaulle was not to blame and that the explanation is a subconscious national desire to bury the defeat of 1940, the most startling in military history up to that time.

National longing to have the greatest of something, anything, is worldwide and eternal: The Hanging Gardens of Babylon, Pyramids, Colossus of Rhodes, Colosseum, Grand Canyon and Sears Roebuck building, Tower of London and Buckingham Palace, the world's largest refinery now booked for Iran, the Great Wall of China, and the Eiffel Tower.

But in Giscard's d'Estaing's opinion, according to those who know him, France in its desire to bury 1940 had turned the wrong way, misunderstanding the real secret of Paris's attraction for the world's dominant financiers and businessmen.

To them, the power of Paris is its unique character, its beauty combined with livability, majesty blended with practicality. By destroying one after another of the traditional faces of Paris and substituting the same skyscrapers, the same motorways, the same blocks of concrete as can be found, today, anywhere in the world, this postwar concept of grandeur was discouraging the geese who would have preferred to bring their golden eggs to Paris.

The new French leadership relies on two magnets: a Paris that is still Paris, copying neither Chicago nor Hong Kong; and a sort of fellowship with the world that stops shouting, "I am the leader," but instead says, "Together we can do anything."

The kind of leadership. Giscard d'Estaing plans for Paris will not make the world's business and financial leaders say, "Paris has everything we've got, only bigger and better." But they may continue to say, "It's a beautiful place to do business, to live with a family, to establish international headquarters."

Which, by the way, is exactly what IBM International is going to do in September.

Firm Resumes Shipments Of Bananas From Panama

NEW YORK (UPI) — United Brands Co. announced yesterday it has resumed shipments of bananas from Panama after a six-week stoppage caused by the effort of the Panamanian government to levy a $1 a box export tax.

Chairman Eli M. Black said in a letter to stockholders that the banana-producing countries will hold a conference on Sept. 17, probably in Panema, to try to reach a common policy on taxing banana exports. He said this will not be easy to achieve because, so far, the biggest exporter, Ecuador, has been unwilling to impose any export tax.

Black said United Brands reached agreement with Honduras a few days ago to pay an export tax of 25 cents a box with the tax to be raised next year and yearly thereafter as market conditions permit. Costa Rica also is levying a tax of 25 cents a box.

Black said Panama now has agreed to tax its bananas either at a rate to be set at the upcoming conference or at a rate that would make Panamanian bananas competitive with those of other exporting companies.

Dollar, Gold Both Fall In World Money Markets

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The U.S. dollar settled lower on most world money markets yesterday. Gold prices fell 50 cents in London and 75 cents in Zurich to close for the week at $157 an ounce.

After a three-week climb interrupted by two midweek setbacks, the dollar closed lower on all major European markets with the exception of London. The pound fell from $2.3120 Thursday to $2.3107. The dollar gained in Tokyo and in Scandinavia with the exception of Sweden.

The American currency closed in Frankfurt at 2.67 Marks, down from 2.676, and in Zurich at 3.0175 Swiss francs, down from 3.0292. In Paris, the dollar went down from 4.83 to 4.81 French francs.

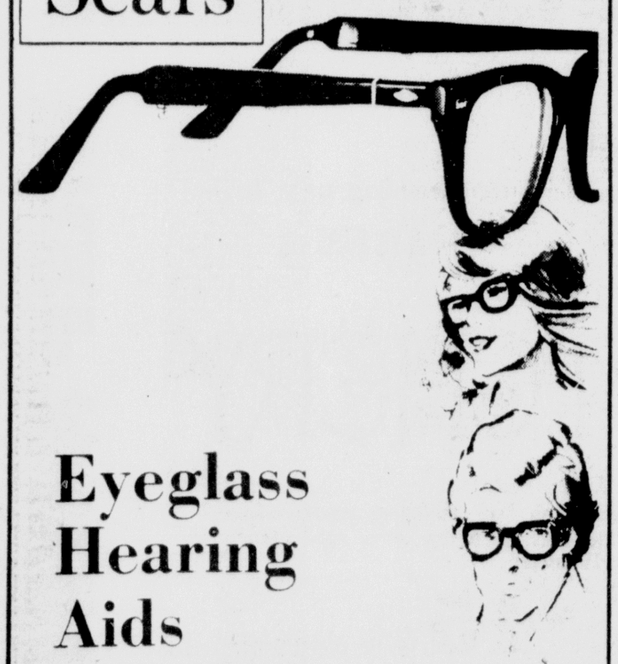

Brussels dealers marked the dollar down from 40.15 to 40.12 Belgian francs on the free market and Amsterdam dealers reduced its value from 2.728 guilders, a high for the week, to 2.72. The dollar closed unchanged at 18.80 schillings in Vienna.

In Milan, the dollar declined from 663 to 662.25 lire and in Stockhom from 4.51 to 4.49 Swedish kronor.

The dollar gained one ore in Oslo where the rate was fixed at 5.59 Norwegian kroner and moved up a fraction from 3.804 to 3.806 Finnmarks in Helsinki.

In Tokyo, the dollar was traded at a median rate of 302.65 yen, up from 302.60, and closed at 302.64, up from 302.40.

Your new dream house may be storing a legal nightmare.

Unrecorded liens, hidden assessments, or zoning ordinances you don't even know about have created costly headaches for thousands. Worst of all, part of your home may not even be on your land. Now there's a way to protect yourself.

"What do you mean the carport is on my neighbor's land?"

The horrified homeowner who's confronted with this news moves quickly from anger and disbelief to a feeling of helplessness.

And it isn't just a feeling. Escrow has closed. The house belongs to him. There's no recourse to the former owner. The problem is his and his alone.

Legal costs run high. Costs of removing part of your structure run even higher. Once you're hit by this nightmare, there's no easy answer.

A survey would have revealed this problem. But surveys may run several hundred dollars. And even a survey doesn't reveal some of these other potential problems:

For example, if a previous owner didn't pay for work or materials on your home, there may be an unrecorded lien on your house for this work. And a lien foreclosure court action could cost you your property.

Again, there are local ordinances that may require your home to be set back a certain distance from the boundaries; or to conform to a stated height. If you were unaware that your house didn't conform to these rules when you bought it, compliance could cost you a bundle.

Until now, no standard title insurance policy offered such protection.

Now, Title Insurance and Trust, California's largest title insurance firm, has changed its standard title insurance policy for homeowners to include important new kinds of protection.

The new policy is called T.I. PLUS. It doesn't take anything away from the protection you've always received from standard title insurance. But it adds substantial protection against these painful problems:

Lack of access from your property to a legally established public street.

Unrecorded liens for labor or materials.

Enforced removal of your house or other improvements (excluding perimeter fences and plantings) due to (a) encroachment onto adjoining land, (b) encroachment onto recorded easements or unrecorded subsurface easements, (c) violations of covenants, conditions or restrictions, or zoning ordinances, and (d) the exercise of a holder of reserved mineral rights to come upon your land.

In addition, T.I. PLUS is the first standard title insurance policy that offers you substantial inflation protection.

Most homes increase in value every year due to inflation. And a title policy issued today may not offer you adequate protection five years from now.

T.I. PLUS automatically increases the maximum amount of coverage each year by an amount established by the U.S. Department of Commerce Construction Cost Index. And you get these automatic increases up to an additional 50% of the original face value of the policy.

If you're going to buy a home, you owe it to your peace of mind to get the full story. And you can do that in one of three ways:

1.) Ask your Realtor about T.I. PLUS. Remember, it's available only from Title Insurance and Trust.

2.) Call your local office of Title Insurance and Trust Company.

3.) Go to your phone and dial 800/252-0311 for a recorded message that gives you further details. T.I. PLUS

ON BASEBALL

By GARY HUGHES

Right Time, Wrong Place

Boy, did I make a mistake Tuesday night. I could have stayed home, eaten a leisurely meal, stretched out in front of the TV and watched John Montefusco's finest hour.

Instead, I chose to rush over to the Oakland Coliseum, down a mixture of chicken, rice and barbecue sauce (it wasn't bad) and watch baseball's most exciting pitcher B.M. (before Montefusco) against the defending champions of the baseball world.

LET ME SAY THIS: Nolan Ryan can throw the hell out of a baseball. I'm sure he could throw a fast ball through a barn wall. On Tuesday night, however,he might have had difficulty hitting the barn. His control was brutal (eight walks in 4⅓ innings). The majority of his pitches were missing high and inside. This doesn't exactly encourage a batter to stand in there and take a good rip. If anything, the opposite effect is likely to take place.

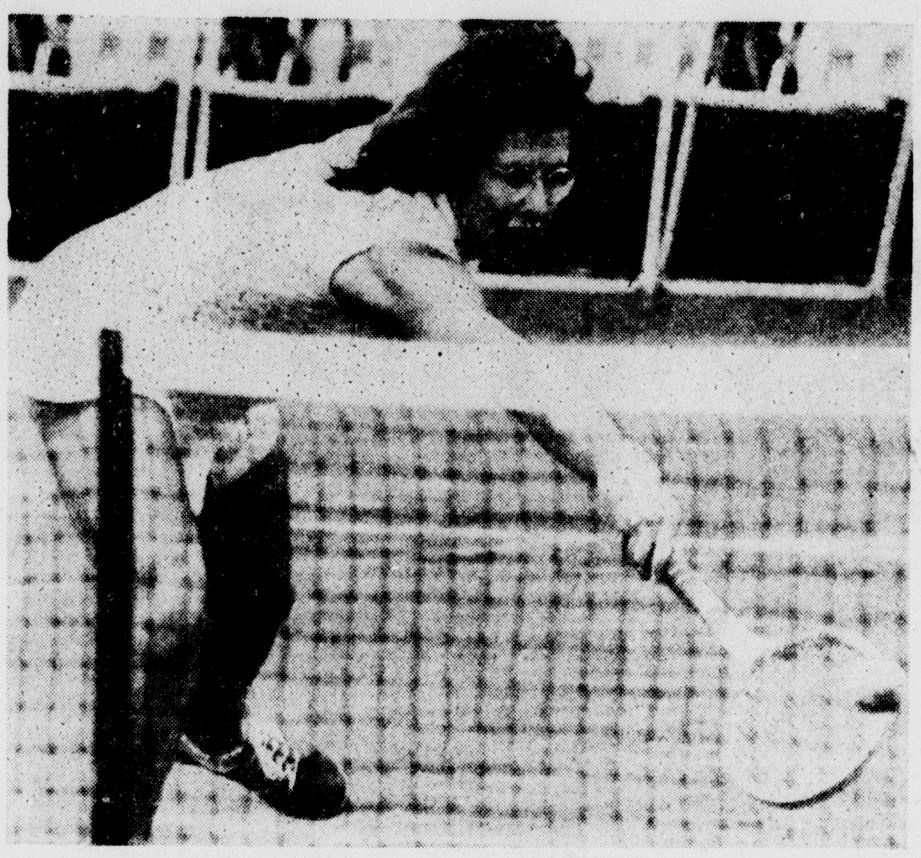

Reggie Jackson, after almost being decapitated by a Ryan fastball, picked himslef up and let out a loud yelp. After reaching first on a walk Jackson took a long gaze heavenward and made two slow positive signs of the cross. A well placed Nolan Ryan fastball does tend to bring an instant rash of religious devotion.

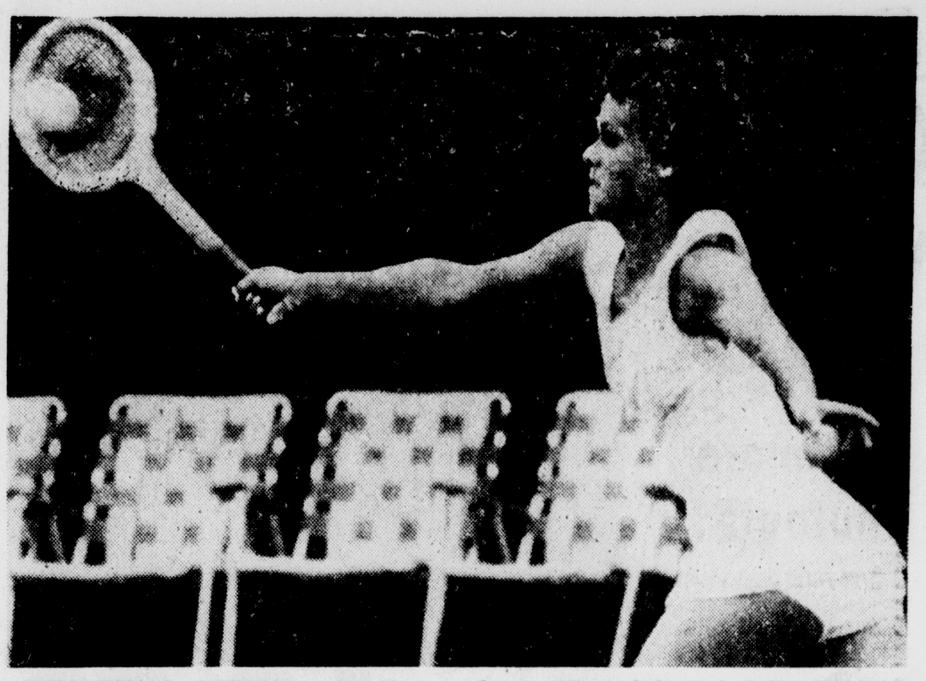

RYAN'S CALIFORNIA Angel teammates are all pretty much worried about their job security. As I've mentioned before, Ryan is a good bet to be traded. Dick Williams and general manager, Harry Dalton will be wheeling and dealing in the off season, possibly as early as the World Series. The big problem is that they don't have much to offer in the way of quality players. With the race in the Aerican League East so tight, someone may still pick up Frank Robinson. That would only leave Ellie Rodriguez, Dave Chalk, Mickey Rivers, Bill Singer and Ryan as attractive trade bait. Williams and Dalton probably are spending quite a bit of time wondering just where to start.

Ryan's mound opponent Tuesday was Ken Holtzman. His performance could best be described as routinely brilliant. After facing Nolan Ryan, Ken draws Fergie Jenkins as an opponent tomorrow afternoon. It should be a quick game.

IT WOULDN'T BE AN A's game if there wasn't a small disturbance involved. Billy North was upset with official scorer Jim Street of the San Jose Mercury. He felt that he should have been credited with a single on a ball he hit to the left of third baseman Bobby Valentine. Many of the A's agreed and voiced their disapproval. Monday night, North was given a hit on what appeared to be a throwing error. He made no attempt to change that decision in the interest of fair play. Oh well.

I was honestly shocked at the small (4,341) attendance for what figured to be a classic pitchers' duel. You'll excuse my ignorance though. You see, I'd never heard of John Montefusco.

SEMI-FINAL ACTION — Professional tennis stars Billie Jean King (left) and Evonne Goolagong displayed their talents as they reached for shots during yesterday's semi-finals at the U.S. Open. King defeated Julie Heldman, 2-6, 6-3, 6-1, and Goolagong was leading Chris Evert, 6-0, 4-3 when their match was postponed by rain.

(UPI Telephoto)

Rain Delays Evert- Goolagong Finish

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — A steady overnight rain that continued into the morning forced postponement of today's program of the U.S. Open Tennis championships.

As a result, the continuation of the women's singles semifinals between Chris Evert and Evonne Goolagong now is scheduled for tomorrow and the men's singles finals will have to be carried over to Monday.

When rain halted play yesterday afternoon, the top-seeded Miss Evert was only two games from defeat after Evonne Goolagong had leaped to a 6-0, 4-3 lead.

Miss Evert's hopes of adding the Forest Hills crown to her Wimbledon diadem were all but gone when the rain came. The Australian girl had demoralized the 19-year-old Ft. Lauderdale girl in the love set, allowing her only nine points. And Evonne was a break up when they stopped in mid-afternoon.

The delay heightened the drama of today's action, for Miss Evert's fiancee, Jimmy Connors, the Wimbledon king, goes against another 22-year-old American, Roscoe Tanner, in one men's semi, while defending champion John Newcombe took on the losing Wimbledon finalist, Ken Rosewall in the other.

Safely into the semifinal round of this richest—$271,600—tournament was three-times women's winner Billie Jean King, who rallied after a dreadful opening set to beat Julie Heldman, 2-6, 6-3, 6-1, before Chris and Evonne began play.

When the men finally get on court today, Connors is the choice over the other lefthander, Tanner. Not because of their work here, but because Connors has been through the pressure of Wimbledon, and because his matches here have evolved into a steady process of toughening him for the semis and final.

Tanner, on the other hand, has had to bludgeon his way through brutal five set encounters with Ilie Nastasie and Ismail El Shafei, and a howitzer four set test with Stan Smith.

While Tanner openly admits grass is his best surface, Connors' feeling is that he can win on grass, clay or broken bottles, and, particularly if Miss Evert does lose, Jimmy will want this title for both of them.

As for Newcombe and Rosewall, what is there to say?

Rosewall fought his way for the fourth time to Wimbledon's finals, but at age 39 could not do a thing against Connors.

If Kenny can whip Newcombe once more, it is entirely possible that the men's final here will be a rematch of the Wimbledon final, with Connors against Rosewall.

Lakers Land Russell Not Knowing Cost

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Lakers have landed Cazzie Russell but they don't know what he's going to cost them.

The Lakers yesterday announced the signing of the 6-foot-5 veteran Golden State Warrior forward, who became the first man in the National Basketball Association to play out his option and sign as a free agent.

Other NBA athletes have played out their options but a deal has always been made at the 11th hour between the club he left and the one he joined.

Although there is no requirement in the NBA bylaws that one team must compensate another in a case like Russell's, it is customary to negotiate compensation in free agent cases.

In Russell's case, the Lakers and Warriors are attempting to take it to NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy, who is on vacation, for arbitration although there is nothing that says any arbitration would be binding.

"There's a possibility that Kennedy may not give the Warriors as much (players and-or draft choices) as we are willing to give him," said Lakers' attorney Alan Rothenberg.

Said Russell, 30, a first-round draft choice of the New York Knicks in 1966: "I just want to play for a club that uses me."

Russell averaged 20.5 points a game for the Warriors last season. Terms of Russell's contract were not announced.

TOO CLOSE — Campy Campaneris of the A's went to his knees to avoid being hit by a pitch from Jim Bibby of the Texas Rangers last night in the first inning at Oakland.

(UPI Telephoto)

A's Players Blame Manager For Loss

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland A's lost to the Texas Rangers and the players put the blame squarely on manager Alvin Dark.

"We could win this thing if he would just leave us alone," one player, who did not want to be named, said after a 5-4 defeat in 11 innings last night.

"He doesn't have confidence in some of the pitchers," said Dave Hamilton who was upset about being taken out of the game in the third inning with the score tied 0-0.

But other Oakland players were more upset by what happened in the ninth inning. Dark's strategy seemed to help Texas score the tying run then prevent the A's from winning in their half of the ninth.

With Oakland ahead 4-3 on a three-run eighth inning homer by Sal Bando, the Rangers came back to tie.

Dave Nelson walked and went to second on a wild pitch. That brought up powerful Jeff Burroughs, the American League leader in runs batted in.

Instead of walking Burroughs, Dark let Rollie Fingers pitch to him and Burroughs singled to center to score the tying run.

When asked why he didn't walk Burroughs, Dark said he felt Fingers could get him out.

In the Oakland half of the ninth, Claudell Washington led off with a walk and Dark then ordered Jim Holt to fake a bunt. Holt took a called strike and eventually struck out.

Then Ted Kubiak sacrificed to move Washington to second base, but the inning ended when Reggie Jackson grounded out.

Dark explained that he felt Holt could move the runner along with a hit but Kubiak could do it with a bunt.

The Rangers eventually won the game in the 11th inning when Nelson singled, moved to second on a sacrifice and scored on a single by Burroughs, his fourth hit of the game.

"We had to win that game," manager Billy Martin of the Rangers said.

The defeat cut the A's lead over the Rangers to 7½ games. The teams were to meet again today with Steve Hargan, 10-8, pitching for Texas against rookie Glenn Abbott, 5-4, of the A's.

D'Acquisto Throws Hardest

ATLANTA (UPI) — John D'Acquisto is the pitcher the Atlanta Braves call the hardest thrower in the National League.

The 22-year-old rookie also is the brightest spot in an otherwise dismal season for the San Francisco Giants.

D'Acquisto won his 11th game of the season—he has lost 12—and pitched his first major league shutout last night as the Giants beat the Braves 2-0.

"My concentration was there from beginning to end," D'Acquisto said. "At the beginning of the season, it was my biggest problem but now it's my biggest asset."

The young right-hander has made typical rookie mistakes this year but he has managed to overcome them. He would lose his concentration early in the season and sometimes he would get excited.

"I kept an even head tonight. I kept my poise and I didn't get excited," he said. "I kept in control the entire last game, too."

"He's been improving right along, game by game," Manager Wes Westrum said of the curly-haired flame-thrower. "For a rookie, he's great. Just great."

Rowland Office, also a rookie, singled for Atlanta in the first inning and doubled in the third. They were the only hits allowed by D'Acquisto during the first eight innings.

KNARR REGATTA

Defending Champ Is Closing In Fast

Defending champion Louie Schnakenburg of Denmark moved into second place behind Dewey Hines of Ross yesterday with a victory in the next-to-last race of the 1974 Knarr Class International Regatta on the Berkeley-Richmond olympic circle.

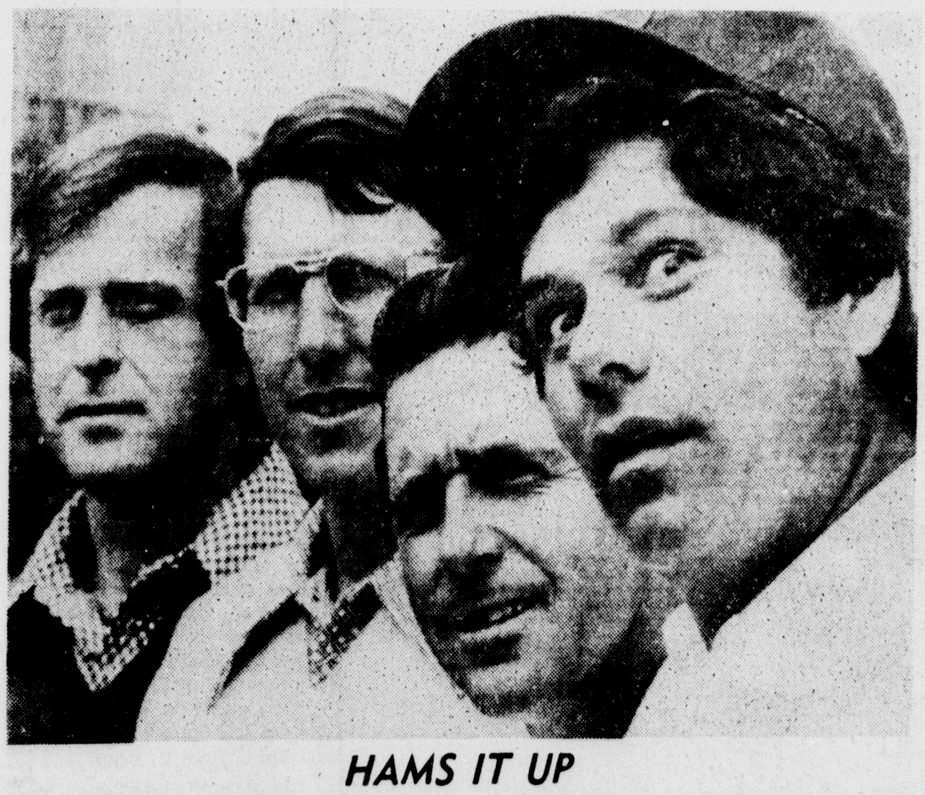

Hines, of the St. Francis Yacht Club, finished seventh yesterday after winning on Thursday. He needs a fifth place or better today to win the regatta, but the boat he was to skipper in the final race has placed no higher than ninth in previous races.

Schnakenburg, on the other hand, was to pilot a craft that finished first twice and third once.

Second place yesterday went to Dick Griffith of the San Francisco Yacht Club, who finished 32 second behind Schnakenburg. Al Blair of the Corinthian Yacht Club followed Griffith by 39 seconds.

Prince Henrik of Denmark had his best performance of the series yesterday, finishing fourth, but previous leaders Terry Anderlini of San Mateo and Hal McCormack of Sausalito did poorly, finishing 13th and 20th.

Leaders after the first five races:
Dewey Hines (St. Francis Yacht Club), 21.7 points; Louie Schnakenburg (Denmark), 33.4; Terry Anderlini (St. Francis), 33.7; Ted Mc Kown (St. Francis), 39.7; Bjorn Bakke (Norway), 42.

HAMS IT UP

Lee Trevino (right), hammed it up for the cameras as he and (from left) Bobby Nichols, Hale Irwin and Gary Player posed yesterday prior to practice for the World Series of Golf in Akron, Ohio. The four will compete starting today for $50,000 first place money. See story page 13.

Orioles' Hurling Shines; War Not Over With Reds

2 More Baltimore Shutouts

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The Baltimore Oriole pitching staff doesn't ask for much.

But then again, it doesn't need much.

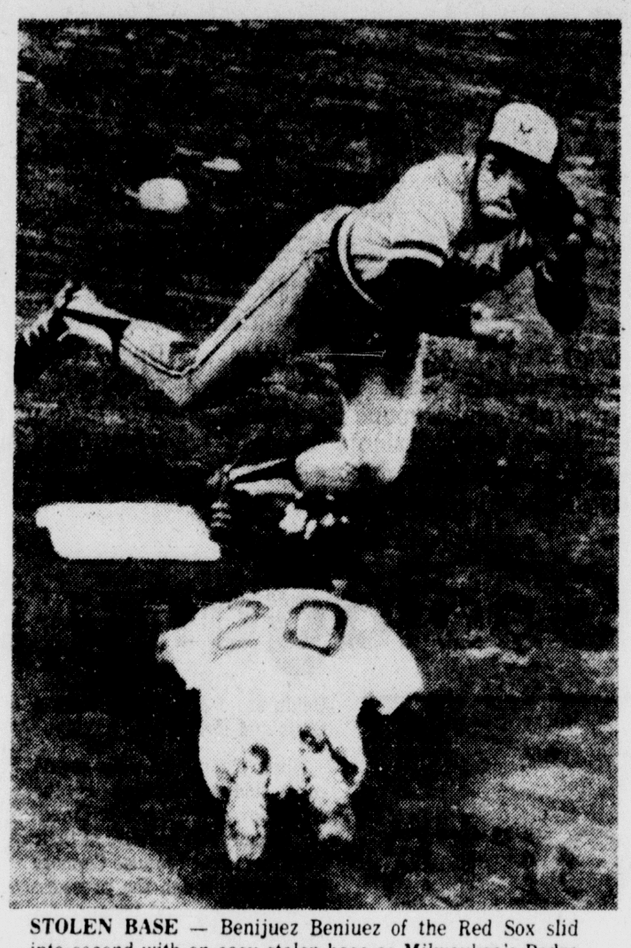

The Orioles, thanks to shutout performances from Dave McNally and Mike Cuellar, beat the Cleveland Indians 2-0 and 1-0 last night to run their winning streak to nine games. In addition to pulling Baltimore within 1 ½ games of the first place New York Yankees in the American League East, the twin blankings also enabled the Oriole pitching staff to set an American League record of five consecutive shutouts, eclipsing the previous mark of four set by Baltimore in 1957.

During their nine game winning streak, the Orioles, who have gone with the same four starting pitchers since Aug. 7, have received eight complete game performances and have used a relief pitcher in only one of their last 11 games.

Aside from McNally, Cuellar, Ross Grimsley and Jim Palmer, the only Oriole pitcher to see action since Aug. 25 has been Grant Jackson who worked 1 1-3 innings in relief on Aug. 31.

McNally tossed a three-hitter and used only 75 pitches for his 14th victory against 10 losses in the opener while the 37-year-old Cuellar, pitching for the third time in eight days, allowed five hits in raising his record to 18-10 in the nightcap.

Enos Cabell's first homer of the year and second of his major league career snapped a scoreless tie in the seventh inning of the first game while Rich Coggins doubled home Mark Belanger in the eighth inning with the only run of the nightcap.

STOLEN BASE — Benijuez Beniuez of the Red Sox slid into second with an easy stolen base as Milwaukee's Pedro Garcia dove for the ball in the first inning last night at Boston. (UPI Telephoto)

Elsewhere in the AL, New York beat Detroit 6-2 in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader that was called in the seventh inning because of rain, Milwaukee blanked Boston 2-0, Texas edged Oakland 5-4 in 11 innings and California beat Chicago 4-2. Minnesota and Kansas City were idle.

Yanks 6, Tigers 2

Pat Dobson tossed a seven-hitter and Otto Velez and Graig Nettles each drove home two runs to lead New York over Detroit and increase the Yanks' lead in the East to 1 ½ games.

Brewers 2, Red Sox 0

Jim Slaton and Tom Murphy combined on a four-hitter in pitching Milwaukee past Boston and handing the Red Sox their eighth loss in a row.

Angels 4, White Sox 2

Bob Oliver doubled in one run and Bob Heise's squeeze bunt drove in another as California scored all its runs in the fourth inning to defeat Chicago.

Dodgers Increase Their Lead

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The Los Angeles Dodgers won a major battle last night but every indication is that their war with the Cincinnati Reds is far from over.

The Dodgers boosted their advantage to 3 ½ games over Cincinnati in the NL West by defeating the Reds 3-1 at Riverfront Stadium. But it was more a case of bungled opportunities on the part of the Reds than outstanding play on the part of the Dodgers which enabled Los Angeles to win the opener of the three-game set.

The Reds were guilty of stranding 15 runners against Don Sutton and reliever Mike Marshall as they lost to the Dodgers for the 10th time in 13 outings.

Steve Garvey staked the Dodgers to a 3-0 lead with a three-run homer in the first inning but that was the last offensive threat Los Angeles mounted against loser Don Gullett and two relievers. Meanwhile, the Reds threatened repeatedly against Sutton, finally driving him out of the game in the eighth when Dan Driessen hit a leadoff homer and Cesar Geromino followed with a single.

Marshall pitched out of that eighth inning jam but got into trouble himself in the ninth when he loaded the bases with two out. Dave Concepcion, a dangerous clutch hitter, got a chance to pull it out for the Reds but hit a soft liner to Garvey that ended the game.

In other NL games, Pittsburgh edged Montreal 2-1, St. Louis blanked New York 3-0, Houston nipped San Diego 4-3, San Francisco defeated Atlanta 2-0 and Philadelphia topped Chicago 4-3.

Pirates 2, Expos 1

Ed Kirkpatrick's bases-empty homer in the second inning provided Dock Ellis with the run he needed to defeat Montreal for the Pirates' 12th win in their last 14 games.

Cardinals 3, Mets 0

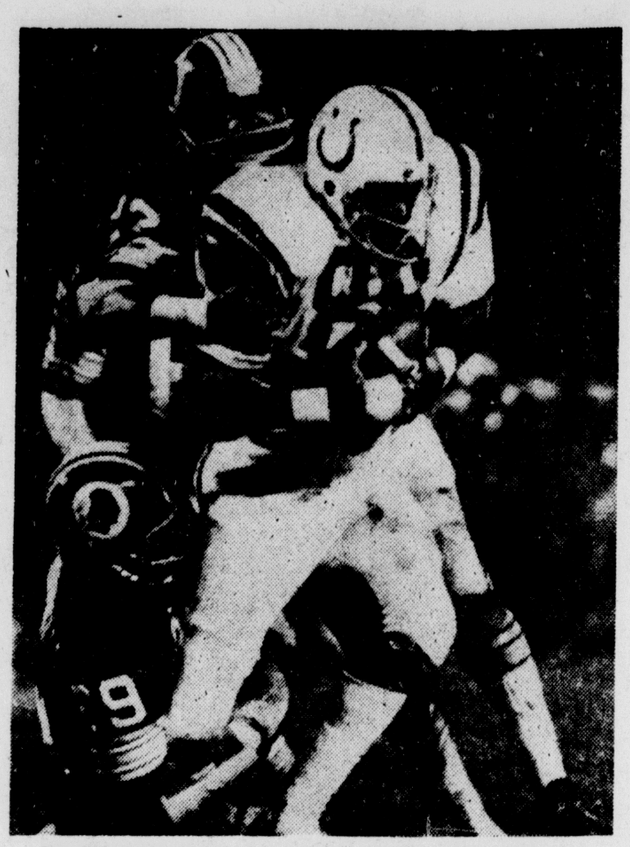

Lou Brock became only the second player in modern major league history to steal 100 bases in a season when he pilfered two to lead the Cardinals to victory over the Mets. Brock, who raised his season stolen base total to 101, is only three steals shy of Maury Wills' modern record of 104 set in 1962.

Astros 4, Padres 3

Rookie Greg Gross scored one run and drove in another to pace the Astros' triumph over the Padres.

Phillies 4, Cubs 3

Dick Ruthven scattered eight hits and Dave Cash drove in one run and scored another to give the Phillies a victory over the Cubs.

THAT'S ENOUGH — Dave Robinson (89) and Ken Houston of the Redskins brought Baltimore's John Andrews to a halt last night in the second quarter of a National Football League preseason game in Washington. Andrews gained short yardage on a pass from Marty Domres. (UPI Telephoto)

NFL ROUNDUP

A Big Question On Making Cuts

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The strike-riddled National Football League exhibition season winds up this weekend with five game today and three on Sunday and the big question in most coaches' minds is what to do next Tuesday.

That's the day rosters must be pared to the 47-player limit and most clubs, having no cutdown guidelines this year because of the player strike, still have as many as 65-70 players in camp.

The league office itself is trying to figure out what kind of waiver system to use Tuesday when nearly 400 players suddenly become available. It could become almost a second player draft.

The New York Jets are in Berkeley, Calif., today to face Oakland while tonight Cleveland is at Detroit, New Orleans at Houston, Miami at Chicago and San Diego at Minnesota. The pre-season winds up Sunday with Los Angeles at San Francisco, Philadelphia at New England and Atlanta at Denver.

In action last night, the Green Bay Packers nipped the Cincinnati Bengals 26-24, the Washington Redskins edged the Baltimore Colts 7-6, the Buffalo Bills downed the New York Giants 23-17 in overtime and the Kansas City Chiefs bombed the St. Louis Cardinals 31-16.

Packers 26, Bengals 24

Chester Marcol's 47-yard field goal as time ran out lifted the Packers over Cincinnati. Marcol's kick came only 29 seconds after the Bengals had taken the lead for the first time on a 24-yard pass from Wayne Clark to John McDaniel.

Redskins 7, Colts 6

Billy Kilmer threw a 15-yard touchdown pass to Charley Taylor in the third period to rally the Redskins over Baltimore.

Duane Thomas, reinstated by Washington Coach George Allen earlier this week after an altercation with Assistant Coach Charley Waller, played much of the second half and gained 19 yards in nine carries.

Bills 23, Giants 17

Dwight Harrison intercepted a Randy Johnson pass to set up a four-yard TD run by Wayne Mosley in sudden death overtime that lifted Buffalo over the Giants.

Chiefs 31, Cardinals 16

Len Dawson and Mike Livingston threw two TD passes each and Willie Lanier set up a field goal with a third-quarter interception, leading the Chiefs over St. Louis.

49ers, Rams Show Backs

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams and San Francisco 49ers, seemingly clubs moving in opposite directions, close out the National Football League exhibition season tomorrow at Candlestick Park.

The Rams, who dethroned the 49ers as NFC West champions last year after San Francisco had won the division title three years in a row, come to tomorrow's game with a 4-1 record, including four victories in a row, while the 49ers have lost all five of their starts.

The closest San Francisco came to a victory was last Monday night against Oakland when the 49ers bowed 20-19 on a fourth quarter score.

Quarterback Steve Spurrier, who'll be No. 1 this year, and running backs Larry Schreiber and Wilbur Jackson made creditable showings against the Raiders and have been penciled in for as much action as they would like against the Rams.

Schreiber is coming back from a leg injury which sidelined him for 10 games last year while Jackson, the club's No. 1 draft pick, is mending from a severe ankle sprain suffered prior to training camp.

Defensive back Mike Holmes, a No. 1 pick in 1973, comes off the injured list and will play tomorrow for San Francisco. However, wide receiver Terry Beasley and middle linebacker Frank Nunley have been placed on the injured list and will not play. Beasley has a bruised shoulder and Nunley a broken bone in his right thumb.

Los Angeles' key to success in the exhibition season has been its running game, which has averaged 5.2 yards a crack. The key rushers have been John Cappelletti (245 yards), Rob Scribner (239) and Cullen Bryant (217).

The Rams' three quarterbacks—John Hadl, James Harris and Ron Jaworski—have had equal time on the field thus far but coach Chuck Knox is expected to go most of the way tomorrow with Hadl, who is after all, No. 1.

The game is expected to come close to a sellout, which means a crowd of about 60,000. Game time is 1 p.m. PDT. In exhibition games over the years the Rams hold a 16-6 edge and are 29-17-2 in regular season action.

WFL ROUNDUP

Florida Shows A Hidden Ace

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The Florida Blazers had an ace up their sleeves last night.

The Blazers, the top defensive team in the World Football League but hurting for offense, unleashed rookie Tommy Reamon against the New York Stars and he responded with a record-breaking 179-yard performance as Florida won 17-15 and took sole possession of first place in the Eastern Division.

Reamon, starting for the first time this season, sloshed through the mud and heavy rain in New York 33 times to break the WFL single-game rushing record set only Monday by the Stars' Bob Gladieux.

Reamon's 28-yard run in the first quarter gave Florida a 7-0 lead and Les Perry boosted it to 10-0 when he kicked a 37- yard field goal that hit the crossbar and bounced over. Tom Sherman's 29-yard pass to Bert Askson cut it to 10-7 but Bob Davis passed five yards to Greg Latta for a 17-7 lead.

Sherman threw a 13-yard TD pass to Kreg Kapitan and then hit Gladieaux for the action point to make it 17-15 and he had New York on the Blazers' 23 with less than two minutes left. But a costly delay of game penalty and a huge loss attempting to pass wiped out the Stars' hopes.

The torrential downpour which began two hours before gametime held the crowd to only 3,830, though 14,000 tickets had been sold.

In the only other action last night, the Southern California Sun edged the Detroit Wheels 10-7 before only 2,000 at Ypsilanti, Mich., the smallest WFL crowd this year, and the Storm topped the Hawaiians 15-8 before 15,551 at Portland. Tonight, Houston is at Memphis and Chicago is at Birmingham.

Sun 10, Wheels 7

James McAlister caught a six-yard TD pass from Tony Adams with 4:09 left to lift the Sun over winless Detroit. The Wheels are 0-10 and Detroit owners met earlier yesterday to complete the necessary legal requirements to sell the team, probably next week.

Storm 15, Hawaiians 8

Rufus Ferguson raced 44 and 51 yards for touchdowns to lead Portland over the Hawaiians.

San Marin May Be On Rise

(Fourth in a series of profiles on 1974 Marin County high school football teams.)

The only way San Marin High School's football team can go is up, and their ascent in the Marin County Athletic League in 1974 may be dramatic.

With 10 returning starters and a new head coach, the Mustangs figure to improve markedly on a 5-5 overall record and a 1-5 league mark that put them in last place.

"We're changing our philosophy a little bit," say new head coach John Treu, who worked as an assistant under head coach Bob Martin last year. "We're going to try to be a little more physical."

Treu should have the material to do just that. The line will be anchored both ways by 6-foot, 220-pound tackle Craig Garberino, and 210-pound fullback Bob Bennett will be in the backfield.

Premier among the returners is tailback Wayne Roche, the only junior on the all-MCAL first team last year. He also plays on defense as a cornerback.

Other returning starters are Dave Harder, who will switch from defensive back to quarterback, wingback Brett Schaake, tackle Jeff Doar, linebackers Dave Azevedo and Jeff Trahan, defensive end Glenn Stevenson and safety Kevin McAskill.

The Mustangs have 14 lettermen, and, according to Treu, "a lot of good people up from the J.V.s."

"I feel very positive," he says. "I've been encouraged by what I see so far."

San Marin's opening game is Sept. 14 against Canyon at Castro Valley.

Johnson Tabbed By Nate

Combined AP & UPI

OAKLAND — Center Nate Thurmond, traded by Golden State to Chicago for Clifford Ray, does not think Ray will replace him as the Warriors' starting pivot man. The Bulls also swapped cash and a first draft choice for Thurmond.

The veteran star predicted yesterday that 7-foot George Johnson would play pivot for the Warriors. "To me, he's the man of the future," said Thurmond. Johnson has backed Thurmond effectively the past two seasons.

As for his own trade, Thurmond said "it's disappointing," but added that "pro basketball is a business, and you've got to expect to be traded. You play for money."

BOWLING

Memorable Time For Young San Rafael Gal

It has been a memorable three weeks for a nomadic San Rafael bowler.

Nancy McPherson, 18, was a member of the "Castle Queens," a five-woman bowling team from L and L Castle Lanes in San Francisco. The gals won 11 matches in Japan and one against the Hawaiian All-Stars.

In Japan Aug. 11-27, Caryn Ching, McPherson, Janice Kanui, Kelly Parridy and Nancy Almadova bowled 72 games. Nancy had a 190 average with a series high of 647.

"We were all invited back to Japan next year. I plan to go back," Nancy said yesterday.

Following their 20 days of exhibitions in Tokyo, Osaka and Kyoto, the girls ventured to Hawaii. "We won three games there (Hawaii)," she said. Nancy paced the San Franciscans with a 550.

The two-day Hawaii stopover climaxed the promotional tour financed by Brunswick Corp.

From there, Nancy flew home, then to Los Angeles to compete on Labor Day weekend as the Northern California champion in the Junior Girls Elims State finals. The Castle Girl of the Year finished second to Donna Adamek, 2,327 to 2,298. Sally Pruitt was third at 2,140. Play was held in San Diego and Canoga Park.

Said Nancy: "Donna won on the 10th frame of the 12th game. She struck out." The score: 224-220.

For now, Nancy will concentrate on her administration of law studies at College of Marin. But she will not forsake bowling. Miss McPherson will continue bowling twice on Saturdays until her next tournament around Christmas at Castle Lanes.

GREENBRAE AND NAVE lanes were in the period between the end of summer and beginning of winter leagues. They had no scores to report, but at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael:

In tires, it's not the price you pay. It's how often you pay it.

This steel belted Radial Tire carries the Michelin Warranty* for 40,000 miles on the original tread. (Many owners get much more.) Puncture resistant Michelins give precise steering control, and smooth driving comfort. So stop in and start saving today.

40,000 MILE WARRANTY
*Michelin's Warranty for X Radial Highway Passenger Tire shown here covers tread life, normal road hazards (excluding repairable punctures) and defects in workmanship and materials for 40,000 miles, when tire is used on passenger vehicles in normal service in continental United States, except Alaska. Credit or refund (at Michelin's option) is equal to current actual selling price multiplied by percentage of warranted mileage not run on tire.

SAVE ON YOUR FUEL COSTS
Because of the lower rolling resistance of Michelin "X" radials over conventional bias-ply tires, you might get as much as 10% savings over your present gas consumption. This means more miles per gallon of gas. It means dollars saved. And it means that less fuel has to come out of the economy to keep your car on the road.

MURRAY OLDERMAN

A's Rudi Most Underestimated

THE TIPOFF:

Look for a million-dollar tampering suit involving a player on a west coast team who has played out his option, to jog pro baseketball. Hint: the Los Angeles Lakers will be on the subpoena-receiving end.

Q. Who in your opinion is the most underestimated player? Joe Rudi, Jeff Burroughs, Ed Brinkman, Mark Belanger, or maybe even Jorge Lebron? — Ted Homan, Livermore, Calif.

Jorge Lebron? That, dear readers, is the name of the 14-year-old kid shortstop from the Caribbean signed by scout Reuben Amaro of the Phillies. He's been sent out to Auburn (N.Y.) and in his first appearance walked and made out and scored a run. He also plays only the first three innings of twi-nighters because state law say he can't work after 7 p.m. — he's got to go home and go to bed. Back to the question — I feel the Athletics' Rudi, a mechanically superb player, is the most overlooked star in baseball. He contributes as much to the champs, offensively and defensively, as the more spectacular Reggie Jackson.

Q. In the 1973 World Series between the New York Mets and the Oakland A's, who was the home plate umpire on the controversial call when Bud Harrelson was out at home? Was he out? And if he was safe, does the home plate umpire know he made a bad call? — Jim Swett, Saint Paul, Neb.

The home plate umpire was Augie Donatelli, a respected veteran arbiter. And like famed Bill Klem, he never called one wrong in his life. But, of course, Klem never had instant replay to check up on him. The World Series films show that Harrelson apparently was safe when he tried to score in the 10th inning of the second game (Joe Rudi made the throw from left field on Felix Millan's short fly ball). Anyhow, the Mets won the game in the next inning. I haven't probed Donatelli's psyche on the play.

Q. What is the record for most runs scored in the last of the ninth inning in a come-from-behind victory? — Steve Manley, Reidsville, N.C.

Seymour Siwoff of the Elias Bureau in New York, baseball's (and football's) official statisticians, says no such precise records are kept. But on June 15, 1925, the Philadelphia Athletics scored 13 runs in the bottom of the eighth inning (their last time at bat) in old Shibe Park to nose out the Cleveland Indians. On June 20, 1912, the Boston Braves scored 10 runs in the bottom of the ninth — but lost anyhow to the New York Giants, who scored seven in the top of ninth for a 21-12 victory. The modern record for runs scored by one team in the ninth is 12 — by the Giants on Aug. 23, 1961, including five home runs, as they won, 14-0.

Q. I saw many rookies in the NFL wearing the numbers of veterans in exhibition games. Did the veterans get their old numbers back when they returned? — Dave George, Martinez, Calif.

Those mean old owners wouldn't deprive their loyal old employes of their sacred numbers. Actually, you probably saw the familiar numbers used in practice sessions. Rookies get new game numbers unless the team has so many candidates it runs out of them.

PARTING SHOT:

And now comes the next great ripoff of sports by showbiz, with a professional volleyball league sponsored by film makers Dave Wolper and Dave Gerber, plus record producer Barry Gordy and a couple of ABC-TV types — obviously to insure that staple of success, a TV contract. Timming of the announcement was perfect — the day Nixon resigned.

WANNA BET, BOBBY?

Bobby Riggs, 55, America's best known senior citizen hustler, Thursday climbed aboard a motorcycle for the first time in his life. He was determined to ride it 640 miles from Las Vegas to Evel Knievel's Snake River jump site near Twin Falls, Idaho. Knievel bet Riggs $25,000 that Riggs couldn't complete the ride on a 175 cc motorcycle before Knievel's heralded jump tomorrow.

Trevino 'Whups' Firestone

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — In recent years, Lee Trevino has avoided the long Firestone Country Club course like it was the plague, saying he couldn't play it up to Trevino standards.

About the only appearances the Merry Mexican would make at Firestone were in the World Series of Golf, the prestigous late summer get together of the year's Masters, U.S. Open, British Open and PGA champions.

Top prize is $50,000 with $15,000 for second, $7,500 for third and $5,000 for fourth and last place, and Trevino has usually been content to "take my $5,000 and run."

After yesterday's World Series practice round in which he chattered his way to a twoover-par 72 on the 7,180-yard layout, Trevino, the PGA champion, pronounced: "I've got it whupped."

Trevino's competition comes from South African Gary Player who won both the Masters and the British Open titles, U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin and host pro Bobby Nichols, who won the Canadian Open and gained entrance to the Series thanks to Player's two wins.

Trevino, who would have had an even-par 70 except for a double bogey seven on the 16th hole when he hit a wedge into the lake fronting the green, kept up a constant banter during the round, but promised "tomorrow we'll get down to business because $50,000 is a lot of money and I need it."

While Trevino enjoyed his round of fun making, Irwin, who had to birdie two of the last three holes for a five-over 75 said, "listening to that guy all day will kill you," and let it be known he did not appreciate the distraction.

Player is competing in his fifth World Series and has a winning streak of three, taking the event in 1965, 1968 and 1972.

Player shot a 70 yesterday but wasn't satisifed with his game.

Nichols, who played in his only other World Series in 1964 four years before he became Firestone's head pro, turned in a 71 in Friday's practice round.

"I feel like I've played better," Nichols said. "I've got to go practice."

Softball Playoff

MacArthur's beat Independent Electric, 6-4, last night in a playoff for the San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Department adult softball summer league title at Memorial Park. The best two-out-of-three series resumes Monday at 5:30 p.m. with the second game at Memorial park involving the same teams.

MEMO TO PARENTS FROM THE INDEPENDENT-JOURNAL

Consider for a moment the miracle that is your child's brain. The brain-residence of intelligence and memory, initially a clean slate on which to record experiences and knowledge, things past and learned and obedience to habits — including good and bad health habits. Parents can largely fashion good habits, or change harmful ones. It is never too late to start with children of any age. Dr. Theodore Klumpp, a noted advocate of physical exercise and fitness, says "most of us don't wear out — we rust out.

"The biological rusting which shortens lives and brings on physical complaints can start in early childhood.

Forming healthy habits is the concern of a significant new series from the Independent-Journal and Associated Press newsfeatures — YOUR CHILD'S HEALTH.

Authored by AP Science writers Alton Blakeslee and Brian Sullivan, YOUR CHILD'S HEALTH is a 10 part series scheduled to start in the I-J Monday, September 9. Among other things, the series will cover mental as well as physical health, exercise and its relation to the heart, food and health, allergies, dental problems and "when to call the doctor."

You should read

YOUR CHILD'S HEALTH,

a new 10 part series starting Monday, September 9 in the Independent-Journal, your friend in Marin.

A LOT MORE — Exhibits at the John F. Kennedy Library, which may be built in Cambridge, Mass., will include more than "memorabilia," such as these U.S. archive busts.

Kennedy Library To Be Living Memorial

By STEPHEN WEBBE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — "It's not going to be a come-and-see museum, it's going to be a come-and-think museum."

That is the reaction of one Cambridge resident to the unique musuem proposed for the John F. Kennedy Library which may be built here.

Utilizing documents, objects, audio-visual material, and oral histories, the museum will not only spotlight President Kennedy and his administration — but also examine the office of the presidency, as he conducted it.

Of nine presentations planned for the museum, four will deal with President Kennedy's career, personality, assassination, and legacy. The remainder will be concerned with the making of a president, a president's function and decision making, a typical presidential day and the nation's view of the presidency.

"We'll be looking at the role of money, organization, luck and charisma in the making-of-the-president exhibit," observes Dan H. Fenn, director of the John F. Kennedy Library which is temporarily located at the Federal Archives and Records Center in Waltham, Mass.

President Kennedy's Oval Office desk will be incorporated into the presentation to visualize the pressures and activities of a typical presidential day. "We might compare Kennedy's day with Lincoln's or Woodrow Wilson's," ventures Fenn.

The presidential decision-making exhibit will confront visitors with national and international crises that President Kennedy faced and invite them to select solutions before disclosing how the former President acted.

There will be no reference to the controversy surrounding his assassination. "We don't plan to get into that sort of issue," Fenn emphasizes.

The themes examined in the museum's presentations all were developed by archivists and museum staff at the Waltham center.

Fenn points out that the John F. Kennedy Library contains about 22 million documents, including President Kennedy's files, selected records of government agencies from 1961 to 1963, and more than 125 collections of professional papers of leading public figures of the day.

Fenn stresses that the Kennedy Library now is and will continue to be "a major resource for scholars seeking to understand the main issues and personalities in politics and government of mid-20th-century America."

The library also has an oral history program which was founded in 1964. The library staff continues to add to its collection of more than 1,100 interviews ranging from 15 minutes to 20 hours in length.

All the interviewees are men and women from the United States and abroad who either participated in or witnessed the careers of President Kennedy and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy or who played leading roles in the great issues of the day.

The library's audiovisual collection includes about two million feet of movie film and video tape, 63,000 photographs, and thousands of sound recordings.

American Food Controls Found Not To Be Helpful

OTTAWA (UPI) — U.S. attempts to control food prices between August 1971 and April 1974 were ineffective and would have failed in Canada as well, according to a study by the Food Prices Review Board released yesterday.

The report said that "because of the international nature of agricultural markets and the need for flexibility in both production and marketing, a price control system of the kind attempted in the United States would appear to be unsuited for the food sector of a market-oriented economy."

The study began with a 25-year review of price data which showed "the pattern of change in food prices in Canada and the United States was remarkably similar."

U.S. and Canadian food prices during the control period were then compared because "if the U.S. food price experience during the controls period had been significantly better than that in Canada, a benefit of controls would be apparent."

The study showed "no significant change in the relationship of food prices between the two countries was recorded over the period as a whole when controls were in effect."

The report said that during the months January-May 1970 and the same months in 1974, "increases in retail food prices in both Canada and the United States were identical: 38 per cent."

PASSENGER CAR TIRE GUARANTEE

Montgomery Ward guarantees each of its passenger car tires for a specified number of miles when used on passenger cars or station wagons, except taxis. If your tire does not give you this mileage because of:
- defects in material or workmanship,
- normal road hazard failure,
- premature tread wearout (2/32 inches or less remaining);

Montgomery Ward will:
1. During the first 10% of guaranteed mileage, replace the tire free.
2. During the remaining guaranteed mileage, replace it for a prorata charge based on mileage used.

Nail punctures repaired free during the entire guaranteed mileage.

For guarantee service and adjustments, return tire to any Montgomery Ward branch with the Guarantee Booklet issued at the time of sale.

Charge after first 10% of guaranteed mileage based on selling price in effect at the time of return at branch to which returned, including federal excise tax.

Passenger tires used on taxicabs, and motor vehicles other than passenger cars are guaranteed on the same basis against defects in materials and workmanship only.

29 SUTTER COURT

From the 12-foot high beamed ceilings to the waterfall cascading into your fishpond, class is written all over this contemporary 3-bdrm., 2-bath home. Cul-de-sac, panoramic S.F. views, sunny patios, decks, low maintenance landscaping are only a few of the features in this super decorated, immaculate home. Owner will carry small second. Huge reduction to $79,500!!!

ACHIEVEMENT IN LUXURY!!

Superb design by Steinau and Kurtzman, together with master craftsmanship, complimenting one of Tiburon's most outstanding view sites, all combine into a unique blend for ultimate living. You will enjoy a sweeping 360° panorama from every room. The superb master suite alone is something to behold! Room for a pool, oak trees. We could go on and on, but you must see for yourself. $195,000.

No Business Is Like God's For Ex-Showman Murphy

By CLAIRE COX
Copley News Service

NASHVILLE — There's no business like God's business so far as Chuck Murphy is concerned.

There was a time when he thought show business was without compare. That was during the years he played the piano and sang in nightclubs, for recordings and on radio and television.

Then, at 35, married and the father of five children and with only a high school education, he decided to shuck it all to become a minister.

That meant going to both college and seminary, studying harder than many have to and supporting a family at the same time.

He managed to get through college in three years by attending classes winter and summer, and then at 38 entered seminary.

There, Murphy found among his classmates men ranging from 24 to 52 years of age. They included others who had changed careers in mid-life — a lawyer, a bellhop, a shoe polish manufacturer and an Army officer.

Murphy, now pastor of St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church in Nashville, maintains a busy schedule of speaking, evangelical preaching and conducting "teaching missions" for interdenominational groups.

HE HASN'T REGRETTED a minute of his 11 years in the ministry despite the fact that he works a lot harder than ever, and makes considerably less money than he once did.

"I believe I'm leading an abundant life now," he recently told a Nashville music industry prayer group at a dinner meeting.

For Murphy, the move from entertainment to the pulpit was not as radical as some might expect.

"I was just as good a Christian in the nightclub as I am in the pulpit," he said. "It was a kind of witnessing, my being in nightclubs and everyone knowing I was religious. I represent Jesus Christ wherever I go, whether in the pulpit, in nightclubs or on the dance floor."

AS A CLERGYMAN, Murphy considers himself "coach and cheerleader." He is convinced that the real ministry of the church is performed by the lay people in it, with the pastor merely guiding the way.

"Christianity is like 'show and tell' in the first grade," he explained. "You have to tell people and show them how to witness. They have to have something to 'show and tell' about."

Murphy has summarized his views on Christianity and the ministry in a book appropriately entitled "There's No Business Like God's Business," issued by Abingdon Press, the Nashville-based publishing house of The United Methodist Church.

"As a latecomer to the ministry, I can truthfully say that I have found a much better, more exciting, and more satisfying business," he wrote.

AT THE SAME TIME, he finds that the majority of church members "do not know the basics of Christianity," just as was his case before he began studying for the ministry.

"Most laymen do not know the meanings of many important religious terms," he said, "and neither do they understand what the benefits and responsibilities of being a Christian are. Any other business in the world that had workers so uninformed and so poorly equipped would have closed up shop in less than one year's time."

After he was introduced at the music industry prayer group dinner, Murphy prefaced his remarks with a rollicking rendition of "Lazy River," which he played and sang with the same enthusiasm he always displayed on the nightclub circuit.

He explained that he had been a consistent churchgoer before he made his career change. As a teen-ager he played the organ in a Christian Science church, and as an adult he taught Sunday school.

"I got to doing more and more things around the church," he said. "I'm a ham. I love to entertain, but religious activities came to mean more and more to me. There was nothing dramatic about it. I'd say it was a gradual thing.

"MANY PEOPLE HAVE to have a tragedy to find Jesus. Not me. I had a great life then, but it was like hamburger compared to the steak I have now."

Murphy feels strongly that one does not have to have an emotional experience to be "saved." He is convinced, rather, that the will to help another person is an expression of Christian love.

"There is no such thing as Brownie-point religion," he added. "Many people have tried to make Christianity into a system of morals. They spurn dancing, for example. There is no such thing as earning salvation by being good. I may be good because I've been saved, but I'm not saved by being good.

"MOST CHRISTIANS don't really understand that. Many are trying to scare people out of hell and into heaven. You can't frighten people into being good."

Murphy acknowledged that when people see and hear him playing the piano, clapping his hands and singing, "their ministerial image is shaken."

"I am sure that it is difficult for people who had known me as a stagestruck kid and have followed my career in the entertainment field to see me now as a minister," he said. "All of us at one time or another have had a stereotyped picture of a minister."

HE ADMITS that his own preconceived ideas concerning preachers prevented him from considering the ministry as a vocation for many years.

"Ifinally realized that when God calls you to participate in His business, He does not take away any talents you had when you were in some other business," he explained.

Looking back on his life, Murphy is glad he had 20 years in show business for he has found it a great help in his ministry.

"In counseling people, I find I've either done it or been around it, so nothing shocks me," he explained. "I love the ministry."

REV. RAY BRINGHAM

Bringham To Conduct Renewal Day

Rev. Ray Bringham, international president of Inter-Church Renewal Ministry, will conduct the Day of Renewal from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. next Saturday at the Holiday Inn in San Rafael.

Reverend Bringham is an alumnus of Anderson College and of Phillips University College of the Bible. For 20 years he served on the general council of the Church of God. He came to California in 1962 to found Interchurch.

This is the last meeting of the group at Holiday Inn. The meeting the second Saturday in October will be held at the San Rafael Improvement Club at Fifth and H streets, San Rafael.

Outdoor Service

An outdoor worship service and Sunday School picnic will be held at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow at the Marinwood Community Center by the Resurrection Lutheran Church of 1100 Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael.

Series Of Classes Begins Wednesday

A fall series of 10 classes will start at 11 a.m. Wednesday at Unity-in-Marin at 24 H Street, San Rafael.

The lessons will be based on the book "How to be Successful and Happy," by Donald Curtis, minister of a Unity Church in Dallas, Tex. They will be taught by the church minister Candida Wright.

Discussion Group

A public intercircular discussion group will meet at 8 p.m. each Wednesday this month at the Marin County Science of Mind Center, Corte Madera Recreation Hall on Tamalpais Drive, Corte Madera. Further information may be had by telephoning 924-2818 or 454-7375.

Gospel Fellowship Due In Marin Soon

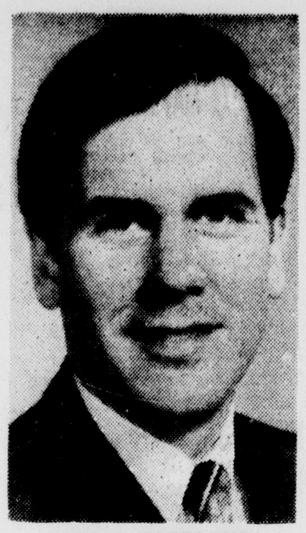

The Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International is scheduled to come to Marin County, probably holding its first meeting in October.

In the meantime, a breakfast meeting is held each Thursday morning to help establish it in Marin. Those interested in the breakfast meetings may get further information by calling 457-2159.

Japan Ministers Get Pension Grant

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Board for World Ministries of the United Church of Christ has given a grant of $100,000 to a pension fund for ministers of the church in Japan.

In announcing the grant, the church said that because of the Japanese defeat in World War II and continuing inflation, the savings of many retired Japanese pastors had been wiped out.

Education With Films At Church

A new concept in Christian communication, using pictures to illustrate messages from the Bible will start at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow at the Marin Covenant Church which meets in the auditorium of the Miller Creek School at 2255 Las Gallinas Avenue.

The series of 16 millimeter films will be used each Sunday through October. They give the audience a chance to see the geographical, historical and cultural settings in Turkey that are mentioned in the first three chapters of the Book of Revelation.

Pastor Copeland was sent by the Marin Covenant Church to see the Biblical lands of Turkey firsthand three years ago. With Turkey so much in the news today, people will have a fresh interest in these cities, he said.

Churches to be covered in Revelation include: Patmos, the island where the Apostle John received the Revelation; Ephesus; Smyrna; Pergamum; Thyatira; Sardis; Philadelphia and Laodiciea.

These films have been developed by Dr. Win Arn, Christian educator and religious film producer.

Following the worship service at 10:50 a.m., two adult classes will be offered. Associate Pastor Marvin Fogleman will teach a course on "Marriage Enrichment and Communication," and Copeland will teach a course on "The Life and Teachings of Jesus."

Special Sunday Programs Set

"A Back to School Sunday" will be observed tomorrow by the Calvary Baptist Church, Baltimore and Holcomb avenues, Larkspur.

Sunday school promotion will be made at 9:45 a.m. at Sunday School.

"Sinners in the Hands of an Angry God" is the 11 a.m. sermon. It was made famous in 1741 when preached by Jonathan Edwards and sparked revival in the American Colonies.

The day will be climaxed by the movie special at 6:30 p.m. "A Thief in the Night."

A RELIGIOUS MAN

Church Leaders Back Ford

By GEORGE CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Religious leaders are registering warm support for the new man in the White House, President Ford, including his moves toward some sort of amnesty for Vietnam draft resisters.

Major religious groups have urged such action.

There also were tentative gestures toward more direct communication between U.S. church leadership and the presidency, a channel that largely has been shut off under former President Richard M. Nixon.

President Ford is a "sincerely relgious person himself" who "takes the churches seriously," observes the Rev. Dr. Robert J. Marshall, head of the Lutheran Church in American.

Recalling that Ford twice met with denominational executives while a member of Congress, Dr. Marshall suggests in a letter to him that he hold similar meetings in his new capacity, adding:

"All of us can benefit from understanding each other in this time when both government officials and leaders in the churches have reason to be concerned with morality, justice and the welfare of people."

Give-and-take meetings with church leaders had been a common custom in past administrations, including those of Presidents Harry S Truman, Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy, but lapsed under President Lyndon B. Johnson and church criticism of the Vietnam War

Nixon shunned such confrontations, except for the ceremonial White House services over which he presided and which were dropped in the latter part of his administration. They didn't allow for discussion, however.

Ford has said he won't revive them. An Episcopalian, he plans to continue worshipping at Immanuel-Church-on-the-Hill in Alexandria, Va. As a congressman, he also has been active in Capitol prayer groups but this probably will be limited in his present role.

Recalling his meetings with church leaders at congressional prayer breakfasts, the Rev. Dr. Robert V. Moss, president of the United Church of Christ commended him in a letter for his "devotion to high moral standards."

Concerning his stand favoring some form of amnesty for draft evaders, in contrast to Nixon's opposition to it, Dr. Moss told the President:

"Your compassionate concern for the welfare of our youth ... is especially welcome. Your initiation of a process under which they may be reunited with their homes and homeland is a first step toward justice ..."

Bishop James Rausch, general secretary of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, called it a "constructive step," suggesting that unconditional amnesty should be considered in view of the need for national healing.

The President has said amnesty should be conditioned on some kind of alternative service, and is now consulting various groups on the matter.

Evangelist Sets Services In Novato

Rev. John P. S. Humphrey, graduate of West Point Military Academy and an Army officer, will conduct evangelist services starting tomorrow through Wednesday at the First Baptist Church of Novato.

Reverend Humphrey will preach at the church at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. tomorrow through Wednesday. He will also conduct morning services at 10 a.m. Monday through Wednesday.

When Humphrey graduated from the military academy, he received an officer's commission in the Army, a lifelong ambition. He later received a calling to the ministry.

He was pastor of the First Baptist Church of Novato in 1962 through 1964 when the present building was constructed.

When he left the Novato church he became an evangelistic preacher. He now heads up his own organization, Harvest Evangelism, Inc., composed of a three member team, an associate evangelist, a music director and himself. They conduct evangelistic meetings across the nation.

Baptist Church Garden Show

The third annual Tiburon Baptist Church art and garden show will be held from 1 to 6 p.m. next Saturday at the church at 445 Greenwood Beach Road off Tiburon Boulevard.

Art, photography and handwork will be displayed. There will be exhibits of painting, needlepoint, decoupage and other handwork. H. Lyn Elder of Mill Valley will display his handmade wind and string instruments created from ancient designs.

Connie Foster of San Francisco will present a program featuring autoharp singing, puppets and dramatic characterizations.

The Land Of Paul Will Be Subject Of Slide Lecture

"In the Land of Paul" will be the subject of an illustrated lecture by Rev. Muriel E. Alstrom at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 18 at Duncan Hall, First Presbyterian Church, Ross and Kensington streets, San Anselmo.

She will give a slide presentation and narrative of her study and research covering the territory of Paul's ministry from Tarsus to Rome. She will discuss Middle Eastern Countries, Greece and Rome, the territories in which St. Paul lived and worked.

The lecture is being sponsored by the Marin Center of Parapsychology and Metaphysics.

Reverend Alstrom is the author of several books including "You Are Important" and the "Miracle of You" for adults and two children's books, "Through Little Eyes" and "Mr. Buckeye Nut." Her book-length manuscript on the world of St. Paul is with a London publisher.

She has been an ordained minister of the Universal Church of the Master since 1973 and is founder and director of Creative Thinking, Inc. a non-profit religious and educational organization since 1965.

Award-Winning Film Set At Church In Larkspur

The award-winning film, "A Thief in the Night," will be shown at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow at Calvary Baptist Church, Baltimore and Holcom avenues in Larkspur.

Doors will open at 6 p.m. and seating will be limited to 150 persons.

This full-color motion picture is about Bible prophecy, showing what can happen when Jesus Christ returns. It is the story of Patty, played by Patty Dunning, an average girl caught up in living for the present with little concern for the future. What happens when this thinking catches up with her provides the drama in the movie.

The film was named "Best Film of the Year" by the National Evangelical Film Foundation and Miss Dunning was named the "outstanding female actress of the year."

"A Thief in the Night" has been shown to more than three million people in its first year.

Education Program Hours Are Slated

New fall hours for the Christian Education program will be 9:30 to 10:20 a.m. starting tomorrow at the Redwoods Presbyterian Church, 110 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur.

The first session will be to meet the teaching staff and register for classes, learn about the study courses for both children and adults and see the film, "William," a movie for all ages.

Confirmation Class Offered

Confirmation class for seventh graders will start at 10 a.m. next Saturday at Trinity Lutheran Church, 333 Woodland Avenue, San Rafael.

Parents should enroll their children beforehand so that study materials can be ordered.

Besides the Saturday class, the children are obligated to attend a class each Sunday at 9:30 a.m.

Marinites Attend Baha'i Meeting

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jones of San Rafael attended the Baha'i International Youth Conference last month in Hilo, Hawaii.

The conference took up the challenges facing youth in today's society. The conference was sponsored by the National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the Hawaiian Islands. It was the first Baha'i conference ever held in the islands.

LOVES RANCHING

Joel McCrea Fits Role Perfectly: Real Cowboy

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — When Joel McCrea was aksed to narrate "The Great American Cowboy," a documentary feature now in release, it was a case of typecasting at its most perfect.

For McCrea was a bona fide cowhand before he was a movie star and in the former capacity rode the range near the acres he now oversees as a ranch owner.

His ranch is near West Lake, a luxurious, semiresort suburb of Los Angeles, built on a range McCrea once worked as a hand for the Russell brothers.

As vigorous as ever (he rides every day and goes body surfing with his sons), McCrea would continue to be an ornament to the screen, but, he says, he'd only leave his ranching to play a particularly good role or to contribute to a project in which he strongly believes.

"The Great American Cowboy" is an example of the latter.

As to the kind of role that might attract him to a studio, he confesses, "I would have liked to have made 'True Grit.' But I wouldn't have been offered the picture because Wayne's name means a lot more than mine now. And it should be cause he stayed in the business while I haven't. He deserved 'True Grit.'"

However, though McCrea hasn't worked as an actor in some time, he hasn't been forgotten by his fans who, in fact, seem to be increasing thanks to his old movies on television.

Asked which of his pictures remain highest in public regard, he says there are several.

"'Union Pacific' is always popular, because it's kind of a historic thing," McCrea explains, "and 'Buffalo Bill' is because it has the Indian situation in it.

"And people also like a little picture I made for United Artists called 'Four Faces West.' My wife (Frances Dee) and Charles Bickford and I were in it. It was a western in which not a shot was fired.

JOEL McCREA
Got start as a cowboy

"But the public will remember some of the darndest things, pictures I've almost forgotten."

McCrea's first movie job was leading horses for film companies.

"Then I went to school with De Mille's daughter and L. B. Mayer's daughter. So the minute I got out of college, having studied drama, I went to the fathers of these girls for help. De Mille was the one who came through first and made a test with Carole Lombard and me . . . ," he said.

"Then I played a bit in a Marion Davies picture and was invited to San Simeon (William Randolph Hearst's palatial estate) where you saw everybody, Louella, Hedda who was an actress at that time, L. B. Mayer and the whole group

"Anyway, from that little bit part with Marion, I got a stock contract at Metro for $100 a week, which in those days was a lot of money."

McCrea "rode along" with his Metro contract and then made a test at RKO for a picture called "Tanned Legs." He didn't get the part which went to Arthur Lake (later "Dagwood") whose name was bigger in the movie industry.

However, the studio put McCrea into its stock company and then into a picture called "The Silver Horde" with Jean Arthur, Evelyn Brent and Raymond Hatton, which took him to Alaska.

Almost immediately upon his return, he was approached by director Henry King who told him Will Rogers wanted him for the juvenile lead in his next film.

Rogers had seen a test McCrea had made for a role in a Janet Gaynor picture, and, though that part had gone to Charlie Farrell, Rogers had been impressed by the ex-cowboy.

"This picture," McCrea says of the film he made with Rogers, "changed my whole life."

THAT WAS the beginning of a friendship which deepened that night when Rogers asked McCrea to go to dinner with him, introduced him to Fox executives and announced, "I want this boy in all my pictures."

"An awful lot of people did things for me," McCrea says, "but I always credit Will Rogers with changing my whole career."

McCrea met his wife when he went on the set of "Little Women," a picture in which she was starring, to visit Jean Parker and Katharine Hepburn, two more stars of the film who were friends of his.

He married Frances Dee in 1933 and has been married to her ever since.

Of their three sons, two (including Jody, who was an actor for awhile) are ranchers and the third is in college.

Character Actor Otto Kruger Dies

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Character actor Otto Kruger, whose style typified the "mature professional man" in a stage, screen and television career that spanned nearly six decades, died yesterday on his 89th birthday.

The sandy-haired, gray-eyed actor succumbed at the Motion Picture and Television Hospital in Woodland Hills, where he was a director. He had been hospitalized since suffering a stroke early last month.

Born in Toledo, Ohio, Kruger was a success on the Broadway stage before World War I, appearing in George M. Cohan's "Young American" in 1913.

The 5-foot-7-inch player didn't believe that actors had to deliver their lines in the normal, exaggerated style of the times and was a pioneer of the modern natural delivery.

In the 1913 Cohan production, matinee idol William Simpson rocked back on his heels, rolled his eyes and bellowed to the audience, "Where is Annie tonight?"

Kruger stifled a yawn, knocked away some imaginary dust from his sleeve, and replied in a normal speaking voice, "She's outside."

A flabbergated Simpson shouted at the young actor, "What did you say?"

Kruger, putting his hands in his pockets, responded matter-of-factly "She's outside."

Cohan was watching the exchange in an orchestra seat and broke into laughter.

"Very soon after that," the suave Kruger recalled in an interview," the idea spread — that is, that actors could talk like people, and all of them began doing it."

Kruger made his first silent film, "Under the Red Robe," in 1920. His first big talking picture, the 1933 film "You're in My Heart," had him playing the romantic lead opposite Barbara Stanwyck. There followed a series of popular pictures for Kruger, including "The Prizefighter and the Lady," "Treasure Island," "The Women in His Life" and "Chained."

After a cycle of romantic roles in the 1930s, Kruger was cast as a heavy in the '40s. Some of his better known films were "Saboteur," "The Intruder," "Pay on Demand," "High Noon," "Magnificent Obsession."

DRAMA REVIEW

A Break With Usual Comedy In Novato

By GERALD GENESE

The Novato Community Players, a group which usually performs light pieces, broke that tradition last night by presenting "I Never Sang For My Father" as its opening play of the season.

Gale Nims directed Robert Anderson's very touching and beautifully-written play, the kind of work almost anyone can identify with.

"I Never Sang For My Father" is about the relationship between Tom Garrison, an 80-year-old, self-made man who is rigid, selfish and strong willed, and his son, Gene, who is dominated by his need for his father's love and acceptance. Jack Mitchell portrays the elder Garrison and Jack Whitcomb is cast as the son.

Because the father is adept at dominating people, Gene will never be his own man until he can tell his father to go to hell.

The Novato Players' production needs to be paced faster. It ran two and a half hours, too long for a two-act play.

Jack Mitchell is good in the difficult role of the father, because he shows us the cantankerous, self-centered nature of this insensitive man. Mitchell must speak louder, though, and present his lines more clearly.

When hs is not shuffling his feet, like one thinks an old man should, Mitchell is very good.

In the last 10 minutes of the play Jack Whitcomb is very strong, because he makes an emotional commitment to his character that was not in evident throughout most of the play.

Whitcomb should strive for vocal variety to make his character more interesting. His performance at the end shows he is capable of doing this.

In the small but vivid role of the mother, Ann Williams is very good. She gives a nice consistent performance.

This is not a great production. It is nice, however, to see the Novato Players strike out in a new direction. The group should be commended for its venture. And one hopes the players will continue in this direction to stretch their talents and stimulate their audiences.

"I Never Sang for My Father," will be performed tonight and next Friday and Saturday at the Novato Community Theater. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

"I NEVER SANG FOR MY FATHER" — A two-act play by Robert Anderson; directed by Gale Nims for the Novato Community Players; produced by Kathryn McLaughlin; lighting by Loren Roberts; set design by Gale Nims and Loren Roberts. The cast: Gene Garrison, Jack Whitcomb; Porter, Hal Campbell; Tom Garrison, Jack Mitchell; Margaret Garrison, Ann Williams; Mary, Marge Brooks; Nurse, Dorie Mithchell; Reverend Pell, Hill Dufresne; Marvin Scott, Ray Wertheimer; Dr. Mayberry, Dan Brown, and Alice, Chris Visser.

Reagan Sets Swing Into The Midwest

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan will make a four-day, five-state swing of the Midwest next week to campaign for Republican candidates for congress, his office announced yesterday.

The governor will speak at a reception for GOP candidate Clifford Carlson Tuesday night in Chicago.

On Wednesday, he will attend a rally and a luncheon for congressional candidate Henry Hyde in Cicero, Ill., and on night speak at a dinner in St. Louis for Republican U.S. Senate candidate Tom Curtis.

Reagan Thursday will attend an outdoor rally in Richmond, Ind., for GOP Rep. David Dennis and a dinner for Republican U.S. Senate candidate Marlo Cook in Louisville, Ky.

The governor will wind up the trip Friday by attending a luncheon for Rep. Roger Zion in Evansville, Ind., and a dinner for U.S. Senate candidate Leo Thorsness in Sioux Fallas, Sd.D. He will return to California Saturday.

Annual San Quentin Show On Sept. 28

Over 2,000 art and craft objects made by San Quentin inmates will go on sale Sept. 28 at the 20th annual arts and crafts show at the prison.

Paintings, wood crafts, leather work and jewelry will be on sale from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. An auction of some works will be held at 3 p.m.

Last year some 8,000 persons purchased a total of $28,000 worth of inmate works.

Sales must be in cash or by credit card, and no one in blue denims (the prison uniform) will be admitted to the show, according to Guenther Schmid, prison industrial arts instructor.

He said that inmates will receive 75 per cent of the sales price for paintings and 90 per cent of the price for crafts objects. The remainder will go to the inmate welfare fund.

Cello, Piano Recital Set On Friday

A recital of works for cello and piano will be given by Marin cellist Jed Barahal and Pianist Trudi Sorenson at 8:30 p.m. Friday at the Mill Valley Methodist Church.

The program will include works by Kabalevsky, Beethoven, Cassado and Granados.

Barahal, a 19-year-old scholarship student at Juilliard School of Music in New York City, has won the Marin Symphony young artist award and performed with the Marin Youth orchestra and the Mary Symphony.

Mrs. Sorenson is a graduate of Oberlin College and the Cleveland Institute of Music and did graduate study at Juilliard. Formerly on the faculty at Concordia College and Ohio University, she is a private teacher of piano and an instructor at the College of Marin.

Admission is $2 and $1 for students.

Accident Victim Said Satisfactory

Moses Leon Latno, 22, of Pacifica, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Novato General Hospital with scalp lacerations and possible internal injuries received in an auto accident yesterday.

Latno was northbound on Highway 101 north of the Ignacio overpass at 5:30 a.m. when his car overturned, according to the Highway Patrol. Latno told police he had fallen asleep at the wheel.

Cable TV Service Hike Due Study

The Novato City Council will consider a request for a rate increase from Liberty TV Cable Inc. at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Novato Community House.

The firm wants to hike the basic rate from $4.59 to $6 a month.

Los Angeles Will Hear Bay Opera

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Opera announced today that all 11 operas in its fall season will be broadcast by radio in the San Francisco and Los Angeles areas.

It will be the first time that the performances will be aired in Los Angeles. In the past operas have been broadcast live from the War Memorial Opera House by KKHI-AM-FM.

The KKHI broadcasts will be picked up in Los Angeles by KFAC-AM-FM and carried with financial support from Southern California Gas Co. The San Francisco series will be co-sponsored by Standard Oil of California and the L.J. and Mary C. Skaggs Foundation of Oakland.

In both areas the programs will be in quadraphonic sound.

The Editor's Notebook

Where Is Marin County Fair Headed?

We are always proud of our Marin County Fair, and this year is no exception. However, this year the pride is qualified by some uneasiness about the fair's future.

A remark we heard many times from those attending the fair at the Civic Center grounds went something like this: "I miss the old Art and Garden Fair. This one just doesn't seem to have it."

TRANSITION from the type of fair we had for many years at the Marin Art and Garden Center has not been easy. The change of setting has dictated a change in emphasis. The landscaping displays, the outdoor art exhibits, even the crafts booths lost some of their attraction when they lost the sylvan surroundings of the Art and Garden Center.

The problem has been, and remains: transition to what?

Should Marin have a county fair like those in more rural counties, centering largely on agricultural displays? Should it have a large area set aside for display of 4-H Club livestock and projects? Should it feature the county's beef and dairy cattle, grains and other farm products? Should it have an industrial section for displays of machinery and of Marin-manufactured items?

Many think it should.

Those in charge of the fair, however, don't seem able to make up their minds. Marcelle McCoy, the able fair manager, has received conflicting instructions. Everybody agrees that the fair must have a different emphasis because of its relocation, but there seems to be a lack of agreement on what that emphasis should be.

THERE IS ALSO another problem.

The Civic Center is a showpiece. It was not designed for utility, but to impress visitors. This should be evident to everyone by now. Certainly it is evident to those who have business at the Civic Center.

The master plan by the late Frank Lloyd Wright included a fairgrounds similarly designed as a showpiece — but without much thought of what the fair to be staged there should include. The county is more-or-less locked into that master plan — with whatever modifications may be made by Wright's successors at Taliesen West.

Any Wright-designed or Wright-successor-designed building project is tremendously expensive — a fact which has become all too apparent to Marin County taxpayers and officials. To develop the fairgrounds along the lines of the master plan will take years and much, much money. And when completed, it still may not be what is needed.

Because the Civic Center is a showpiece, the supervisors and their satraps naturally object to utilitarian barns and such, which are the standard complement of county fairgrounds. Thus the fair is left out in the open — except for such parts as can be put within the Veterans Memorial Building. It has neither trees nor buildings. It is, in effect, a very temporary interloper on the plush greensward of Frank Lloyd Wright's monument.

PERHAPS the supervisors need to realize that a monument or showpiece will not serve all the county's needs, and set apart an area of the Civic Center acreage for non-Frank Lloyd Wright development.

Otherwise our county fair may dwindle into nothingness for lack of character and lack of facilities.

— BRYCE W. ANDERSON

A Dire Prediction

We have heard many grave predictions for the weather in Marin this coming winter. Readers of such esoteric phenomena as sun sports, tea leaves and toad wart placement are telling us to batten down the hatches for early and very cold winter. In late August, some trees were already donning their autumnal cloak of vivid hues.

We tend to be believers. So we did our own bit of voodoo, and came up with a wet winter to boot. Rain all over the place, particularly heavy at night. Water up to the ankles when you stand in a hole.

The Raccoon Ramble

A friend in Mill Valley, old enough to remember the dances of the '20s, claims raccoons are doing the raccoon-ramble nightly on his roof. Ours seem to prefer the athletic '30s-type dances, like the big-apple where the participants throw each other about.

Raccoons on the roof are a risk of raccoon-befriending. And when the roof provider does not care for raccoons, as in the case of our Mill Valley friend, the midnight dance is a noisy invasion of his peace and tranquillity. We suggest he teach them the slow waltz.

Press And The National Interest — In United States, And In Peru

(Reprinted from Mexico (Mo.) Ledger)

Just a few weeks ago, the president seized eight major independent newspapers in Peru.

The president involved, of course, was Juan Velasco, the president of Peru.

He seized the newspapers and turned them over to the labor groups.

He said the move was "made in the national interest."

Dictators always seize newspapers "in the national interest."

Peru wasn't the only country in the world having a national crisis at the time.

We were having one.

"Despite the pain and sorrow, the world's oldest democracy is showing that it is still vigorous and flexible enough to cure its internal ailments in an orderly fashion — without revolution, without a coup, without tyranny," a Washington correspondent wrote.

So the press was not seized here.

It had uncovered the tragic facts of our crisis, the lying, the invasion of privacy, the stealing, the cover-up.

Sometimes it had done it very well; sometimes it had done it not so well.

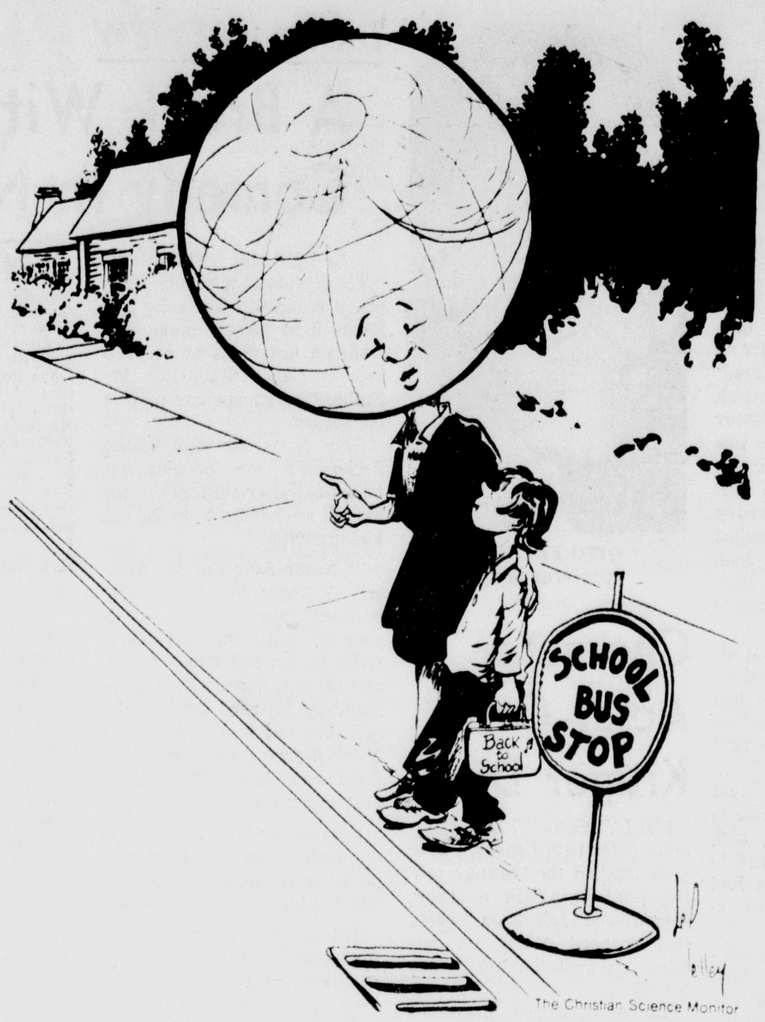

But it had uncovered the facts; and it was not being seized. Criticized, yes. But not seized by the government. . .

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

Today the nations of the world may be divided into tow classes — the nations in which the government fears the people, and the nations in which the people fear the government. — Amos Pinchot.

Everything made by man may be destroyed by man; there are no ineffaceable characters except those engraved by nature; and nature makes neither princes, nor rich men, nor great lords. — Jean Jacques Rousseau.

A mob is the scum that rises upmost when the nation boils. — John Dryden.

Apple Monopolists Prepare For Depression

Readers of the I-J and particularly those who-remember-when should be informed that a public service consortium of Marin community participants will be asking the city councils countywide to grant options for the use of street corners situate in their business districts for the location of apple vending stands which will be used to make a survival living for those who sign up for our apple vendor franchises.

Among our consortium directors are those who, more than four decades ago, in the time of the venerated Herbert Hoover, sold apples on American street corners with the sale slogan: Brother can you spare a dime?

Our apple vending franchises will require a nominal fee from those who make application and a fair share of that fee will go to the city councils who grant our consortium choice apple-selling locations.

This time around we hope to manage mass depression poverty in a business-like way. Bootleg apple sellers will not be tolerated and our official apple vendor stands will bear the official slogan, updated from our depression time of yore to read: Brother can you spare a quarter?

Pending establishment of our public service office, we feel certain that all communication media in the Marin community will follow the public service lead of the I-J in accepting all inquires about our Apple Vending project.

Hardly Good Bargain For Town's Taxpayers

I read with great interest your article on the Hahn Shopping Center Study (Sept. 4, Page 1). I find it incredible that the 1972 town council would have hired a firm to develop information on the economic impact of a shopping center when that firm had financial ties with the developer, and expect to receive an impartial report from them.

It also appears to be the "impossible dream" to expect the Army Corps of Engineers to make an independent study resulting from their own investigations, rather than the usual procedure of "relying" on information furnished by applicants, as your article implies. I guess what's good for the developer is good for the nation — eh, what?

Looks like Corte Madera is out $36,464, but the taxpapers save that much or more by the Corps not expending additional sums to develop their own findings. One cannot help conclude, however, that it's not an equitable bargain, even in these times of rising inflation!

We Need Watergate Back So We Can Forget Inflation

WASHINGTON — The people who cried, "Let's forget about Watergate so we can get on with the business of running the country" are now singing another tune. Roger Petulant, a neighbor, who is furious with the way the press played up Watergate, walked over to my driveway the other day and said: "All you guys ever write about now is the sagging economy. Why don't you put the economy behind you so we can get on with the business of running the country?"

I explained to Roger that it wasn't my decision to make the economy the major issue of the month. I was on vacation and some subordinate chose it as the big news story to replace Watergate. "If I had been here," I said, "I would have gone with how much money Nelson Rockefeller has."

"WELL," SAID PETULANT, "people are getting sick and tired of you guys picking on government spending and two-digit inflation all the time. Good grief, we've always had government spending and inflation. What's the big deal about a sagging economy?"

"It isn't just government spending, Roger," I said. "It's also the stock market which has gone to hell, the bank loan rates that have soared to the skies, and the price of food and oil. We can't just close our eyes to these things."

"Why not? If you ask me," Petulant said, "I think you guys just cooked up the sagging economy to sell newspapers."

"NOW, WAIT a minute, Roger," I said angrily, "I warned you that the day we stopped printing stories about Watergate we'd all be in trouble. Watergate kept this country going for two years. We had inflation, high grocery prices and automobile cost raises before but no one cared.

"The country went blithely along wallowing in Watergate and everyone was satisfied to read about nothing but the evil concocted in the White House. The truth is, Roger, we needed Richard Nixon and his merry crew to make us forget what was really going on. Once he resigned, we had no choice but to write about the sagging economy."

"Why don't you write about President Ford?" Petulant asked.

"We have, Roger, we have. But he's on a honeymoon and how much can you write about a guy on a honeymoon? Gerry Ford is a nice guy — if he wasn't, we wouldn't call him Gerry. But when it comes to hard news he's never going to replace a sagging economy.

"I STILL THINK you could find something good to write about inflation."

"We're trying, Roger. Do you know what it's like to be a news editor and have to decide whether to put the economy on the front page or 'Kurt Waldheim, man of the year'? Or 'Is Latin America drifting toward the center?' Those are the kind of stories we've had to deal with since Watergate fizzled out.

"The other day an editor called me up and said, "I've got the choice of leading with a series titled "The Troubled Strip Miner" or "Swinging Scranton, Pa." Which one do you think I ought to use? So don't complain to me, Roger. You were the one who wanted us to put Watergate behind us. Without Nixon to kick around anymore, we're all stuck with a sagging economy."

"Maybe Nixon will get indicted?" Petulant said hopefully.

"Perhaps," I said, "but don't get your hopes up. President Ford could pardon him, and then it will only be a one-day story."

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER

President Ford comes out against the proposed 10-cent added tax on gasoline. There's a man who's used to reading newspapers, magazines and popularity charts.

Ford will support both Democrats and Republicans who are devoted to fiscal restraint. In other words, he'll be even-handed if they'll be tight-fisted.

Things can't be all wrong in this country when Bert Parks is preparing for another Miss America contest and Admiral Rickover is rapping the Navy.

JOSEPH C. HARSCH

Can President Ford Restore Involvement In Policy Making?

By far the most interesting question emerging from the Ford-Rockefeller takeover in Washington is whether the making of United States national policy, both domestic and foreign, can in fact be decentralized?

The trend toward centralization reached its high point just at the beginning of the second Nixon term. There was a brief period of history then when participation in policy making by interests and influences outside of the White House itself had largely ceased. Policy had long ceased to be generated in the great departments of government.

The participation by Congress reached its lowest point in all time. The academic community, which had increasingly shared in policy making from the Hoover administration through the Kennedy administration, was pushed away. Policy was largely made in the Oval Office at the White House by four men. Domestic policy started with Nixon, Haldeman, and Ehrlichman. Foreign policy was generated by the Nixon-Kissinger partnership. There was only marginal and minimal input from the other traditional institutions which had previously shared in the policy making process.

PRESIDENT FORD is reopening the White House to the influences and institutions which in the pre-Johnson-Nixon era had always shared substantially in policy making. The most visible and important of these is the Congress itself. Second is the cabinet and the federal bureaucracy. Less visible, but of great importance, is the academic community which works through the Congress and the federal bureaucracy.

All of these influences are again welcome at the White House and therefore once more free to participate in policy making.

But Washington has become accustomed to the centralized system. Many a good man (and woman) has resigned from the foreign and domestic services from sheer frustration. Those who are left have grown accustomed to waiting for policy directives from the White House. The practice of sending policy recommendations up from the lower ranks of the bureaucracy through the cabinet machinery has atrophied. Can it come back?

ALTHOUGH LESS VISIBLE and less dramatic, this moment in American governmental history parallels several moments in the story of ancient Rome.

Several times the later emperors — notably Claudius, Trajan, Hadrian, and the Antoninus — tried to revive the effective influence of the Senate and other institutions dating from the republican era. There was some temporary success, but never complete or lasting. The Roman Republic ended with the establishment by Augustus of a permanent imperial bureaucracy and the assumption of decisive power over the Senate. Policy making was centralized under Augustus in the imperial establishment. It was never effectively decentralized.

Now President Ford in Washington is attempting the decentralization process. His chances are much better than were those of the later Roman emperors, because the memory of the older system is still alive in Washington and because there has been no devastating civil war in the meantime. These are great differences.

But the test will be severe because it is happening at a moment when the United States seems to be slipping dangerously into an unprecedented economic condition. It would be relatively easy to restore the old system if these were easy and uncomplicated times. They are not. Mr. Ford has inherited the worst inflation in American history. He must try to meet it with the cooperation of the Congress, the bureaucracy, the business, the labor, and the academic communities.

In effect, Mr. Ford must use machinery which has been largely unused since the Eisenhower administration. And he must attempt to restrain the inflation with this older kind of machinery. He has formidable problems.

PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE:

Washington's Sleeping Later Now That Watergate's Gone

By BENJAMIN SHORE
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — Every morning around 5:30, the Washington Post thuds against the front door. Back in the dramatic days of Woodward and Bernstein's Watergate reporting, that thud often was enough to get many subscribers up and reading.

But today, with the Watergate president and all his men gone, the local papers just don't seem as exciting any more. Since Richard Nixon's chopper lifted off the White House lawn, the front pages have been given back to the business of government and other harsh realities of life.

While government is important, Wilbur Mills' views on health insurance, reports of cease-fire violations on Cyprus, or talk of a 10-cent hike in the federal gasoline tax are hardly enough to get a subscriber up at 5:30. These stories can wait for a 9 o'clock cup of coffee at the office.

It really wasn't until the other day that Washingtonians knew for sure that life had returned to what passes for normal in the capital. On the front page, where the downfall of a president had been massively chronicled for months and months, readers found three sports stories — a Redskin football player stalks out of training camp, a high school basketball player shuns a local university for a fat pro contract, and the football strike talks are stalemated.

IT IS EXPECTED that Rockefeller's confirmation hearings may develop into the first news story to come anywhere close to satisfying the appetite for conflict and controversy that Washingtonians expect when they open their papers.

Investigative reporters already are probing the Rockefeller family's close ties to the nation's (the world's?) economic health. If the normally polite Congress, which wants the honeymoon phase to last a little longer, declines to ask the delicate questions ("And how much of Venezuela do you control?"), readers can expect some enterprising help from the press.

The end of the White House phase of Watergate reporting (the major trials, including possibly one for Nixon, are yet to come) has not only allowed sports onto the front page but also has turned the spotlight onto the Congress and some federal agencies that had been neglected for too long.

And news of events in other countries is again finding space in the local papers. The steadily increasing fighting in and around South Vietnam is being more thoroughly explored, the Bucharest population conference is getting a fair presentation, and the unrest in Argentina is being reported in depth, to name but a few examples.

WHILE THIS SORT of news may seem less than compelling to some newspaper readers in other parts of the country, it is of vital relevance in this city. Decisions made here will either agitate or soothe international turmoil, and the decision makers say they benefit from objective press reports.

So as the Washington press corps passes through the decompression phase coming up from the depths of Watergate and settles into a relationship with Mr. Ford and the business of government, at least Washingtonians know they can sleep through the 5:30 thud.

Growers Group Fears Labor Violence

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Council of California Growers yesterday said farm worker disputes in a three-county area west of Sacramento have become "highly volatile" and the state has been notified that help may be needed to quell violence.

O. W. Fillerup, executive vice president of the council which represents 16,000 California growers, said "certainly the highway patrol would be an agency" that could be called if the "situation continues to deteriorate."

The United Farm Workers and the Teamsters have been vying for recognition to represent tomato pickers in Yolo, Sutter, and Solano counties.

Fillerup said there have been reports of violence in the area and work stoppages could result in tomato losses and higher produce costs to the consumer.

C. Brunel Christensen, director of the Department of Food and Agriculture, was scheduled to appear with Fillerup at the news conference but did not appear.

But a spokesman for Christensen said the department has notified the Office of Emergency Service to appraise it of the situation in case local law enforcement needs assistance.

"The situation has become highly volatile," Fillerup said, "if you have these roving pickets all over the county ... certainly there ought to be law enforcement people when there is this type of confrontation and congregation ... violence could take place."

Fillerup said a law is needed outlining election procedures for farm worker representation either on a state or federal level.

He said the news conference was a means of telling the people and the state if there is continued deterioration in the farm worker situation there may be a need for more law enforcement.

21 New Nuclear Power Plants Set

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission says that electric utilities have announced plans for 21 new nuclear power generating plants since the first of the year.

The AEC says there are in this country 45 plants already licensed for operation, 2 others authorized to operate, 60 under construction and 105 for which reactors have been ordered.

NATURAL OPENING

West made his natural club opening, and South had to find a way to avoid the loss of three diamond tricks.

It was quite clear that West had most of the missing high cards for his vulnerable overcall of one no-trump. The opponents held only 19 points in high cards between them, and West's bid showed about 16 or 17 of these points. East had only two or three points.

For this reason South correctly assumed that West held the ace of diamonds. Since the king of diamonds would never win a trick, South had to plan to ruff a diamond in dummy.

NORMAL PLAY FAILS

South cannot ruff a diamond in dummy if he makes the normal play of leading a low diamond at the second trick. East wins and returns a trump. This will permit West to win the second diamond and lead the king of trumps. Dummy then has no trump for the needed diamond ruff.

South can get the diamond ruff and make his contract by means of an unusual play. At the second trick, South must lead the king of diamonds. West wins, of course, and returns a low trump.

Declarer now leads another diamond, and the defenders are licked. If West leads a second trump, he loses his king of trumps. If West doesn't lead a second trump, South will eventually ruff a diamond in dummy.

A Fear Of Environmental Damage

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — The state of Nevada yesterday sought an emergency court order to direct owners of two proposed hotels at Lake Tahoe to take steps against possible environmental damage.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco on Aug. 22 ruled construction must stop on Hotel Oliver and the Tahoe Palace near Stateline, Nev., until the court decides whether the hotels have proper approval to proceed.

The sitesat the hotels have been leveled and state officials say this could allow blowing dust and erosion which would violate Nevada's air and water quality regulations.

State Human Resources Director Hugh Trounday filed a motion today with the appeals court asking it to clarify its order so that the hotel owners could either reseed the area or keep watering it to keep down the dust.

Trounday said there was "imminent danger of environmental damage" if this work was not done since the court case could take many months to decide.

California Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger filed the suit originally against the hotels contending their construcion will damage the environment. He said the hotels have not received the proper approval from the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency which deadlocked on the application.

Since construction stopped, Nevada state officials inspected the site three times and now say the preservation work must be done. State officials say they fear the hotel owners will use the appeals court order to show they are barred from doing any site preservation work.

If the owners violate the air and water standards they could face a fine of up to $5,000 a day.

Trounday said he informed the hotel owners Oliver Kahle and Ted Jennings of the possible environmental damage but they have not taken any action.

Another Armory Reported Looted

FRESNO (UPI) — A second California Army National Guard armory has been burglarized and another load of weapons hauled away, the FBI has reported.

The FBI agents said the breakin occurred Tuesday night or early Wednesday at the local armory and the burglars bypassed the facility's electronic surveillance system.

The thieves got away with 58 M16 semiautomatic rifles, six handguns, two machineguns and three 40mm grenade launchers, along with nearly 2,000 rounds of varying types of live ammunition and 2,280 rounds of blank ammunition used for training.

Red Tide Closes Clamming Plant

NEWBURYPORT, Mass. (UPI) — Spreading red tide, a paralytic shellfish poison, has forced closing of a purification plant where clams harvested in Massachusetts are cleansed of possible contamination.

Assistant Public Health Commissioner Nicholas Brill said the plant, operated by the Department of Natural Resources, was closed yesterday when technicians discovered rising levels of the red tide in the soft shell clams harvested by commercial diggers in Boston Harbor.

"The shellfish toxin found in the clams came from Merrimack River water used for filtering purposes in the plant," Brill said.

MARIN LIVING

The Racoon, Mother Nature's most adaptable in Marin.

SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1974

Meet The Marinite Who Eats Fire —

By DON KEOWN

Within the select ranks of the professional magicians, 24-year-old John Iacono of Greenbrae belongs to an even more exclusive elite.

He's a fire-eater.

You can't hardly find them anymore. And for good reason. It's a dangerous, daring trick.

Of the more than 40 members of San Francisco's Ring 38, International Brotherhood of Magicians, Iacono believes he is the only one who currently includes fire-eating in his act.

AND THE ESTEEM his fellow magicians accord the young Marinite is indicated by the fact that they have elected him the Ring's secretary.

Iacono has been involved in magic for eight years.

He was born in San Francisco, but came to Marin County as a 5-year-old, attended various Marin elementary schools and graduated from Redwood High School.

He attended College of Marin where he majored in drama and film production.

"I WAS ALWAYS a little interested in magic as a kid," he says.

But his active involvement began as a teen-ager when a friend found a catalog of a firm selling magic tricks and shared it with him.

His interest whetted by the pages of the catalog, he purchased his first trick from the House of Magic on Chestnut Street in San Francisco, a shop he still patronizes.

"It was the dancing handkerchief trick," he recalls. "You fold it up and it starts dancing, as if it had a ghost inside."

AND HIS FIRST "engagement" was to entertain at a birthday party, a job that came his way when someone called the College of Marin drama department seeking an entertainer for a child's fete.

"It went very well," he says, "although, looking back, I can see that I was pretty crude."

He still performs frequently at birthday parties and regards them as "the hardest event to do."

"The kids are always excited, and half your job is to try to keep them under control, even as you do your show," he explains. "But it all works out. After a few shows you learn how to gain and keep control."

"AND," HE ADDS, "a magician does seem to fit perfectly into the spirit of a birthday party."

As a 19-year-old Iacono attended his first meeting of Ring 38, International Brotherhood of Magicians, and became actively involved in that organization, enjoying the company and sharing the experiences of his fellow magicians.

The fire-eating became a featured part of his act largely by accident, again while he was a College of Marin student.

"I auditioned for a show to be put on by the college's drama department," he relates, "and they asked all of us to jot down on a card any special talents we might have."

ON AN IMPULSE, Iacono wrote down: "Fire-eating."

He had never tried the trick, "but I just thought it would look good on the card. And it never occurred to me there would be a place for a fire-eater on their show."

Two days later Iacono found himself cast as a fire-eater in the college production.

"So I found me a book on fire-eating and set out to learn the skill," he says.

IT IS NOT A trick that Iacono advises others to tackle without expert instruction. It is dangerous, he stresses, and 24-YEAR-OLD JOHN IACONO of Greenbrae has been a member of Ring 38 of the International Brotherhood of Magicians now for five years. And he currently serves as the Ring's secretary. But even within the exclusive ranks of professional magicians, Iacono belongs to a special elite — those who perform the difficult, even dangerous, trick of fire-eating. It is the climactic act in his magic show, and he performs it above, clad in a colorful costume made for a Renaissance Pleasure Faire appearance in past years. Iacono is currently readying a nightclub act. Currently he appears mainly at parties, trade shows and fairs.

Baja California Was One Big Classroom

By PAUL MILLER

It would be a lot easier for most students to return to classes this fall if all their courses were going to be like the one some lucky College of Marin students took last spring.

The new, paved highway from San Diego to La Paz can hardly be imagined as part of a college classroom. But that is precisely what it was for 16 students from Kentfield during the spring semester.

In eight days the group saw, touched, walked over, smelled, slept on, floated on and swam under what most geology students and other science majors read of, semester after semester, in books and magazines about Mexico.

As the jive radio commercial says, ". . . all that and much, much more!"

EVEN ON THE first morning in Mexico, while the caravan of three carryalls (one of which hauled a utility trailer), a pickup truck and boat trailer carrying a 16-foot Boston Whaler, and an automobile, wound its way through the "circus" of downtown Tijuana, the extra-educational events began.

The utility trailer was hit by the biggest bus in town. But the smallest of damage was done — a bent fender easily straightened.

The Mexican bus driver and the college carryall driver, Bryce Stockslager, looked at each other nervously until what appeared to be an 85-year-old policeman, with an official brimmed hat and shirt and the kind of star that Texaco service station attendants wear, strolled up. The gathering crowd made the scene look like an impromptu rock session, minus music (unless honking horns count).

A Marin Expedition Into Mexico's Wilds

THE COP SAID something in Spanish to the bus driver; then he turned to Stockslager and gave him the "safe" sign as expertly as a National League home plate umpire.

"Let's get the bleep out of here," said Stockslager. I couldn't agree more, wishing that all international confrontations could be resolved as amiably and as swiftly.

Because of the congestion in the border town, Tim Harvey, driver in one of the lead units, had not known of the accident and by now Stockslager's and my carryall were lost before the great safari had hardly begun. But Mexicans are kind and patient people, and with their help we found Revolution Boulevard and turned west on to Calle de Dos that leads directly to the toll road and the long, clear, clean and freshly marked highway south along the Pacific Ocean.

NOW THE ROUTINE began, if one could call it that. A day's schedule included rising with the sun, preparing a big breakfast, working geology field problems, driving, making camp again, preparing dinner, sometimes as late as 11 p.m.

Usually included in those long, long days were after-dinner lemonade and bull sessions around a campfire of dried cactus or some other exotic desert wood. If a camper has ever smelled the smoke from such a fire, he knows that no Frenchman can make perfume as delightful or as inexpensive.

After three and one half days, the self-contained traveling classroom — having camped near a colossal, vertical sandstone slab a mile or so west of El Rosario, and the next night under shimmering night skies south of Guerrero Negro, and after having rested in the cool morning shade of date plums of San Ignacio in front of the 100-year-old mission church — arrived dusty, tired and slaphappy about noon in Mulege at Baiha Concepcion on the Gulf of California.

ALTHOUGH GAS had been easy to buy at Pemex stations along the highway for the entire trip, we found ourselves stuck in a line on a narrow, picturesque street in the one-station town.

"At least they can't call us spoiled Americans," joked the sunburned driver of a giant camper. "Compared to L.A., this line is as short as my mother-in-law's temper."

Despite there being more Americans than Mexicans and more jeeps and campers than houses in the town, the residents were courteous and even in some cases downright friendly.

WE CAMPED that day smack on the bay near the mouth of the Mulege River. And in the two and one half days at that spot, the class worked more problems, saw more wild life and were involved in more educational experiences than they could have ever had in a classroom in as many years, perhaps.

Such an accomplishment was the chief purpose of the trip's originator and leader Dave Baver, a college science instructor for more than 10 years. He has prepared for the trip with mostly his own time and money for the past three years. His dedication paid off the day the class, using his blue and white whaler with a 75 horsepower outboard motor and two European type rubber boats, also with outboard motors, mapped the river's mouth and explored the inner bay islands and isolated beaches.

The explorers saw dead sharks (one was seven feet long), frolicking porpoises, frigate birds dog-fighting over dead rooster fish, ospreys in their nest magestically perched on a high jagged rock 90 to 100 feet above the breakers, a scorpion as big as a wild donkey, and fossil layers that were so thick and abundant it became boring observing them.

BAVER ASKED and answered a million questions on every subject. Such questions as, "Are you sure this is a pegmatite locality?" or "Dave, do you know where my toothpaste and diving mask went?"

Another valuable man who answered and asked questions every day was Bob West, a San Rafael physician, photographer and naturalist. Members of the class or anyone else who talked to him in the field or campground found that like the Oxford scholar in Chaucer's Canterbury Tales, "gladly would he learn and gladly would he teach."

Yet anybody knows that man cannot live by learning alone. He must have bread. And that is the first question everyone seems to ask us when we got home.

"How and what did Baver feed all those people for more than a week?"

Baver's modest solution: "Feed them fast and feed them a lot."

BUT HE ALSO believes in feeding his students well. And he has an ingenious method for doing it.

Twenty dollars from each person means bacon, eggs, and pancakes for breakfast; wheatbread, ham, lettuce, and tomato sandwiches for lunch; beef stew or steak (sometimes Teriyaki style) or ham, and lemonade for dinner; and carrots, milk and oranges for every meal.

Baver carries the fresh food in large picnic chests packed earlier with dry ice in San Rafael. The vegetables, fruit and bread stay fresh in big boxes stored in the dark cool corners of Baver's truck (believe it or not, the students born in the 1950s call it Fibber McGee's closet). Water was carried in five-gallon containers.

At Mulege, where they ran dry, public well water was used, dosed with five drops of chlorine per container.

EXCEPT FOR sunburn, fatigue, sore stomachs from laughing or drinking too much lemonade, no one was ever ill or hungry. But on any safari with so many people traveling so far (more than 2,500 miles), something has to go wrong. And it did — for sure.

It was late afternoon about 45 miles or so north of Rosarito as the five dusty vehicles bumped and ground over the old Baja highway. Baver was looking for an offroad campsite early so the students could work out a problem before dark.

The passengers in the second vehicle watched the whaler sink and rise slowly on the wavy sand road. With the trip nearly over, some of those students were already thinking about their clean sheets and hot showers back home in California.

IT WAS THEN that fate struck! The left wheel on the boat trailer flew off like the loose button on a new suit. It wiggled for a second or two, then lay still in the sand. The axle had snapped clean, right next to the wheel itself, on a dirt road more than 300 miles from San Diego and almost 700 miles from La Paz.

Baver, dog tired after seven days of successful leadership (plus driving his truck), jacked the trailer up, checked the damage and said he would be back in a minute. Nobody guessed what he did while he was away for about five minutes up a beautiful sand wash guarded by massive sculptured granites and giant cardones, thorny cholla, and cirio trees that looked like they were drawn by Dr. Seuss.

Baver was laying eggs! He placed 48 colored Easter eggs with each person's name on them all along the trail. When he got back to the wounded trailer, he instructed the students who were of no help in assessing repairs to hike the wash and "look for alluvium" or something to that effect.

IN A FEW MINUTES the whoops and hollers from up the dry creek turned what started to be a sad ending into an Easter party.

More than 22 hours and 200 miles later, five safari members had an axle that was better than new back on the trailer. Credit goes to the good thinking of Baver and Robert Figueroa and especially to Figueroa, former Volkswagen mechanic who could speak even Spanish slang.

He found one of the most skilled welders in Mexico at home on Good Friday and pursuaded the good man of 18 years professional experience to help us make one good axle out of two bad ones. Which indeed he did.

EVERY MEXICAN that we asked help from in Baja came through. The only bit of disappointment generated along the road was when some people from California pulled into one of the gas stations and complained, "Where's a lovely and beautiful place to camp? We can't find a place anywhere?"

Baver comment "If a person has to ask a question like that here, he should never, never come to the desert."

The setting red sun that forced 10-foot shadows off the dark yucca plants onto the brown warm sand next to the station underscored his point.

NATURALIST BOB WEST, left, also physician and photographer, shows geology instructor Dave Baver a seedling desert plant that was one of the flora studied by the College of Marin science class during its 2,500-mile field trek into the wildernesses of Baja California. Sixteen students made the unusual eight-day trip, and found the desert fascinating and the Mexican people warm and hospitable.

AN OSPREY, the hawk fisherman, in a nest "as large as a bathtub,", high above the mouth of the Bahia Concepcion, was one of the more majestic sights enjoyed by the youthful travelers from Marin. "Ospreys are the bay's generals, pelicans its colonels, frigate birds its lieutenants, and seagulls its enlisted men," they were told. Another sight: "a scorpion as big as a wild donkey."

AS WITH ANY GROUP of young people, "chow time" was an important three-time-a-day event with the College of Marin geology students who made the eight-day field trip into arid, thinly populated Baja California. Instructor Dave Baver saw that his charges were kept well fed, with such prepared-in-the-open delicacies as teriyaki steak. But the first course for the evening meal was a hearty soup. Paul Miller, of the college faculty, who made the trip, sketched this scene of a "chow line" as well as the other drawings on the page.

Wine Pressings

by DAVE RAFFI

I was thinking the other day that the affinity of white wines for cooler temperatures and the affinity of red wines for warmer temperatures remains constant from grape bud to wine glass.

The white grape varieties generally grow better and develop more subtle nuances of flavor in regions where the temperatures are warm but not excessively hot. Red grapes, on the other hand, seem to require copious amounts of heat and sunshine. This phenomenon is reflected by the European grape growing regions where it has been learned by trial and error over thousands of years that Germany with its cool northern climate produces the best white wines whereas southern countries like Italy are known for their deep, rich, heavy-bodied red wines.

This same temperature preference can be observed in the fermentation process. Because the delicate flavors of white wine are best preserved if they are fermented at about 55°, most modern wineries ferment their white grapes in stainless steel vats that are temperature-controlled by circulating coolant solutions. Red wines, on the other hand, are normally allowed to ferment naturally and they often reach a temperature of 80°. The heat seems to be beneficial in extracting the flavor elements from the skins and juice.

In the bottle the parallel remains because white wines are generally served chilled (45° to 50°) while red wines are served at room temperature or slightly below (65° to 70°).

If you should want a glass of cold white wine on a hot summer afternoon or a glass of hearty red wine to ward off the chill of winter, THE VILLA WINE CELLAR is a good place to do your shopping. We are located in San Rafael at 2138 Fourth Street. 456-9566.

PROFILE OF A MARINITE

Marin Municipal Water District's Dietrich Stroeh Guides The Agency In A Time Of Rapid Change

By PAT ANGLE

A picture of a pig is displayed prominently in the office of the general manager of the Marin Municipal Water District.

"My father thinks that someday I'm going to leave it all and become a pig farmer," says Dietrich Stroeh with a grin. "And who knows? After all, I used to raise them for 4-H."

Such pastoral pleasures may have to wait awhile, however, since Stroeh is pretty busy these days.

At 37, he is one of the youngest utility district managers in the nation, overseeing an operation which is one of the 10 largest in California.

IN APRIL HE was named to succeed William R. Seeger who administered the water district for 19 years before resigning last November. Stroeh, then the district's manager of engineering, was chosen for the top post from more than 150 applicants.

He comes to the difficult job in a period of rapid changes in the water district.

For years and years during the Seeger tenure, most Marin Municipal residents knew the district only as an outfit which dispensed water and water bills on a regular basis.

DISTRICT DIRECTORS usually met in an empty board room, visited occasionally by a few customers most of whom had complaints about their water service.

But all that has changed.

Environmentalists and anti-development forces have realized that water supply is an important factor in the county's development since, without water, there can be no growth.

And district residents who want to keep growth in Marin to a minimum have in the last three years resoundingly defeated two bond measures to finance water supply projects.

SO WHEN MARIN Municipal directors were seeking a new general manager this year, they had to find someone who had not only the necessary technical competence, but who also could appreciate the beauties of Marin and understand the concerns of those who fear large-scale development.

And there was Joachim Dietrich Stroeh who had grown up in Novato, fished and swam in Novato Creek, picked mushrooms in what is now a subdivision and roamed open hills and valleys which now are covered with housing developments.

Stroeh is very much aware of what the county has lost in the years of rapid, nonstop growth. He remembers the Marin of his childhood as "a much more interesting place."

"THERE WERE HILLS to climb and all kinds of nooks and crannies to explore," he recalled nostalgically. "Dad and I used to sit on the back porch and watch hundreds of pheasants strut around the field next to the house. There were deer, too, mothers and babies, and rabbits and raccoons.

"But that's all gone now. That whole area is covered with houses."

Like many other parents in Marin, Stroeh hopes that his three daughters and future generations of children will be able to have some of the experiences of country living that he so enjoyed.

GROWING UP surrounded by rural area was "a great experience" for him. "Not only was it an adventurous life, but it taught us responsibility to ourselves," he said. "It showed us how to live with what's out there and gave us an enjoyment of nature and all the beautiful things around us."

But he believes that — despite the fences and the people — there are enough natural areas in Marin for a legacy for future generations.

Stroeh was born in Altadena, Los Angeles County, the son of Otto and Tynne Stroeh. His father, who came to this country from Germany, operated a chicken farm in Arcadia.

"MY FATHER IS a fantastic man, really a lovely person," Stroeh said. "He has a strong sense of humor. And he's very compassionate, but strong, too.

"I've learned so much from him. He taught me to be a gentleman and to have respect for myself and for other people."

As a young child, "Diet" spent about "90 per cent" of his waking hours with his father, following him around, helping with the chores. His first job — at age four — was hauling manure out of the chicken coops in a little wooden wheelbarrow which the elder Stroeh had built for him.

WHEN THE FAMILY moved to Novato when Diet was 5, Otto Stroeh went to work as a sailmaker at Mare Island.

The family is still very close and Dietrich, his parents and an older sister, Martha Wells, all live in the same block in Novato, the site of the old family home. (Another sister, Karen Galway, lives in Sacramento.)

Stroeh attended Novato schools and received good grades, though not as good as his sisters' straight A's.

"I enjoyed school; I really did," he said. "I was involved in sports — football and track, particularly."

HE HAD FAVORITE teachers including the late Lu Sutton. "She was a good teacher, fair but strict. I remember she had this rule against gambling and wouldn't let us play marbles for keeps.

"We'd be playing and she'd whip up and confiscate all the marbles. At other times, though, she'd get down on the ground and play marbles with us, but not for keeps."

Reading was always a very important pastime in the Stroeh home.

"My father is a history buff and also quite a linguist," Stroeh said. "He can read French, German and Latin. And my mother can read Finnish, Russian, German and Latin. She even read 'War and Peace' in Russian."

CONSEQUENTLY, STROEH himself is "a voracious reader.

"I always have a book going. When I'm on vacation, I go through book after book after book." His favorites include Ayn Rand's "The Fountainhead," "Anthony Adverse" and works by Irving Wallace.

After high school Stroeh attended the College of Marin, but quit after he was hurt in a serious automobile accident.

He went to work as a surveyor for the State Division of Highways for awhile.

BUT HE SOON came to realize that — without further education — his future prospects were pretty dim. "I saw fellows 20 or 30 years older than I was who were making the same money I was and had the same responsibilities.

"It didn't take long for me to decide 'Hell, I'm going back to school.' "

After obtaining an associate of arts degree from the Marin college he enrolled in the University of Nevada. He received a degree in civil engineering in 1960.

While at the university he married Marcia Silvernale who was there studying to become a teacher. Marcia also had grown up in Marin and she and Stroeh had gone together since high school.

MRS. STROEH TAUGHT for several years at Lucas Valley School but quit to care for the couple's three daughters, Christina, 10, Jody, 8, and Erica, 6. She is known as a talented interior decorator and also is active in a variety of activities including the Jolly Rogers Children's Home Society.

One of Marcia Stroeh's greatest admirers is her husband, the kind of man who doesn't hesitate to tell people he thinks his wife is something special.

"She's a wonderful person," he said. "Marcia's a great wife and a great mother. I don't know where I'd be without her."

DURING HIS COLLEGE years, Stroeh was a kind of jack-of-all trades when it came to jobs. He was a book-binder for the Reno library, did surveying around Lake Tahoe, and parked cars, among other things.

In 1960, he came to work for the Marin Municipal Water District and one of his first jobs was soil-testing for the Nicasio Dam.

But three years later he quit his job with the district to go to work in underground construction around the Bay Area.

"I had become very dissatisfied because I didn't think I could go anywhere with the water district," he said.

HOWEVER, THE new job gave him no opportunity to use his engineering training and it wasn't long before he began looking for another position.

"One day I walked in to the Marin Municipal Water District office to see Dave Murphy, the personnel director, just to talk," Stroeh recalled. "And he told me an assistant engineer's position had opened up — just that day. I went home and talked to Marcia and decided to give it another try."

Since he returned to Marin Municipal in March of 1964 Stroeh has worked in every division of district operations.

"AT ONE TIME or another I've worked for every department head in this organization," he said.

And now he is "the boss."

Stroeh views the responsibilities of his job as "awesome, maybe even a bit frightening at times.

"Every once in a while a person in a job like this has to reflect on what he is and what he's doing," he said. "And you've got to be a little humble, too, so you don't become so self-confident that you lose sight of what you're here for. . .So you don't misuse your responsibility or take yourself too seriously."

STROEH WANTS TO be "a very accessible general manager," as available as possible to his staff and to members of the public who call him on various issues and concerns. (In fact, there are times when persons calling the district to talk to Stroeh will be put right through to him, without even being asked their names, a refreshing but almost unheard-of practice in the world of administrators and managers.)

But being available can have its problems, too.

"One of the hardest things about the job is finding enough time to do all the things I feel need to be done," Stroeh said. "Sometimes I need time just to think. It's really difficult to find a couple of hours to do that."

But, unlike some other administrators, he will not let the myriad duties of the job seep into his Saturdays and Sundays. "I'll go to meetings all week long, but the weekends I want to keep for my wife and my family."

STROEH THINKS THE water district has a "damned good group" of people working for it. "I respect the employees and I think I have their respect.

"If I could sum up, in a word, what I expect from the employees, it would be 'professionalism,' " he said. "Professionalism in what they do, how they treat each other and how they handle themselves and district affairs. It's good, I think, for an individual to put himself second in his relations with others, so that egos and personal feelings don't get involved in the job."

Stroeh would like his fellow employees to see him as "a fair-minded person and a strong manager."

HOW DOES HE see the big responsibility of supervising Marin Municipal and its 208 employees?

"If I can do an efficient job in operating a water utility and insure that we will have enough water resources for the future, then I've done my job," Stroeh said.

Currently the district again is looking at various water sources which will be available for future use, from the damming of local streams to reclamation. But it may be awhile before Marin Municipal comes up with a water supply project which will please district voters, most of whom seem at least temporarily contented with the status quo.

THE GENERAL MANAGER views the public's new interest and involvement in district affairs with "mixed emotions.

"I see it as a healthy thing, since the government is here to respond to what the people want," he said. "But it takes a lot more time and costs a lot more money, too."

He believes the need to be responsive to the public will result in a transformation of his own profession of engineering.

"Too often, we engineers have operated like we were living in a vaccuum," Stroeh said. "We mold people to what we have in terms of money, materials and equipment, but it should be the other way around.

"ENGINEERS WILL argue that they have given society what it wanted, but I don't think that's true. Too often they've lived in little white towers and told the people things like, 'You've got to have an eight-lane freeway, because that's what the book says.'

"Engineers are going to have to take a broader, more human look at the situation and find out what people really want and need," he said. "If we can do that, engineering will be one of the fields that will help to better the human condition."

Dietrich Stroeh is very much much involved with Marin Municipal Water District and its future ("I'm really looking forward to the years ahead.")

But when 6 p.m. on Friday rolls around, he firmly shuts the door of his office and begins another life.

STROEH IS A very private man in his private life, although he enjoys visiting with friends and such activities as playing the Mad Doctor each year (complete with screams, evil laughter and German accent) at the Jolly Rogers' Haunted House in Novato.

He enjoys quiet pursuits, like reading, bicycle riding and, especially his vegetable garden in which he grows "just about everything," from corn to Chinese watermelon.

PERHAPS AS A HANGOVER of his earliest years spent on a farm in Southern California, Dietrich Stroeh relaxes best from the pressures of his job as general manager of the Marin Municipal Water District by working in his vegetable garden in the yard of his Novato home. There the corn grows tall and the vegetables are lush. "To produce something gives me such a sense of accomplishment," he says.

Stroeh seems to relax almost visibly just talking about the garden. "To produce something gives me such a sense of accomplishment. . .

"I love it when it's quiet. . . I'm constantly with people, never alone. . .so I really enjoy the quiet, when all you can hear are the bugs. It's tremendous therapy. . ."

His family and the garden are among the things that allow him to return to work every Monday with the energy and enthusiasm the job of general manager of the Marin Municipal Water District demands.

The company is currently on its second American tour. The Oakland program will include the pas de deux from Act III of Romeo and Juliet entitled "D'Amour" and the famous pas de deux from "Le Corsaire."

Marin Magician Tops Act With Most Dangerous Stunt

should be attempted only after lessons from and under the supervision of an expert.

Does the flame actually enter the mouth of the performer?

"Yes, it does," answers Iacono.

"Then why doesn't it sear the mouth?"

"Oh," smiles Iacono, "but that is the secret of the whole thing. And I'm not about to give that away. But it lies in the way you take the fire into the mouth and in the way you expel it."

IACONO SAYS HE has twice suffered minor burns while performing the feat. The most recent such mishap occurred about three months ago when Iacono seared a hand in spitting out the fireball.

"It is always more difficult to do outdoors," Iacono says, "because of the winds. And most of my performances have been outdoors."

Iacono has appeared at private parties, in public shows, in trade shows and in such events as the Renaissance Pleasure Faire and the Charles Dickens Christmas Faire.

SINGLE, HE WORKS at the Seasons Ski and Sport Shop in San Anselmo, and lives with his parents, John and Helen Iacono, at 200 Via Lerida, Greenbrae.

His mother acts as the manager for the young magician, lining up his shows.

Iacono says that he is currently concentrating upon putting together a nightclub show.

And the club he has first in mind is San Francisco's The House of Magic, an annex to Earthquake McGoon's popular jazz club on Clay Street.

BY THEN, FIRE-EATING may or may not be a part of his act.

Iacono says he is working on a replacement climactic act for his show that will be just as thrilling for the audience but less dangerous than fire-eating to the performer.

"I started out trying to work as an escape artist," he says, "and just kind of got stuck on fire-eating because I found I could make more money with it."

"I WAS NERVOUS about trying it," he admits, but adds: "In a couple of weeks of practice I had it down pat."

At a past Renaissance Pleasure Faire, Iacono performed his fire-eating act every 15 minutes over a six-hour period.

Nevertheless, he will be just as pleased to say goodbye to fire-eating now that the trick has served its purpose of winning him a considerable measure of extra recognition among Bay Area magicians.

He is currently working on a levitation act which he believes will be equally spectacular. "It uses a new method that I am developing," he says, "but it won't be ready for at least a year."

CLOSER TO PERFECTION is "the salt galore" trick in which the magician directs a seemingly endless stream of salt out of what has been an empty, upraised fist.

Iacono is a largely self-taught magician, with the help of texts. He did, however, take a couple of lessons from the New York master magician Slydini, who regularly comes to the West Coast to conduct group courses.

In addition to the House of Magic in San Francisco, Iacono purchases his paraphernalia from the Hobby Tree in Corte Madera and from mail order specialist firms in the field.

A UNIT OF THE Society of American Magicians is in the formative stage at the Hobby Tree, he reports, "and I will probably join it."

He's pleased that magic has continued to hold its special fascination for people through the centuries. And that the conjurer remains a prime favorite today wherever people gather to be entertained.

But he adds: "It is difficult to make your living completely as a performing magician. There are some who do it. But not many. And none of them is making a million dollars at it."

AS FOR HIS own future course, Iacono say: "I'll just let things take their own course and see how they work out. If it develops that I should be a full-time magician, fine. But if it works out that magic is to be only a part-time profession, or even if it becomes only a hobby, that is all right, too.

"Magic has already given me a lot of experiences and contacts that I wouldn't have had otherwise."

Experiences like eating fire. Or producing a dancing ghost inside a folded handkerchief.

"I'll just let things take their own course and see how they work out," says John Iacono. "If it develops that I should be a full-time magician, fine. But if it works out that magic is to be only a part-time profession, that is all right, too."

AT TOP, with all the aplomb of the professional magician that he is, John Iacono of Greenbrae produces a huge paper flower from a silk handkerchief. His assistant here is his mother, Helen Iacono, who acts as his manager, helping him in lining up his appearances and in keeping track of the paraphernalia that is essential to his act. Yount Iacono first became interested in magic as a teen-ager attending Redwood High School and since has polished his skills to a high degree of professionalism. At left, he prepares to perform the featured and most dangerous act in his repertoire, fire-eating. He is usually called upon to perform the feat outdoors, and there, he says, it is especially difficult and tricky because of the winds. Below, Iacono is seen performing another part of his show in which a needle, inserted in one side of his arm, emerges on the other. There's no pain involved in this bit of "do-it-yourself" acupuncture, he advises. Nevertheless, he omits it whenever his audience might be squeamish or youthful. "There's just something about a needle . . .," he says.

About Carpets

by Doug Emerson

CARPET TERMS are second nature to us, so it's natural for us to talk about Olefin fibers, about cut pile and backing and broadloom, shags and plushes, without giving a second's thought to the meaning of what we're saying, since these terms are as familiar to us as a carpenter's tools are to him.

But they may be a mystery to many of you, so let's look at a few of them. You've all heard the term broadloom, for instance, but how many know that this doesn't mean a type of yarn or fabric, but any carpet woven or tufted on a broad or wide loom, at least six feet wide, and often twelve or fifteen feet wide?

Fibers are the basic "thread" of the carpet yarn, many fibers being combined to make a single yarn. These fibers may be natural, like wool, or man-made, such as the popular nylons, polyesters and acrylics.

Pile simply refers to the exposed or top surface of the fibers. When these are cut, the result is a cut pile, or plush. When looped, they create a loop pile. These can be combined in sculptured effects. Shags are loosely tufted long pile carpets, the pile being an inch or inch-and-a-half long, or longer.

But words tell only part of the carpet story. Seeing for yourself is convincing when you look over our great collection. If words fail you, the carpets won't. And you can buy on convenient "terms." Come in . . . to your carpet headquarters!

JACK ANDERSON & CO. — MUCKRAKERS AT WORK

INSIDE STORY by Brit Hume; Doubleday, 304 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Modesty was never a problem to the flamboyant, controversial columnist Drew Pearson, but he was nevertheless generous in sharing credit for his exposes with his assistants.

The spotlight Pearson permitted upon his chief helper, Jack Anderson, made him Perason's logical successor when the founder of the "Washington Merry-Go-Round" column passed on to that great syndicate in the skies.

Anderson has continued the policy, permitting his aides (he calls them associates) a considerable amount of freedom and giving them credit when and where credit is due.

For a rather brief but hectic — even historic — three-year period, Brit Hume was one of those associates. He left his mark upon the column, and upon Washington, before departing to serve as Washington editor for the journalism review MORE and as a consultant to American Broadcasting Co. News, and to do freelance writing.

Now, still just 31, he recalls his years with Anderson in "Inside Story."

Hume is still an admirer and friend of Jack Anderson. "The best and bravest reporter I had ever known" is the way he describes his ex-boss. But, nevertheless, he quit Anderson's staff in some disillusionment out of the way the columnist had handled the Sen. Thomas Eagleton story.

The selection of Eagleton as the Democratic vice presidential candidate in the 1972 national elections, and then his deletion from the ticket after his past psychiatric record became known was so botched by presidential candidate Sen. George McGovern, his advisers and other Democratic bigwigs that it contributed largely to the party's November debacle.

Anderson's mishandling of the story was only slightly less disastrous to his and the column's prestige.

Violating the tenets of good journalism, Anderson rushed onto the air in his radio show an unsubstantiated, unverified charge that Eagleton also had a history of arrests for drunk driving. And when it became apparent that there was no verification to be found, Anderson still dragged his feet in equivocation and hesitation before issuing a forthright apology and retraction. It was a poor and shoddy performer for a Pulitzer Prize-winner and greatly disenchanted Anderson's fans including Brit Hume.

Since then, Anderson has been battling and working hard in an effort to regain public esteem, and has succeeded to a considerable degree.

But before the unfortunate Eagleton incident, Hume had enjoyed a fruitful association with Anderson, basking in the glory of revelations that stripped the phony masks from the likes of Sen. Thomas Dodd, cartoonist Al Capp, then Vice President Spiro Agnew, California's Sen. George Murphy and other.

And for Hume, it wasn't always the reflected glory from the work of Anderson and his chief associate Les Whitten. He dug up and exposed some scandals of his own.

His "big story" was the scandal involving International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. (ITT) with the Nixon administration in a pay-off that coincided a bit too snugly with the settlement of an anti-trust case pending against ITT. It wasn't quite of Watergate proportions, but it kept the name of Dita Beard, the colorful ITT lobbyist, in the headlines for weeks and raised a stench in Washington that was an omen of other stinks to come.

Understandably, Hume devotes a good chunk of the book to this big event in his life.

The inside look at how America's number one muckraking columnist and his lively staff operate is interesting and enlightening. It develops that a larger measure of idealism and principle is involved than some Anderson critics might suspect.

And despite the disappointment with Anderson's conduct of the Eagleton story, and with a few other slips, there develops an awareness in the reader that in the very precarious field of investigative reporting, Anderson and associates have compiled a better batting average than the frailties of human nature might have entitled one to expect.

And their work reinforces an appreciation of just how important a free, unfettered and curiosity-driven press is to the well-being of our democracy. Americans are in deep debt of their Carl Bernsteins, Bob Woodwards, Jack Andersons and Brit Humes. And the need for their like does not end with the unlamented passing of Richard Nixon, et al, from the political scene.

Memories Of Judy's Husband, Liza's Dad

I REMEMBER IT WELL by Vincente Minnelli with Hector Arce; Doubleday, 380 pages, $10.95. Reviewed by Jorie Parr.

Art isn't art unless it haunts you a little, Vincente Minnelli writes, and stylist vignettes from the films of Hollywood's greatest director of musical pictures linger with us all: The world-stopping Limehouse Blues number in "Ziegfeld Follies" (1945), the ballet that climaxed "An American in Paris," (1951) and made cinematic history, or my favorite, the scene in "The Bad and the Beautiful" (1952) wherein the director and the producer, Barry Sullivan and Kirk Douglas, stare stonefaced at the cat man costumes they are supposed to use.

Though this autobiography is paced with interesting anecdotes and fascinating behind-the-camera information, it is not, sorry to say, particularly well written. It jerks into an "And then I directed . . ." rhythm from time to time, and one wonders whether co-author Hector Arce, a pro who contributes to Women's Wear Daily, etc., was overdirected. Further, Minnelli appears to have kept every line of copy written about his movies, and references to the clips, particularly to the ubiquitous critic Bosley Crowther of the New York Times, get tedious.

But — enough nitpicking — on with the show. Cinema fans will get their jollies reading about the ethereal, esoteric artist, Minnelli himself, never mind he is the father of living legend Liza, and was, of course, the husband of the great Judy Garland.

She was, clearly, the woman of his life. His subsequent wives, the non-social Georgette, and the very social Denise, are tossed off in a few isolated paragraphs. But Judy Judy Judy he dwells on at length. He never underestimated her talent as a performer, or, and this is stressed, as an actress. Minnelli, along with their daughter Liza, did not see Garland as a tragic figure, perhaps because she didn't carry herself as one. And then there was her endearing, self-teasing wit.

A story Judy loved to tell occurred at the M-G-M silver anniversary party. ". . . Kate Hepburn, in her de rigeur shirt and slacks . . . taking in Judy's fussy flounces, drily observed, "I knew I'd be badly dressed, and I knew you'd be badly dressed. The only difference between us is that you took the time.' "

Vincente considered Judy one of nature's most adorable creatures, misinterpreting her "intense infatuations and violent swinging of moods as an exuberance for life." Many pills had been downed before disenchantment set in. The theory that the singing star was turned on to barbiturates and benzedrine by the studio is discounted by Minnelli, who speculates she was started on the uppers and downers that did her in by a "helpful" colleague. Such drugs were socially acceptable in those days, and the hours people worked, before union limitations, impossibly long.

Minnelli tried to have strength enough for two but failed, as had a total of 16 psychiatrists. To this she retorted "So what? I never told any of them the truth. There's more than one way to get even with you people.' "

The director's milieu sparkles with friends like professional neurotic Oscar Levant, who was on such intimate terms with his imaginary demons that he called them by pet names. There are stories, too about Gene Kelly ("he was born jaunty") Clark Gable, who wished Judy had never sung the "Dear Mr. Gable . . ." tune, and one about a tiny Margaret O'Brien, who burst in for an audition, crying, "Don't send my brother to the chair! Don't let him fry!"

Of his films, Minelli prefers, not "Gigi," (1957) that won him an Oscar, not "An American in Paris" that brought him great joy, but "Lust for Life" (1955), the story of Van Gogh. But, alas, the color that made the picture distinctive, has not held up, and the subdued tones of the Eastman process, needed for the proper effect, have had a tendency to turn brown.

"Lust for Life," "midway between being a first-rate art film and high-pitched melodrama," built relentlessly toward the ear-slicing sacrifice of the great artist. Minnelli refused to be graphic about it. The solution was to focus on a lamp, giving off light reminiscent of Van Gogh's whorls and streaks.

You can do anything in a picture, but you shouldn't, the director points out. Restraint is always needed.

As for other advice to young directors, he maintains that a person can't become an artist without being a craftsman first. Apprenticeship is too often served in a goldfish bowl. Since movies are shot out of sequence, the director must pigeonhole all these disjointed parts . . . and bring them in later so that they come cohesively together. And he implies that they should find a way for plot exposition not to be dull.

Sound, he says, is the next great frontier for films. "Technology hasn't allowed us to implement sound as authentically as we do the visual."

Minnelli allows that the Thirties were the last elegant decade. But whoever thought the Fifties bland and unbeautiful would do well to remember Minnelli.

Insider Ned Calmer's Novel Of Television And One 'Superstar'

BOOKS AND RECORDS

LATE SHOW by Ned Calmer; Doubleday, 333 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Paul Helford

Ned Calmer's "Late Show" is the novel of a rising television superstar. Bud Baxter is the ambitious young Chicago disc jockey whose goal in life is to become a star.

As you would expect, friends, family, emotional stability and anything else that might get in Bud Baxter's way are pushed to the side. And as you might expect, along with achieving his superstar dream his life becomes a series of meaningless moments punctuated by tragedies.

Calmer works to create an atmosphere of reality. He throws in names of real television stars that Bud Baxter is in competition with. Descriptions of show formats and stage and backstage setups add to the air of authenticity. And Bud Baxter's rise from Chicago disc jockey to syndicated New York night-time talk show host to Hollywood superstar has a believable ring.

But the illusions of reality lack depth. We are never part of the shows, for example. And when Bud Baxter gets guests like Adlai Stevenson or Greta Garbo, it is pure hokum. Too often the reality attempts stand out as attempts.

The narrator is a weak one.

Herb Saxon is Bud Baxter's best friend.He is an eternally nice guy who is happily married and unambitious, content in being the host of audience participation game shows. He is Bud's friend, perhaps the only one who never hates Bud (Herb hasn't the strength to hate anyone), but there is no other reason for him to be narrating. Calmer would have been better using the third person narrative style.

There are some grammatical errors and some very poorly constructed sentences. None of these are too serious, but there is really no excuse for the editor's failure to catch them. In the following sentence the verb tense isn't constant: "Even Meg, sharp as she is, couldn't tell by his voice when Sig is loaded." And even if the author included the following sentence to further demonstrate the narrator's lack of commitment, it is still a weak and almost laughable comment: "Those that want to get pregnant can't, at least not yet, and those that don't want to get pregnant get pregnant, sometimes."

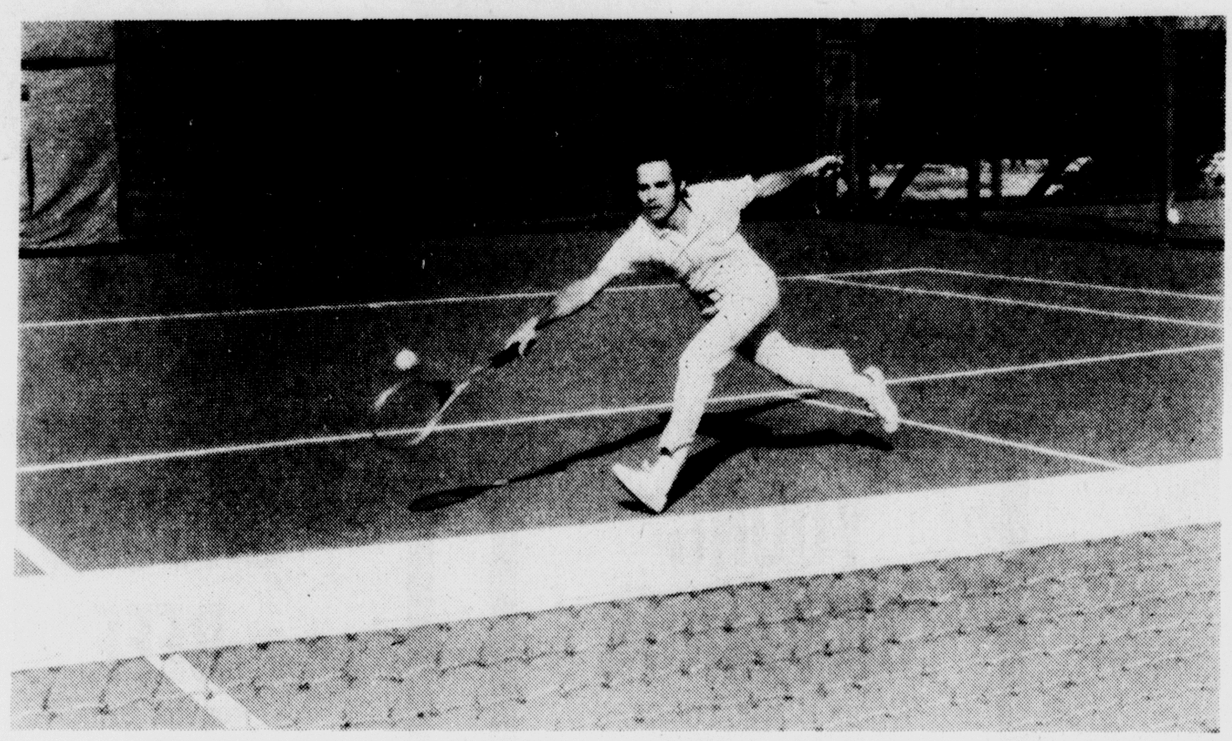

In one scene people in a restaurant recognize Herb Saxon and tell him that they watch him all the time. The only problem is that Herb is still doing a radio show.

There are some good moments. The narrator's feelings about switching from radio to TV is well done. One backstage scene of people waiting to be interviewed on a talk show is quite good.

The writing is undynamic, most of the situations contrived, and the characters dull. But there is a paradoxical energy in the plot that draws the reader in.

Having worked at CBS for 27 years, Ned Calmer obviously knows and likes the scene, and this feeling comes through despite the novel's flaws. Superficial though it might be, there's a certain fascination in sharing an insider's knowledge of an industry that has an aura of glamor, deserved or undeserved.

THE OTHER OPPONENT ON THE COURT

YOU MAY BE playing alone on your end of the tennis court, allows San Francisco-born W. Timothy Gallwey, the man behind the forehand in the photo above, but across the net you are battling two opponents — the other competitor, and the mental and emotional obstacles that you yourself impose in the way of your game. And until you've won the inner contest, you'll never realize your full potential against your outer opponent. That's the thesis of Gallwey's book, "The Inner Game" (Random House, $6.95), itself a spin-off of something called the Inner Game Institute and of "yoga tennis" as developed at the Esalen Sports Institute and John Gardiner's Tennis Ranch. Its application of psychology to a physical sport is aimed at producing a kind of "relaxed concentration" which supposedly brings out the best in one's ground strokes and volleys. But to some it might seem only to add needless complications to a game they play for fun and exercise, and in which winning isn't all that important. Indeed, they might even feel that a preoccupation with the perfection of one's play and with the ultimate goal of winning is the beginning of real trouble.

Astronaut Who Didn't Walk The Moon

CARRYING THE FIRE: AN ASTRONAUT'S JOURNEYS by Michael Collins; Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 478 pages, $10. Reviewed by Lee Hopkins.

Man, knowing he must die, has always journeyed forth as far as he can go. "Carrying The Fire" by Michael Collins describes such a pilgrimage, the first trip to the moon, in which the astronauts of Apollo 11 — aptly named for the god who took the sun in its course across the sky — accomplished the most extraordinary feat so far in human experience.

Collins, it will be recalled, was the man who did not walk on the moon, but alone maneuvered the spacecraft in orbit over the lunar surface while Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin explored, collected and recorded.

When you think about it, his mission on Apollo 11 was really the most important, and it is well that he is the one who wrote this book.

A good and direct writer, tough and humorous, Collins strikes exactly the right note, neither lyrical nor pompous nor dull. Perhaps it is his background as a jet fighter and test pilot that makes "Carrying The Fire" such a success, utilizing the same qualities of self-discipline, technical expertise and alert intelligence to both stay alive and write unaffectedly about this great adventure. Collins' account is different stylistically but similar in effect to those books about early flying by Antoine de St. Exupery with marvellous titles like "Wind, Sand and Stars."

"Carrying The Fire" succeeds on many levels. First, Collins gives an interesting resume of the whole space program and the training of the astronauts. Secondly, he dispels the idea that the astronauts were automatons who merely carried out instructions from Ground Control with a kind of Pavlovian response; and this is important if you recall foolish commentary like Nicholas Von Hoffman's column about the Apollo 16 mission titled "Two Klutzes On The Moon."

But finally it is the last portion of the book that spellbinds, and that of course is Collins' account of the fantastic voyage out to our pale, circling neighbor.

There are no passages to quote that evoke the quality of Collins' account of the moon expedition, because the technical and human elements interrelate in the manner of a sonata form, and the narrative has its own peculiar flow and logic suitable to this unique chronicle.

Of particular interest in this book is the last chapter, in which Michael Collins describes his life since Apollo II. Some of the anecdotes are very funny, the archetypal experiences of anyone passing 40 and tackling a new job, new goals. But over all, within some thoughtful, moving passages there lurks his changed perception of the world since literally getting out of it. The mood is mellow, and the only way to exactly define it is to call it Taoistic: the ancient Chinese earth wisdom that sees all as one, both fragile and eternal. This is a concept both complex and simple, in the same way that it takes genius to see the obvious.

It is best expressed by this line from T. S. Eliot that Collins quotes: "We shall not cease from exploration and the end of all our exploring will be to arrive where we started and know the place for the first time."

ON THE STEREO SCENE: The Duke's Legacy

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

They called him Duke but he truly was a king.

There was something majestic about Duke Ellington. He had a great dignity that put him on a high pedestal early in his career. And because Ellington had regal class, he remained on this lofty level through the decades.

Even so, he was a warm human being, a friendly man who was respected by American presidents but who enjoyed meeting strangers.

Ellington left a tremendous legacy in recordings which spanned almost half a century. Some of the music he recorded in 1947 has been reissued under the title of "The World of Duke Ellington" (Columbia G 32564), which is something of a misnomer because he was only nearing the halfway mark of his accomplishments.

HOWEVER, THIS is a fine work, worthy of being preserved for years to come. The two record album contains 22 numbers featuring such exalted Ellington musicians as Billy Strayhorn, Ray Nance, Johnny Hodges, Russell Procope, Sonny Greer, Oscar Pettiford, Tyree Glenn, Al Sears and Harry Carney.

Wilber de Paris, one of the great trombonists of his time, also joins some of the sessions.

Al Hibbler, who later became something of a sensation, may be heard as soloist on a classic Ellington composition, "Don't Get Around Much Anymore."

Ellington developed his musical styles during a period when Americans liked to dance and the music in this album is ideal for those who yearn for the ballrooms of yore.

ANITA O'DAY always will be remembered as a pioneer in jazz singing, a woman whose unique phrasing was polished without the embellishments she added to make it unique.

"Hi Ho Trailus Boot Whip" (Bob Thiele Music BBM1-0595) is a replay of songs which Miss O'Day recorded more than 25 years ago. Time has not had any aging effects on her style, which is still fresh today.

There are 10 tunes in this selection, ranging from slow to fast tempo. One of the numbers most typical of Miss O'Day is "How High the Moon," which gives her plenty of room for her scat singing.

ANOTHER PLAYBACK recording that deserves mention is "Luis Russell and His Louisiana Swing Orchestra" (Columbia KG 32338).

Russell was a superb arranger who came to prominence as a band leader in the 1920s. He switched from jazz to swing and enjoyed a rewarding career until the late 1940s when his fortunes began declining.

Those who remember the golden days of swing will enjoy this album, even though the sound is tinny, because among the musicians in these sessions were J. C. Higginbotham, Barney Bigard and Johnny St. Cyr.

And those who remember Fats Pichon, for many years the major attraction at the Old Absinthe House in New Orleans, should consider this album a collector's item. It contains a rare recording of Pichon's voice on a song called "It's Tight Like That."

NOTES OF A BROWSING BOOKMAN

Veteran backpacker Harvey Manning and outdoorsman-photographer Ira L. Spring have collaborated once again to put together "Wilderness Trails Northwest," published by Touchstone Press and priced at $5.95.

This glossy paperback covers national parks and wilderness regions of Wyoming, Montana and Idaho, then, starting with Redwood National Parks of California, goes up through Oregon, Washington, British Columbia and into the Canadian Rockies in Alberta.

Each unit includes descriptive material on the park or wilderness area involved, its exact location, and a small but clear map (done by Helen Sherman), possible hikes or climbs, and the seasons such outings would be feasible. There is also an excellent section on where to get other maps and guidebooks.

Several beautifully reproduced color photos are reproduced in the opening pages, and black and white photos are used throughout the text.

ALSO FROM Touchstone, also in softcover and also priced at $5.95: "West Coast River Touring: Rogue River Canyon and South" by Dick Schwind, and outlining 1,700 miles of river runs to be traversed by canoe, kayak and raft, plus instructions on how to go about this increasingly popular recreation. Covered are both easy and difficult descents.

ONE OF THE great war books of recent years, "Enemy at the Gates: The Battle for Stalingrad" by William Craig, is available now from Ballantine as a $1.95 paperback, complete with 32 pages of photographs.

SLEUTHS & SUSPENSE

THE PROPERTY OF A GENTLEMAN by Catherine Gaskin; Doubleday, 350 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Catherine Gaskin, born in Ireland, reared in Australia, resident of such varied places as New York, England and the Virgin Islands, and now living again in Ireland with her American husband, has the perfect international background for the writing of romantic suspense novels with their reliance upon colorful, exotic settings.

She has, too, a natural gift as a storyteller. And a knack for delving into a particular vocation and making its attributes and nuances a part of her novel.

Thus it is not surprising that her Gothic-tinged novels, contemporary or period, rate among the finest of their genre.

"The Property of a Gentleman" is probably her best yet.

Her setting is England's beautiful Lake Country near the Scottish border where Joanna Roswell, successful young representative of a London art and antique auction house, finds herself caught up in events at the brooding, treasure-filled Thirlbeck House that reach back to ancient scandals and old tragedies. Mrs. Gaskin weaves her mesh of plots and counter-plots beautifully. The profession of the antique hunter is one integrated thread. The geography and history of the border country another. And Joanna and the other characters in a varied cast are interesting and believable.

In short, "The Property of a Gentleman" continues the Daphne DuMaurier school, but on a plane a good deal higher than most of its exponents. Best-seller recognition would not be undeserved.

The Grand Old Hotel That Penrose Built

TRAVEL PAGE

By MARILYN HOFFMAN

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — At the Broadmoor Hotel in Colorado Springs, they say "one of the nicest things about its present is its past."

It has been a veritable hit with visitors to the Pikes Peak region since it opened on June 29, 1918.

When Spencer Penrose and Charles L. Tutt became partners in a Cripple Creek real estate business in 1892, the fortune that was to build the Broadmoor empire began.

THE BROADMOOR, according to its owners, was built in the Italian Renaissance style of architecture, to be both "permanent and perfect."

It nestles into some of Colorado's most exciting scenery, and when it was opened it was considered "a new landmark of the romantic and fascinating West." It was built by an army of 500 skilled artisans from Italy and other countries who, working by hand, decorated the walls, ceilings, and floors of the hotel's ornate public rooms.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller attended the opening, and sat down with 200 other guests at dinner to enjoy Broadmoor truite au bleu (poached trout), braised sweetbreads, aux Perles du Perigord, boneless royal squab and souffle glace.

ARTIST MAXFIELD Parrish, another guest of the hotel in 1918, did a renowned painting of the great hotel.

It was a time of luxurious conveyances. Private railroad cars brought elegant guests by the hundreds to this hotel, which catered so sumptuously to the wealthy, leisure class.

During the 1920s, Julie and Spencer Penrose traveled the world buying paintings, sculpture, rugs, and fine pieces of furniture for their beloved hotel. In 1929 Penrose even built a hangar to house the private airplanes of his guests.

The depression years took their toll, and the Broadmoor closed Sept. 9, 1935, for the first and only time in its history, but reopened on June 1, 1936, with a splashy dinner-dance.

EXPANSION AND improvements to the hotel have been constant over the years since World War II.

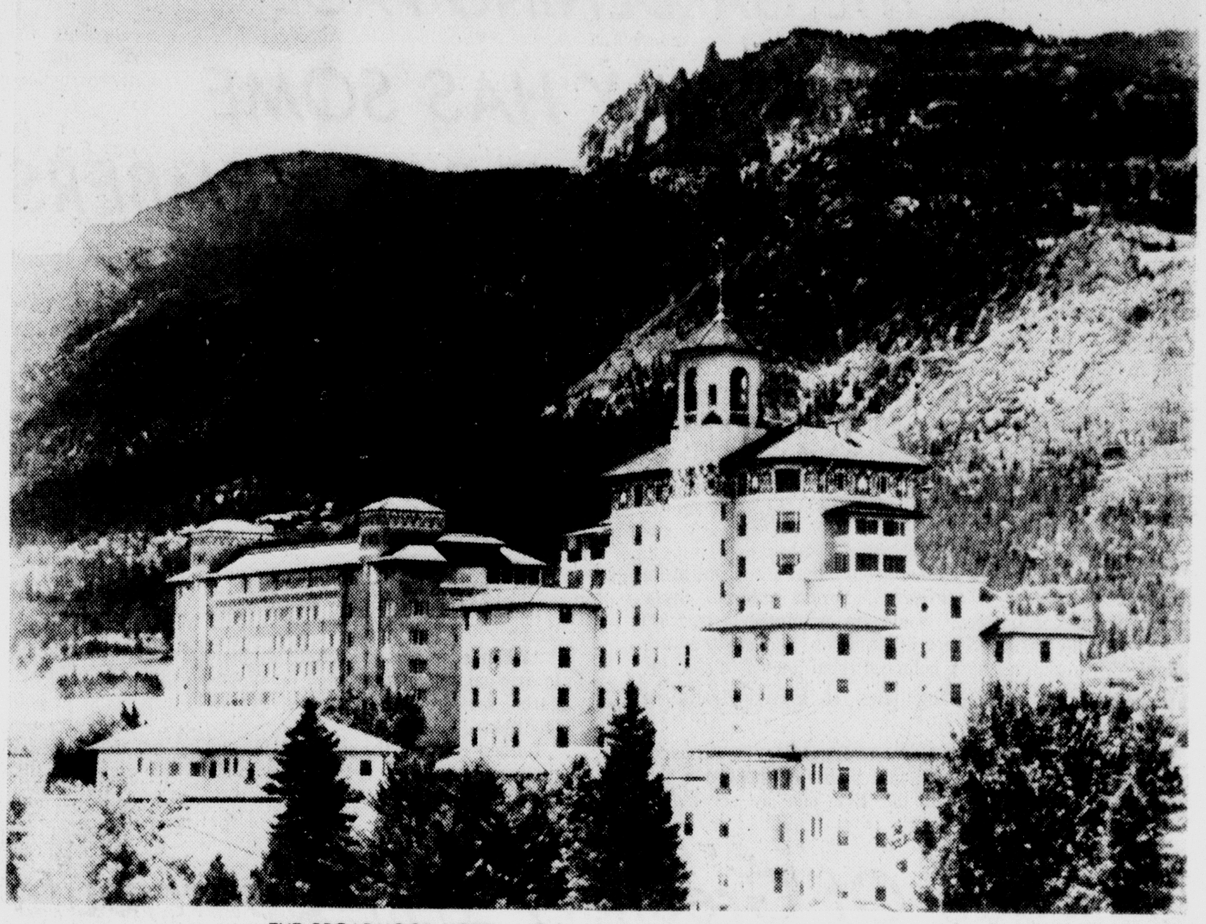

In the 1960s, Broadmoor International Center, a large convention hall and summer theater, was opened. An eight-million-dollar expansion program is now under way "to meet increasing demand for accommodations and meeting facilities," including a 150-room addition and a new 18-hole golf course.

Countless additions and improvements have been made through the years, including an Olympic-sized heated outdoor swimming pool, the Little Theater, and the Ice Palace.

Today, the hotel and its 5,000-acre complex is a self-contained city unto itself. It has entertained kings, ambassadors, governors, movie stars, and sports figures, and today is vitally active, looking forward to increased business.

Like a number of other grand old American resort hotels, it is being discovered by a new crowd not necessarily wealthy, but interested in living, at least for a few days, in the manner of yesteryear's ultra-rich.

THE BROADMOOR HOTEL in Colorado Springs, Colo., and in the shadow of famed Pike's Peak is one of America's great old resort hotels, having been completed in 1918 by Spencer Penrose and his partner Charles L. Tutt. It was for decades a mecca of millionaires and socialites. Today it attracts a broader clientele, including conventioneers who use the large hall in the Broadmoor International Center, built in the 1960s.

STONE COTTAGES and a quiet hillside make Cottage Combe a place that relaxes the weary traveler. But the clever villagers make certain that the hamlet is not ruined by throngs of tourists by making the place a bit hard to find — and a bit difficult to reach, once you've found what has been declared officially to be "the loveliest village in England."

Castle Combe Has Warded Off Change By Discouraging The Casual Visitors

By NEIL MORGAN

CASTLE COMBE, England — The barmaid at the Castle pub managed a look of hurt surprise.

"Changed?" she repeated. "There's no way Castle Combe could change. The scenes filmed here for 'Doctor Doolittle' made no difference. If you try to paint your door a bright color, you aren't allowed. The appeal goes up to the council at Chippenham and then to Gloucester and you don't win. Everything must stay the same."

SHE WALKED ACROSS the worn, undulated stone floor and put another log on the fire. A wave of woodsmoke swept back into the room and blended comfortably with the musty, pungent smells that accumulate in centuries-old barrooms.

Outside, a fine rain settled over the village of 486 residents that won formal acclaim a decade ago as the loveliest in England. Most of the village could be seen through the pub's mullioned windows, out past the 15th century market cross where the street bent between Castle Combe's two rows of stone cottages.

The only movement seemed to be down that lane where a coal man had delivered a sack of coal. A housewife was out sweeping dust of his visit into a dustpan.

IT WAS LATE afternoon, and one of the six tidy bedrooms upstairs at the Castle pub was ours for the night. It afforded a lookout over one of the most successful of many laudable British efforts to slow the dismantling of history by air hammer and bulldozer.

Castle Combe looks like a movie set — indeed, served as a movie set — but has emerged unspoiled.

Among the lilac trees at little St. Andrews Church, whose nave dates to the 14th century, Rev. M. W. Dittmer described his part-time parish as much like that of any English hamlet. Its people are more involved in tourism than a decade ago, but they are still mostly farmers, merchants and the retired.

He pointed to the results of the previous weekend's church fete, which had raised more than $1,000.

ONLY 100 MILES west of London, Castle Combe is still not easily found. It was listed on only one of four road maps we carried. Car traffic has been craftily discouraged.

Hidden in a wooded saucer surrounded by rolling pastures and dairies, Castle Combe has made one concession to its star role: a field half a mile above the village, beside the narrow lane that is its sole entrance, has been cleared and marked off as a car park.

Unless one has business that demands vehicular traffic, or is a tourist with luggage, it is bad form to attempt to drive into Castle Combe. Tour buses are out of the question, and the long walk from the car park discourages visitors.

Beyond the Castle pub, the only lodging is in the rather grand Manor House, whose rooms have been expanded in houses of indigenous, honey-colored Cotswold stone in the 18th century style.

TO THE NORTH in the heart of the Cotswolds, larger towns seek with varying success to maintain the look and feel to which the past entitles them.

At Broadway, the Lygon Arms continues its 400-year tradition as the most renowned country hotel of the region. Up narrow, creaking stairways, porters lead guests into timbered rooms with vast dated fireplaces and massive 17th century oak furniture.

One looks down through leaded windows on the town's main street. But because coaches and cars crowd the street, the Lygon has sought to soundproof its rooms with a second set of interior, sliding windows.

No matter how strenuously the sense of past is preserved in the Cotswolds, the air above it belongs to today. In the afternoon we pulled off a deserted side road for a nap under trees at the edge of a meadow. We were awakened by the screaming whine of jets diving directly over us.

Through a thicket we caught sight of six streaks of red and ran to a fence rail to watch.

Our pristine meadow led to the edge of Little Rissington, a quaint Royal Air Force base which is the practice field of Britain's acrobatics team, the Red Arrows.

The Rembrandt House Gets A Restoration

AMSTERDAM (AP) — The Rembrandt House, one of Amsterdam's foremost tourist attractions, is settling through its foundations, and an all-out campaign is underway to raise funds for its restoration.

The 1606 structure, built in the year of the great Dutch painter's birth, sits on soft, sandy ground along the edge of a street which urban renewal turned into a major thoroughfare a few years ago.

The house was Rembrandt's home from 1639 to 1658. It was there he painted the famous "Nightwatch," there that his son Titus was born in 1641 and there that his wife Saskia died the following year.

According to construction experts, the structure has subsided by a foot and traffic threatens to accelerate decay. New cracks are appearing on the facade with increasing regularity.

Almost half the money needed for restoration — estimated at 900,000 — is being provided by the national government's monument fund, the city of Amsterdam, the province of North Holland and the Rembrandt House Foundation.

To help come up with the remainder, 300 tiles from the original house which will not be used in the restoration are being put on sale. Dutch Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard have already bought two of the tiles, which are going for 250 guilders nearly $100 each.

The Rembrandt House draws hundreds of visitors per day all year round. Among its attractions is an exhibition of Rembrandt's complete etchings, which number 250, and six original drawings by the great Dutch master.

If all goes well, restoration will be completed by February 1975.

Some Expert Advice On How To Select Your Luggage, And How To Pack It

By MURRAY J. BROWN

When Charles A. Lindbergh made his historic solo flight across the Atlantic in 1927, his entire "travel wardrobe" consisted of a single change of underwear.

The "Lone Eagle" up until his death still believed in traveling light, often starting a trip with nothing more than a razor, toothbrush and bar of soap wrapped in a sock and crammed into a pocket.

BUT FOR THE average American, traveling means luggage and packing.

Yet, traveling light should pose no real problem in these days of permanent press and other modern fabrics.

As for luggage, it, too, should be light and sturdy. Porters often are hard to find and baggage could be subjected to some rough handling during the trip.

A survey of luggage buyers — representing major department stores, specialty shops and discount houses — at the National Luggage Show in Las Vegas showed that more consumers buy luggage for durability than for any other reason.

THE SURVEY WAS conducted by the Seward Luggage Manufacturing Co., which offers these tips for spot-checking luggage for durability:

Read the hand tag to determine guarantees. Verify if the covering is waterproof and scratch resistant. If the covering is fabric, check to see if it has been treated to guard against stains. Make certain the fabric won't pull.

Test locks, zippers, handles and straps. Locks should be sturdy and stitching around zippers and straps strong. Solid handle construction is a must and the grip should be comfortable. Don't be afraid to pick up the bag to get the feel.

Don't confuse rigidity with durability. The combination of a well-made frame and a tough covering often serves travelers best in the long run.

Obviously, the travel wardrobe will depend on where you are going and what you plan to do. The secret for both men and women is match and mix, based around one color theme.

Women will generally find that a couple of smart pants outfits with interchangeable tops, plus a cocktail dress, will see them through all but the most formal occasions. A dark business suit, sports jacket and coordinated slacks will do the same for men.

NO PACKING SYSTEM can be absolutely wrinkle free but the Samsonite Luggage Travel Bureau has some helpful suggestions:

Use the divider in the bag which in effect gives you two cases in one. Pack shoes, accessories, underclothes and sportswear on one side, dresses and suits on the other.

Pack in sections: lingerie together, sportswear together, etc. This results in firmer packing for fewer wrinkles than layers of heavier garments on top of lighter clothing.

Heavy items go at the bottom. Place shoes, handbags, alarm clocks, electric shavers, etc. near hinges to avoid shifting.

Cushion folds with folds of another fabric. Fold crushables like silks and pure cotton over cushioning layers of uncrushables such as polyester knits.

Fasten, button and zip everything before packing it.

Fold everything except slacks lengthwise, in three sections, following body curves. Fold toward the back; your shoulders and hips will act as natural "irons" to creases.

Distribute weight evenly.

THE WAGONS ROLL

A UNIQUE EXPERIENCE that Switzerland is offering its visitors is this one-horse covered wagon that can be rented for an eight-day excursion through the nature trails of the tiny country's magnificent Jura Mountains. There's a package cost starting at $182 per person for two people plus $45 for each additional participant that includes all the equipment, plus accommodations at country inns each evening where the horse will be cared for. Information is available from Swiss National Tourist Office, 661 Market Street, San Francisco, 94105.

THE PLANT FAMILY HAS SOME WEIRD AND MONSTROUS MEMBERS

By EARL ARONSON

There are many bizarre plants, monstrous ones, mythical ones and magical ones that have inspired stories.

William A. Emboden writes about these fascinating specimens in "Bizarre Plants" (MacMillan).

Just the titles of his chapters are intriguing: Monstrous Plants; Orchids in Witchcraft and Medicine; Satan's Simples — The Herbs of Black Magic; Herbs of Grace — Witches and Warlocks Undone; Dragon's Blood; The Fabulous Coco-le-Mer; Plants That Eat Animals; Fungal Fantasies; Plants That Never Were — A Floral "Talepiece."

Ever hear of Monkey Bread?

The author describes it as one genus "that stand out in its grotesquerie as perhaps the most ludicrous arboreal entity that man has encountered." Some are estimated to be 5,000 years old, with trunks 85 feet in diameter. Because they are pulpy, African natives have hollowed them for water storage.

Emboden spins fascinating tales of bizarre traditions connected with orchids.

In Satan's Simples — The Herbs of Black Magic, Emboden relates an early Hindu legend that plants of the world held counsel and agreed to fight the Evil one by serving as antidotes to all of the pestilence spread by his animal conspirators.

Contrary to this, the author says, Western traditions have looked upon some plants as being in the service of Satan, and others as beneficial in combating the Devil's forces. Satan's favorite plant reputedly was the deadly nightshade, his signature is parsley, and his body is composed of several malevolent herbs.

"We must delve into the plants that figure prominently in specific spells, potions, and philtres used by Satan or his agents." And Emboden does.

Consider the walnut: If a woman is suspected of being a witch, a walnut dropped into her lap will prevent her from arising from a chair.

The virtuous have no need to fear.

To offset the Herbs of Black Magic there are Herbs of Grace.

As Emboden says, "Fortunately there are more plants used to arm oneself against such malefactions than there are evil herbs, and ironically some of the herbs are found in both traditions."

Emboden traces the superstitions and legends that surround many plants. There is the dragon's blood tree and fungi that glow in the dark.

Cascade Of Greenery Will Contribute Refreshing Beauty To Interior Decor

Plants that trail downward refresh the indoors, adding dimension and grace to your decor.

There are dozens of plants that suit this purpose very well, and the following are some recommended by the California Association of Nurserymen:

The Piggyback Plant has long-stemmed hairy leaves. It has a soft, lush green appearance that adds a welcome touch to every household. Piggyback Plants do best in diffused light. Be sure to keep the soil evenly moist.

THE GRAPE IVY with its shiny green leaves is one of the foliage plants best adapted for growing in a hanging basket, either indoors or on the patio.

THE VARIEGATED Wandering Jew is an excellent plant for hanging baskets with stems that cascade gracefully. It has one-inch-long green leaves with cream or white stripes of varying widths.

Wandering Jews do best in bright indirect sunlight. A damp plant mix is best for this household favorite.

An extremely popular house plant, Grape Ivy, is usually grown in hanging containers so their stems will cascade over the edges. The Grape Ivy has shiny deep green, three-lobed leaves, four inches long to three to four inches wide. The undersides of mature leaves are covered with soft brown fuzz.

The Grape Ivy prefers diffused light and it is advisable to keep the plant mix evenly moist.

WHAT WAS ONCE old fashioned is now the "in" thing today. We speak of the Boston Fern. It has arching fronds up to three feet long and flat closely set leaflets. Fronds will cascade on all sides of a pedestal. Keep the soil evenly moist and place this fern in a spot where it receives bright diffused sunlight.

Your choise of cascading plant materials is not limited to the above. Visit your nursery and you'll find beautiful Spider Plants, Kangaroo Vines, English Ivy, to name a few. And as you shop around for new additions to your indoor garden, be sure to check out the macrame holders, new hanging basket attachments and wall brackets.

Stocks And Snaps For Winter Bouquets

How about an armful of brightly colored flowers for indoor bouquets — in winter?

Stocks and snapdragons make excellent bouquets, and if these winter-blooming flowers are planted now, think of the color sitting proudly on your coffee table later on.

The stock (Matthiola) is really a better cut flower than garden plant, although the base-branching types in separate colors can be effective in the garden. Two widely planted species of stock are: the incana longipetala and bicornis. Matthiola incana features a gray-green foliage topped by spicily fragrant flowers of white, rose, pink, purple, lavender and cream.

MANY STRAINS ARE available, including the Column Stock and the branching types.

The Evening Scented Stock has small lavender flowers providing a delightful fragrance at night.

Stock prefers light, well-drained soil. It will take moderate frost but does not set flower buds if nights are too chilly. Marin County conditions are for the most part ideal for its cultivation.

The snapdragon — Antirrhinum majus — is actually a short-lived perennial but it is commonly treated as a cool weather annual.

Snapdragons are ideal for borders and cutting. Blooms are in varying shades of pink, rose, salmon, yellow, maroon, crimson and pure white. They are available in tall (three to four feet), intermediate (15 to 18 inches), and dwarf (six to nine inches).

THE CALIFORNIA Association of Nurserymen recommends picking up snapdragons in flats at your garden center. Planted now, before night temperatures drop below 50 degrees, the bud stage will set properly, insuring blooms throughout the winter.

Give snapdragons rich soil, feed and water regularly until growth is sturdy.

Both snapdragons and stocks have a kind of old-fashioned charm in keeping with the current feeling for nostalgia, since so many of us associate them with the gardens we knew as children. New strains, we will discover to our surprise, are even better than the lovely ones we knew then.

A CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓Feed roses in early September and you'll get more blooms and more vivid colors from them during the fall.

✓Young trees need more frequent waterings than mature specimens. Make a basin around your trees to insure more efficient irrigation with no wasteful runoff.

✓This is a good time to check in at your local nursery for winter blooming annuals and perennials.

✓Plant shade trees this coming month. The sun should let you know where you need them and a wide selection of trees for your area can be found in your local nursery.

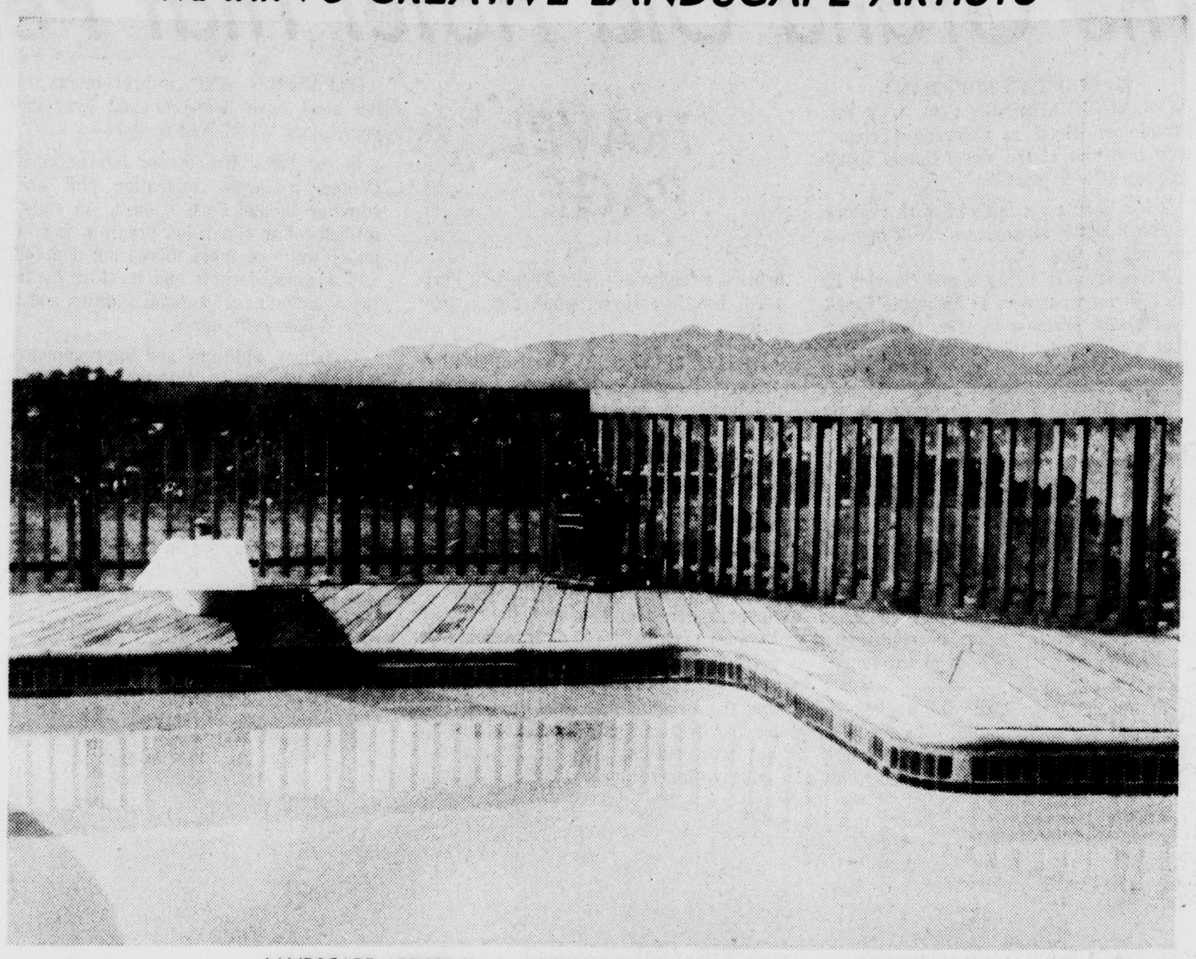

✓The earlier you set out annuals for winter bloom, the more colorful your garden will be during the cool months.

✓Check plants that should be staked to be certain they are adequately supported against fall and winter winds that will be coming.

✓While most gardeners prefer to wait until a later date to do a real pruning job on hydrangeas, spent blooms should be clipped as the flowers lose their color.

MARIN'S CREATIVE LANDSCAPE ARTISTS

LANDSCAPE ARTISTS Katy and Paul Steinmetz of San Rafael, retained by Dr. and Mrs. Don Walker of Tiburon to design a swimming pool for their hilltop home, made sure that the panoramic view was part of the total picture when they worked out their plans. The pool is located conveniently at the same level as the main floor of the house. A deck makes the useable area around the pool larger. And attractive railings provide security but do not interfere with the view from the Deck. The contractor was Hans Vielhauer and the pool was installed by Tropicana.

MICHAEL GOLDMAN, landscape artist of Forest Knolls, worked out this eye-pleasing canopy to filter the skylight for the deck of Dr. and Mrs. Harvey Klein of Redd Ranch Road, Tiburon. His principal material was surfaced and unsurfaced redwood. Not only does the skylight in itself make an attractive focal point for the eyes, but it creates changing shadow patterns that are also interesting. And the filtered sunlight makes for comfortable sitting in even the brightest weather.

A BEAUTY TREATMENT for a narrow, side yard, often a problem area in the more crowded residential areas, can be as simple as this screen of cedar two-by-twos, plus a path of square paving blocks and a few well-chosen planting materials. In the restricted growing area, dwarf fruit trees have been espaliered against the screen. Junipers and a slim planter of ivy provide an elegant touch without clutter of croding.

WHAT WAS ONCE a drab, tired entryway to this home has been revived with a small deck and wrap-around steps of two-by-four-inch Douglas fir, replacing a pillared, old-fashioned and little-used porch. A wood-framed acrylic panel shelters the doorway from winds and weather. The lower deck, edged with benches, reclaims space from a sloping yard, that was going to waste, and makes it into a relaxing area for outdoor dining or sunning. The whole installation is oriented to the view. And here the lady-of-the-house takes advantage of that vista.

Deck Perks Up An Entryway

Beauty often is the motivating reason for outdoor renovation, but other uses explain why landscaping isn't limited to shrubs, flowers and grass.

Addition of handsome decks, benches, screens and other structures of wood is as much a part of landscaping as the plantings, and offers new areas for out door living.

An inviting entry is tops on almost any list, and this is an area where utility can share the spotlight with good looks.

ONE SPACIOUS ENTRY deck added to a house on a sloping site serves several purposes, as well as enhancing the entrance visually. A walkway and steps lead up from the side of the house to the entry, oriented to the view.

The deck of two-by-four-inch Douglas fir laid flat is supported on four-by-four-inch posts, four-by-six-inch beams and two-by-eight-inch stringers. Railings, with built-on benches, are of two-by-four-inch fir and also are designed to offer full enjoyment of the view.

There's ample space on the deck for a picnic table and benches, useful for casual meals and for extra seating when neighbors stop by for a chat.

Three wide steps lead from this deck up to a smaller porch deck at the doorway. The steps also are used for displaying a variety of container plants along one side.

THE NATURALLY weathered wood of the decks and railing complement the lightly stained beveled wood siding. One of the unique appeals of decks is that they can be designed to blend with almost any house design, from colonial to contemporary.

For houses where the entry faces right onto the street, wood decked outdoor living areas can be secluded behind handsome screen fences of slightly spaced wood slats one-by-twos, one-by-twos, combined with shrubs or trees.

Yes, You Can Fasten Things To Concrete

By ANDY LANG

Fastening anything to a solid concrete or other masonry wall presents certain difficulties that can be overcome only by the use of the proper materials.

Most basic of the fasteners used in concrete is the concrete nail, made of hardened steel, which has the virtue of not requiring a predrilled pilot hole. To prevent it from bending, it must be driven through the wood first and then into the concrete, as is done with two-by-four studs.

Varying results are obtained with this type of nail, depending on the strength of the person doing the hammering and the resistance of the particular concrete being attacked.

WHEN A LARGE amount of fasteners must be driven into concrete, it is well to look into the various kinds of stud drivers and stud hammers on the market. The heavy duty, power-actuated models can be rented.

Expansion anchors or shields are hammered into pre-drilled holes in the masonry. The anchors are smaller then the shields, but both operate on the same principle.

A hole is drilled into the masonry and the anchor or shield is then hammered or tapped into the opening. When a screw or bolt is inserted into the anchor or shield, the latter expands inside the hole and grips firmly.

BECAUSE THE BIT in the chuck of a drill will be dulled quickly when used in concrete, a carbide-tipped masonry bit must be used. In the absence of a drill and such a bit, you can make a hole with a star drill, which is hammered, then turned, then hammered, and so on.

When using the drill with a masonry bit, steady pressure must be applied during the drilling. If the pressure is relaxed while the bit is in the hole, the bit will tend to slip, accomplishing nothing except dulling it.

Smaller plastic and fiber anchors are available for jobs where the stress won't be too great. They are excellent for such projects as fastening to brick and stucco walls.

AMONG THE OTHER fasteners available is the anchor nail, which actually is a metal plate with holes on it, on the outside of which is a protruding nail.

The plate is attached to the wall with a special adhesive, applied generously so that some of it comes out through the perforations, thus providing extra gripping power. A furring strip or stud is nailed onto the nail, which is then toe-nailed into the wood.

Another possibility is to attach wood directly to the masonry with one of the new, extra strong adhesives.

Although this practice is frowned on by most professional workmen, I have seen a completely finished basement in which only adhesive was used to attach the wood to the masonry. It was done two years ago and appears to be a solid job.

An Arbor Requires A Sturdy Frame

When building a free-standing garden arbor or gazebo, frame it sturdily — and that usually means with two-by-four-inch lumber.

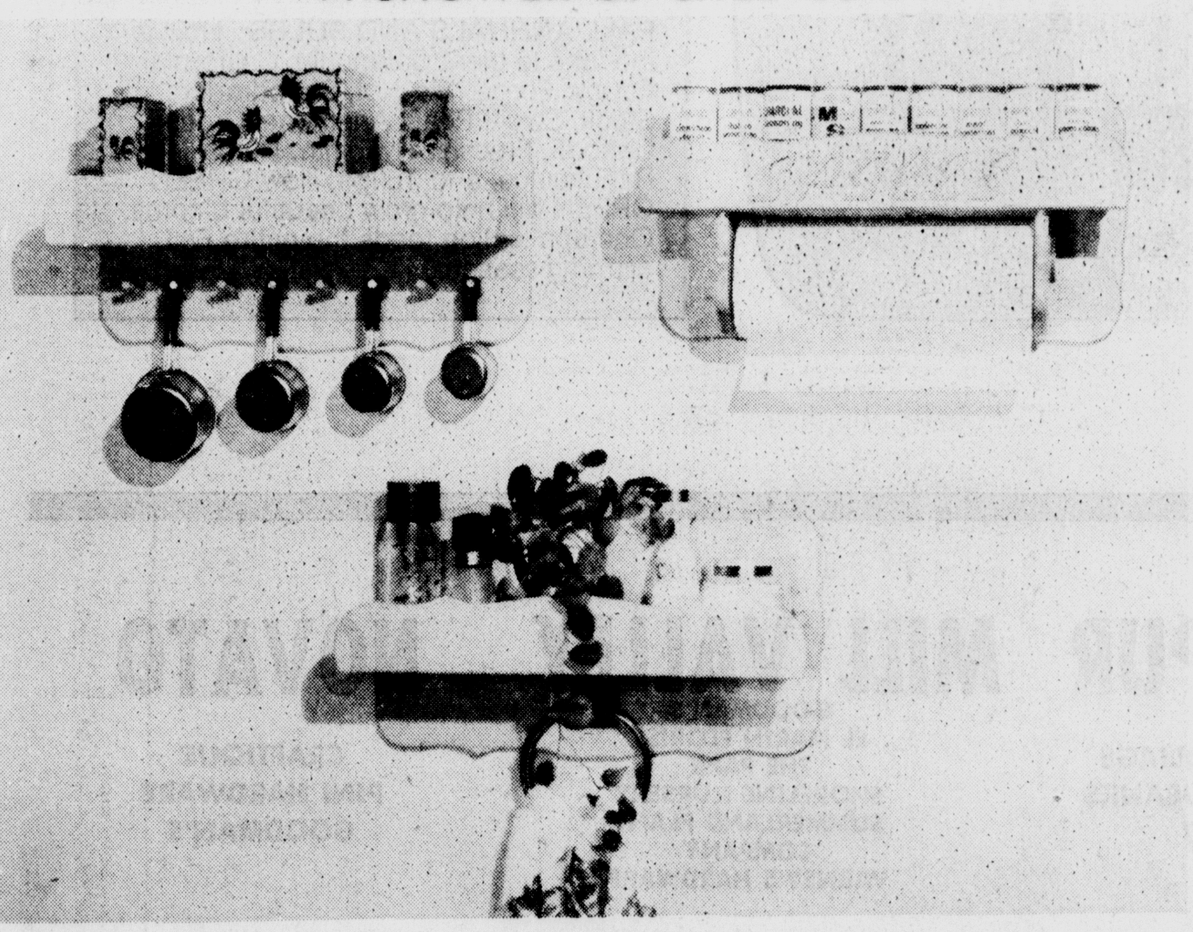

Lattice and other fill-in work can be one-by-one, one-by-two or one-by-four inch strips, which will provide an airy effect while supporting climbing shrubs or vines.

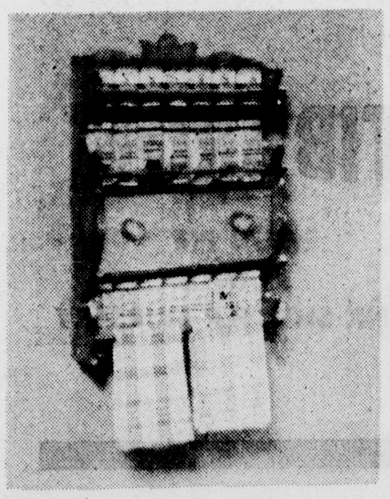

Western lumber in No. 2 grade is both strong enough and good looking, although pieces handpicked from a lower grade would be adequate and cheaper.

If posts are to be set into the ground, they should be heartwood cedar, or any other western species that's pressure treated.

A SHOWER OF SHELVES

FOR $2.25 SENT to Steve Ellingson, Independent-Journal pattern department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, with a request for Assortment K, you will receive the patterns that will eanble you to build all the various shelves and racks shown in these photographs. One basic shelf design gives you the three multi-purpose shelves shown above for the kitchen or the bathroom. The very attractive spice shelf at left holds a variety of condiments and features a large center drawer and a rod at the bottom for hand towels. The shelf at right attaches to a broom closet, pantry or basement door, turned wasted space into well-used space. All you do is trace the full-size patterns onto wood, saw out the parts and assemble.

HERE'S THE ANSWER TO YOUR QUESTION

By ANDY LANG

Q. — In one of your recent replies to a reader, who told about the black soiled areas at the bottoms of the shingles on his house, you told him how to test to determine whether it was mildew. I have the same condition on our house, but the color of the stain is green. Could that also be mildew?

A. — Yes. Mildew on exterior, painted surfaces usually shows up as black, but may be one of several other colors, including green.

Q. — A few floor boards in our living room squeak whenever they are walked on. I'd like to avoid going to the trouble of putting new nails into the floor to halt the squeaks. Someone suggested putting powdered graphite between the boards. Will that help?

A. — In some cases, putting powdered graphite or talcum powder between the offending boards will halt the squeaks — sometimes only for a short time, sometimes indefinitely. Generally, however, this is a temporary measure. If you are forced to drive nails through the boards into the joists, be sure to use threaded nails.

Q. — I'm making a wooden shed to cover the garbage cans at the side of our house. I'm using plywood. Since it is the exterior-type plywood, is it necessary to coat it with a wood preservative?

A. — Yes. While the glue in exterior plywood is waterproof, it is advisable to coat the plywood with something that will protect it from the weather over a long period of time. Wood preservative is fine, so is exterior paint.

Q. — There is a slight crack at the bottom of the flush tank in our bathroom. It has been there for years, but only recently a slight leak developed. Can this be fixed?

A. — Yes. But first you'll have to get all the water out of the tank. Shut off the water to the tank, flush it, then soak up the remaining water with a sponge. Once the inside of the tank is thoroughly dry, apply an epoxy resin or some other waterproof adhesive to the cracked area. Force the adhesive into the crack with the blade of a putty knife. Allow the adhesive to harden for several hours longer than the time recommended on the container. Refill the tank.

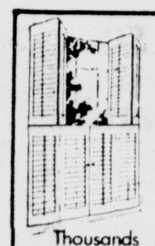

Q. — Is it better to buy stain with a pigment in it or one without?

A. — If you want the grain to show through, light-bodied stains are best. Heavily pigmented stains hide most of the wood grain, but are more durable.

Q. — I know that in using a paint brush, one must always start in a dry area and paint toward the wet area, making a small overlap. Is the same thing true when using a paint roller?

A. — Yes.

(The techniques of varnishing, shellacking, lacquering, paint removing, bleaching and staining are explained in Andy Lang's helpful booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," which can be obtained by sending 30 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, Post Office Box 477, Huntington, N.Y., 11743.

Fall Planting Guide

LAWNS AND TREES: In areas with mild winters, Fall is the most natural time for lawn development and growth. Fall feeding with new GREEN GREEN Timed Release Lawn Food prevents unnecessary yellowing and helps develop better roots and healthier turf all Winter long. Fall is also an excellent time to feed and plant trees. New GREEN GREEN Timed Release Shrub and Tree Food tablets feed year 'round, nourish roots in Winter for good growth, rich leafing and shade later on.

COOL-SEASON VEGETABLES: Now is the time to plant Beets, Broccoli, Cabbage, Carrots, Cauliflower, Chives, Lettuce, Onions and Radishes. New GREEN GREEN Timed Release Vegetable and Flower Food will help grow an abundant crop. One application feeds the entire Fall growing season.

FALL ANNUALS AND BULBS: Now is the time to plant Calendula, California Poppy, Forget-Me-Not, Snapdragon, Stock, Sweet Peas, Anemone, Crocus, Daffodil, Freesia, Hyacinth, Dutch Iris, Ranunculus, and Tulips. New GREEN GREEN will help grow beautiful blooms. One application feeds the entire Fall growing season.

Oakie: 50-Year Trouper

By JEANNETTE MAZURKI
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Screen funnyman Jack Oakie sat back and recalled his 50 years in every phase of show business.

Oakie, who lives the life of a country squire now on a 10-acre ranch in the nearby San Fernando Valley, appeared in the first of his famous college pictures back in 1929. He played the aging football coach in "Touchdown" with Toby Wing and Arlene Judge, with whom he worked for many years to come.

FROM THAT TIME to 1941, Oakie skipped in and out of countless campus humor films. In the final one in 1941 he played a freshman in "Rise and Shine" with Walter Brennan and Linda Darnell.

In 1962, Oakie again teamed with Brennan on the late TV series, "The Real McCoys."

Is he rich?

"Well," he says, "I bought AT&T stock when it was called Smoke Signal and I bought GE when it was called General Candle."

He doesn't work much anymore except for an occasional appearance on television.

"I bumped into Dennis Crosby the other day," said Oakie. "I used to help Bing diaper him at Paramount.

"When I first came to Hollywood in 1927 from Broadway I worked in the silents and when talkies came along, luckily, I had a good voice and made the transition. A lot of newcomers came along and made their first pictures with me. There was Bing and a cute little trick named Alice Faye. Then there was Lanny Ross, Burns and Allen, Maurice Chevalier and Lily Pons.

"THEN THERE was a year when I made 14 feature pictures so fast that I didn't have time in between them to lie down, a record no other comedian has yet equaled.

"I met Lucy Ball 40 years ago when she was a Goldwyn Girl and a bit player running around the lot like a kid. She hasn't changed any.

"We learned our trade the hard way. I was in vaudeville and you learned what not to do from the audience. If they didn't laugh you never repeated the joke again."

About TV?

"Okay, so I'm not that crazy about television — but you know that makes us all mad. We didn't know it was coming or we would have had a piece of it."

His greatest thrill?

"WHEN CHARLIE CHAPLIN called and asked me to play Mussolini in 'The Great Dictator' (for which he was nominated for an Oscar).

"I was so shocked and puzzled I said, Charlie, why me? I'm not an Italian, get an Italian actor. And he said a pretty smart thing.

"He said, 'What's funny about an Italian playing Mussolini?' "

Oakie owns many of his old flicks including "Million Dollar Legs" with W.C. Fields, and "Tin Pan Alley." Milton Berle, who was double-billed with Oakie in vaudeville in 1925, has said, "Oakie was the Jack Lemmon of his day or you could say that Lemmon is the Jack Oakie of today."

Hal Kanter, the producer-director-writer, who got his first job on the old Jack Oakie radio show, said, "Oakie and I have a lot in common. I live in the San Fernando Valley. Oakie owns it."

John Schuck Surprised At Success

John Schuck, the police sergeant-sidekick to Rock Hudson's Commissioner McMillan in NBC-TV's "McMillan and Wife" series, is mildly surprised at his success.

Early this year he discovered his family held him in such high esteem as an actor that his two younger brothers — one a disk jockey, the other a teacher of exceptional children — gave up their professions in the East to settle in California for acting careers.

A B.A. graduate of Dennison University in Granville, Ohio, John began by appearing at the Cleveland Playhouse, Cleveland Musical Carnival, in off-Broadway plays and at the American Conservatory Theatre in San Francisco.

New Children's Show Keyed To Life Styles

OAKLAND (UPI) — A new children's Spanish-English television series will be launched this month, but don't expect just another Sesame Street with Big Bird called "Pajaro Grande."

Villa Alegre, meaning the Happy Village, debuts Sept. 23 (Channel 9) on more than 170 public broadcasting stations, including those in American Samoa, Guam, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

The 65-pirt half-hour series is the brainchild of Dr. Rene Cardenas, executive director of Bilingual Children's Television, headquartered here.

"I envisioned a television show that would, in effect, stimulate anc celebrate interest in other languages," he said.

"We should create at the child's level a broad, basic understanding and appreciation of other life styles so that the child as an emerging adult would appreciate the vast complex experience that is man and humanity."

Cardenas said the show will be as important to the Anglo mother in Fargo, N.D., as to the Spanish-speaking child."

He said the Spanish-speaking child will "automatically accept the show because his language and culture are portrayed in a positive light."

The series will help the Anglo child "learn about other cultures, about other life styles." Unlike Sesame Street, Villa Alegre does not pointedly teach children how to spell c-a-t or count to seven.

Children will learn the 3 R's through osmosis but the series' basic field is social studies. The show is about half-English and half-Spanish with a continuing cast of 15 boys, girls ane adults.

In a segment previewed for newsmen recently, the cast included a crow, scarecrow, a puppy, a kitten, an old sailor El Capitan, a young admirer and a chef.

The young boy helped the chef translate a recipe from English to Spanish.

The shows, racing along like "Laugh-In" with many short segments, are all linked by a theme. The theme in the preview film was Friends (Amigos).

The series was made with the help of a $3.5 million grant from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

And the government got back some of the money.

More than $191,000 was returned because the show "maintained budgetary goals," according to a spokesman.

Richard Rector, the series' director of production planning, said another 65 segments are planned.

"We didn't get a new grant from the federal government but foundations will be helping."

TUNING IN ON TELEVISION

By JACK GAVER

NBC has set Norman Rosemont Productions to provide it with a television special based on Stephen Crane's Civil War classic novel, "The Red Badge of Courage."

A special on Ernest Hemingway that would weave events of his early career into a pair of his short stories is a three-hour prospect for ABC to be prepared by producer Herbert Brodkin.

Diana Ross, singing star formerly of the Supremes group, will star in two ABC musical variety specials, one in the next season and the second in the following season.

One of the "NBC World Premiere" movies next season will have Linda Blair, the "possessed" girl of "The Exorcist" theater movie, making her television dramatic debut in "Born Innocent." Linda, 16, plays a first time offender caught up in the detention system of a large city.

Sally Struthers of the "All in the Family" cast and James Franciscus will costar in a suspense drama for CBS, "Aloha Means Goodbye," that will be aired this fall. She plays a school teacher lured to Hawaii to be the key figure in a plot hatched by an overly ambitious doctor.

TV Reformists Believe Letters To Networks Serve Good Cause

By JOHN BEAUFORT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK — A great many American viewers are concerned about the use, misuse and abuse of their airwaves by the nation's commercial broadcasters.

Reader letters reflect the concern. One writer, recounting in bitter detail his so far unavailing crusade against a noisome commercial, asks: "Have you any practical ideas on using my horrible example as a starting point for a new and more effective approach?"

Another reader writes:: "I have been concerned for a long time about the effect on TV news programs of advertising pressures transalted into emphasis on sensationalism and entertainment values." She thinks it is "just possible that a concerted effort to persuade (the networks) to concentrate their ads in one segment — beginning, middle, or end — might be successful. This is done in most civilized countries."

Yet another member of the long-suffering TV public inquires: "Have you any suggestions as to how an ordinary person can assist in correcting his distasteful (TV commercial clutter) situation . . . whom to write to etc.?"

FORTUNATELY FOR all of us, certain elected officials and private organizations are and have been fighting the good fight to curb some of commercial TV's more egregious excesses. The Congress — particuarly through Rhode Island Republican Sen. John O. Pastore's Subcommittee on Communications of the Senate Commerce Committee — has shown an awareness of the need for reforms in certain areas.

Listed below are representative national organizations dedicated to improving television:

ACT (Action for Children's Television, 46 Austin Street, Newtonville, Mass. 02160) began informally four years ago in the living room of its chairman, Mrs. Peggy Charren. ACT now counts groups in more than 70 cities and has had some notable successes. Its most recent triumph was spearheading the drive to achieve a gradual reduction in advertising time on Saturday morning children's programming from the present 16 minutes per hour to 9½ minutes per hour by the end of 1975.

ACT has had before the Federal Communications Commission since 1970 a proposal to establish strict guidelines for children's programming. According to Mrs. Charren, the FCC has received more than 100,000 letters supporting this proposal, but the commission "has shown a singular disinclination to take any kind of action at all." Reforming the FCC may be as important as reforming television.

THE NATIONAL CITIZENS Committee for Broadcasting (Suite 525, 1346 Connecticut Ave. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036) has been in existence for seven years. The NCCB has directed its efforts at improving children's programming, reducing violence on TV, and upgrading quality in news broadcasts and other programs.

Last January, the committee acquired a new chairman in Nicholas Johnson, author of "How to Talk Back to Your Television Set" and the public's champion on the FCC until his term expired at the end of 1973. Mr. Johnson and his NCCB colleagues are formulating a new program to assist and inform the hundreds of local groups working on various broadcasting projects and problems around the country. Beginning in 1975 (with hoped-for foundation funding), the NCCB will become their Washington service station as well as a public-oriented counter institution to the industry's Nation Association of Broadcasters.

WATCH (Watchers Against Television Commercial Harassment) is at 2000 H St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006) and is headed by law professor John F. Banzhaf, that redoubtable fighter against TV cigarette commercials and other smoking nuisances. WATCH currently is seeking (1) to reduce the number of commercials over the next three years to 8 minutes per hour from the present 9½; (2) to regulate interruptions so that all commercials would occur on the hour and half-hour. The WATCH petition on behalf of these reforms was filed with the FCC last Feb. 28.

It's All Work In San Francisco

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Karl Malden's current life is a tale of two cities — Hollywood and San Francisco.

As the star of "The Streets of San Francisco," it is necessary for the powerful, strapping Malden to live by the Golden Gate seven months a year, returning to his Southern California home during the off season.

Three years ago, when the ABC series made its TV debut, the actor commuted the 460 miles up and down the coast every three or four days. The show filmed its interiors in Hollywood, the exteriors in San Francisco.

WHEN EXHAUSTION overcame cast and crew, the producers chose to shoot the entire show in the Bay area.

Malden rents a four-room apartment in a nifty hotel atop Knob Hill. His wife, Mona, divides her time between the two cities.

The Maldens have two grown daughters — Carla, a senior at UCLA, and Mila, who is married and earlier this year made grandparents of her parents with the birth of daughter Alison.

When Mona is in Hollywood, Karl lives a bachelor life up north, fixing his own meals, attending baseball games and working six days a week.

The actor is virtually a slave to his work. On his one day off, Sunday, he immerses himself in the script for the following week. He rarely entertains or goes out in the evening except to dinner.

IT'S A DIFFERENT story when he returns to Hollywood during the show's hiatus.

The family home is located in picturesque Mandaville canyon, surrounded by shade trees. The house is a Cape Cod brick and wood structure with three bedrooms and a swimming pool.

Inside the furniture is comfortable and expensive. Much in evidence is Mona's canary glass collection. There are some 100 pieces of the rare crystal — pitchers, glasses, vases, candlesticks — tucked away here and there. The Maldens purchased the pieces in various countries during their travels around the world.

Life in two cities

Karl's study is lined with books and filled with plaques and other mementoes given him over the years. A disconnected telephone — to escape the urgencies of the day — rests on his desk.

There are signed baseballs in evidence, and more than a dozen baseball caps given him by big league players. His stand-in for the past 14 years has been ex-umpire Art Passarella.

MALDEN MAKES up for his sedentary life in San Francisco when he's at home. He devotes a half hour to calisthenics, weight-lifting, jogging and swimming to stay in trim.

One of his avocations is playing foreman to workers he hires to paint the house or install a new roof.

Born Malden Sekulovich in Chicago, Malden is the son of a Yugoslavian immigrant. He is proud of his heritage and loves his profession. He won an Academy award for best supporting actor in "A Streetcar Named Desire."

The Maldens entertain frequently in their canyon home, usually at dinner parties for two or three other couples. While most of their friends are in show business, not a few are doctors, lawyers and other professional people.

They have an extensive collection of paintings by contemporary artists. Almost all of the canvases on their walls are by artists they know personally.

"I always ask to meet the painter of a work I like so the picture will come to life for me," Malden explains. "So we've collected art work from England, France and Italy — meeting the artists each time."

A friendly, warm man, Malden isn't half as tough as the cop he plays in his television series.

Courageous Role

NEW YORK (UPI) — Richard Thomas, the John Boy character of the CBS "The Waltons" series, will have the leading role in the two-hour video version of Stephen Crane's classic antiwar novel, "The Red Badge of Courage." NBC is supposed to put it on the air early in 1975.

FOR WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.,
editor of "The National Review"

You often refer to Sen. James Buckley as "my sainted brother." Are you being sarcastic or affectionate? Do you get along well together?—Juanita E. Trammell, Nashville, Tenn.

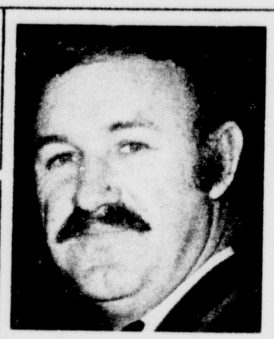

● Actually, we don't get along very well and never have since the time when I was nine and he was 12 and he stole a speech I was preparing to give. He changed all the tenses and embarrassed me before my audience. I refer to him as "sainted" because a messenger appeared to me in my sleep and divulged to me the news that my brother would save the U.S. I thought of referring to him thereafter as "the savior" but decided not to because it would sound blasphemous and it would embarrass him. So I settled on calling him "the sainted junior Senator from New York." I like that "junior" because that bears out my reputation and his modesty.

FOR BING CROSBY

Has your lung operation forced you to stop singing?—John Stinerock, Wayne, N.J.

● No. Fortunately, I didn't have cancer, but a fungus (which my wife calls "athlete's foot of the mouth"), and I didn't get it in Africa, as reported, but right here at home in California. I'm just fine, and recently got back from Mexico, where my son and I had a hunting-and-fishing vacation. I'm doing a couple of TV Christmas specials—as I've done with my family for the past 38 years. I'm still talking and singing and doing everything that comes naturally.

FOR GENE HACKMAN, actor

In "The Poseidon Adventure," when the boat was turning upside down, were the people really falling?—Suzanne Mongan, Belleville, Ill.

● They really were! Producer Irwin Allen hired the greatest array of stunt people I've ever seen for this sequence. They were unbelievable! Some of them fell 40 feet. Naturally, Allen doesn't take chances with his people. Every precaution was taken to guarantee that no harm would come to them. But you can believe it was a thrill to see!

FOR TATUM O'NEAL

How did you feel about upstaging your father in "Paper Moon"?—Barry Tarlton, Austin, Texas

● It was a lot of fun to be able to work with my father. I don't really understand what "upstaging" means, but I think my father is the best actor in the world, and he showed me how to do things in the movie so that I would be good, too.

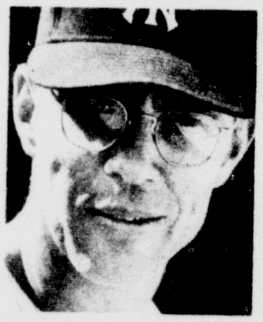

FOR MRS. RICHARD M. NIXON

I understand you traveled more than any other U.S. President's wife. How many miles in all?—Sylvia Lynd, Ironton, Ohio

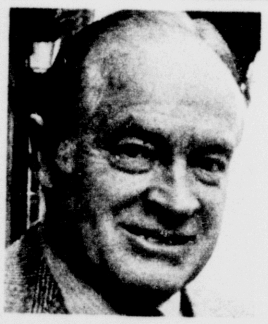

● During the Nixon Administration, I traveled 131,723 miles. Although all our trips carried special meaning and purpose, the historic journey to China was the most memorable because of its significance to international diplomacy and world peace.

FOR BILL VIRDON, manager of the New York Yankees

Doesn't it bother your ego that you were fired by the Pittsburgh Pirates and are now second choice (after Dick Williams) as manager of the Yankees?—Stan Harbster, Daytona Beach, Fla.

● Firing is one of the hazards of managing a major-league club. Anyone who can't handle this shouldn't be in the business. And anyone who plays second fiddle to Dick Williams is in pretty good shape, since Williams is probably the best in our profession.

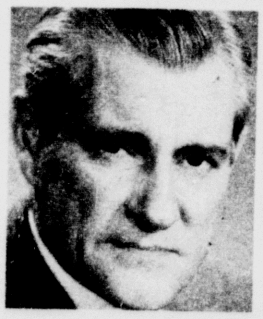

FOR BOB HOPE

You celebrated your 71st birthday recently. What do you consider the best years of a man's life?—L. S. Ward, Avon-by-the-Sea, N.J.

● I guess I'd have to vote for the late 20's and the 30's, when a guy is at the height of his physical powers, his ambitions, his love life and his hopes for the future. But there's also a lot to be said for the years when you don't have to worry about the rent, when you've "paid your dues" and can take time off to play golf once in a while.

FOR ERIC SEVAREID, news analyst

Do you use a monitor on the Walter Cronkite evening news or just your own notes?—Virginia Pellandini, Lake Hamilton, Ark.

● I use the teleprompter as well as my own script. In a tightly compressed news program these things must be timed almost to the second and ad-libbing wouldn't do.

FOR LYNN REDGRAVE,
star of Broadway's "My Fat Friend"

How much of your acting success do you attribute to having the name Redgrave, and what's it like being part of a famous family?—F. W., Scranton, Pa.

● My "famous family" is the only one I've ever had, so I have no basis for comparison. We're just like any other family of two parents and three children. As for my name helping my career, I'd be lying if I said it didn't give me an advantage. Also, I got valuable guidance at home.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

We hear a lot about Liza Minnelli, but what about Judy Garland's other two children?—F. N. G., Joliet, Ill.

● Lorna Luft is probably not as talented as her older half-sister Liza, but she, too, is in show business. She prefers nightclub work. Last year Lorna played an engagement at New York's St. Regis and, after that, was booked into London's Talk of the Town club. She also tours abroad—her most recent trip was to Australia. She's now working on her first record album. Joey Luft, Judy Garland's youngest child, is 19, and leans toward being a musician. He plays the drums but, as yet, hasn't definitely decided on his career.

The Arabs and Us:

A New Feeling Of "Getting to Know Each Other"

A look at the Saudis also brings a glimpse of what makes the Arab world tick.

Photographs by John Neubauer

Prince Fahd Ibn Abdel Aziz, deputy prime minister of Saudi Arabia and the brother of King Faisal, during his recent meeting with Secretary Kissinger in Washington.

By Max Gunther

When I asked Saudi Arabia's Ambassador Ibrahim al-Sowayel what the climate is like in his homeland, he smiled. "That is like asking what the climate is like in America," he said. "It is a big country with many climates. We must get to know each other's country better."

It was a warm summer evening in Washington, D.C. A dinner party was in progress at the Saudi Embassy, and Americans and Saudis were busy doing what the Ambassador suggested: getting to know each other better. One prominent Saudi present was Prince Fahd Ibn Abdel Aziz, deputy prime minister and the brother of King Faisal. He and Sheik Ahmad Zaki Yamani, the petroleum minister, had spent the day conferring with President Nixon and others about a new era of close cooperation between the two nations. Among prominent Americans at the Embassy were Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, the former federal energy chief.

Saudi Arabia has abruptly become one of the world's great economic powers, and its influence on our lives is certain to grow still more profound in years ahead. What are the Saudis like, and what are their visions of the future?

Oil

Saudi Arabia is the world's biggest oil exporter. Its proven reserves of some 150 billion barrels—enough to last about half a century at present rates of pumping—are the biggest in the non-Communist world, and probable reserves are at least twice as big. This is why Saudi Arabia – with about four times the land area of Texas but only two-thirds as many people—has risen to such power in world affairs.

The Saudis, however, have no intention of wielding that power carelessly. For one thing, I learned, they are economic conservatives with a fear of inflation that matches our own, maybe surpasses it. The last thing they want to do is disrupt world economies by withholding oil or driving up the price. "If we make you pay more for our oil," one of Yamani's aides said, "then everything goes up, and we pay more for your machinery. Who wins?"

Education

The Saudis feel their most pressing need right now is for more trained citizens to carry on the nation's ambitious modernization program. "We need more schools and more people in the schools," Prince Fahd told me.

Education, he said, is free to all Saudi citizens—right up to and including college. "Not only that," added oil chief Yamani, "but we pay them a salary if they go to college. We want to encourage them to get more training instead of dropping out early."

English is taught as a second language in most schools and is a required course in the colleges. Girls are educated separately and, to date, haven't enjoyed as many opportunities as are opening up for men. Women aren't allowed to drive cars at the moment. However, there are extensive government programs for educating Saudi Arabian women. Many women have already graduated from European and American universities and are practicing in specialized, ultramodern hospitals in Jiddah and Riyadh. An official of the U.S. Arab Chamber of Commerce guesses privately that women will become much more visible in the next few years.

The Saudi government has pumped huge amounts of money into institutions like the University of Riyadh (the capital city), the College of Petroleum and Minerals, and the National King Abd al-Aziz University at Jiddah (near Mecca on the Red Sea coast). Enrollments at some colleges have increased more than tenfold since the late 1960's, and the expansion is still going on.

But the government still finds itself in the embarrassing position of having much more money than it can spend, mainly because there aren't yet enough trained people to spend it. Millions of Saudi oil dollars are sitting in New York banks right now, unused. The kingdom gets so much oil revenue that it has no need to levy an income tax on its citizens—a setup that most Americans would find Utopian. "But the money is no good unless it is used," said Ambassador al-Sowayel. "We want to build roads, factories, hospitals . . . and for this we need American help."

The Good Friend

It was American technical and management know-how that brought the kingdom its wealth in the first place. Oil was discovered and developed there

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger looks across the table at Prince Fahd as they signed their historic accord expanding American technological aid to Saudi Arabia.

"'If we make you pay more for our oil,' one of Yamani's aides said, 'then everything goes up, and we pay more for your machinery. Who wins?'" in the 1930's by the Arabian American Oil Co. (Aramco), then a wholly owned subsidiary of Standard Oil of California. Texaco bought a half share of Aramco in 1936, and after World War II Exxon and Mobil bought smaller shares. The Saudi government bought a quarter share in 1972, and this year the government's share will move up to 60 percent.

Thus the Saudis now have a majority vote in the management councils of the world's biggest oil producer. But American executives, geologists, engineers and others will continue to play a major role in the giant company's day-to-day affairs. As Prince Fahd put it, "We and you Americans—we need each other."

During the Prince's visit, in fact, he and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger signed a far-ranging six-page pact under which American technological aid will be greatly expanded in months to come. The U.S. Geological Survey, which has had teams exploring Saudi Arabia for several years, will intensify its hunt for new oil deposits and also for other minerals such as zinc, copper and uranium. The Agriculture Department will send experts to study new ways of turning deserts into farmland—especially in the vast southern wasteland known as the Rub' al Khali, the "Empty Quarter." It is conceivable that some desert regions might be irrigated with desalted seawater, and U.S. desalination engineers are now being recruited to work with the agricultural teams.

Politics

What does the U.S. get in return for this help? Oil and trade, of course. "But don't make it sound too much like a bargain between two greedy merchants," one Embassy official begged. "It's true each of our countries has something the other wants, but we would be natural friends anyway."

This is perfectly true. King Faisal, Prince.Fahd and most Saudi leaders see America as a sturdy bulwark against Communism, which they fear as much as most Americans do. "We are basically capitalists like you," said one Saudi. "When we look into the future, we see our country growing strong through free enterprise. You Americans should stop talking about our 'oil weapon,' as you call it. We don't feel it is a weapon. If America gets hurt, we will be hurt, too."

Not only do Americans and Saudis think much alike in political terms, but they get along pretty well personally, too. The Saudis are people of great grace and charm, sometimes a little formal but unfailingly friendly. When I talked to Prince Fahd, he was obviously very tired. He had spent more than an hour in a receiving line at an Embassy dinner party, and before that he had been shaking hands all day long with U.S. officials and businessmen. Yet his handshake was firm and he had a ready grin, and he seemed genuinely pleased that an American reporter would ask questions about his country.

"It is good that our countries come together like this," he said through an interpreter. "We should do it more often."

As things look now, we almost certainly will. FW

The Prince and the Secretary. Said the Prince: "We and you Americans—we need each other."

In Which Ways Are Men and Women Unequal?

True or False: Men are really sissies when it comes to enduring pain—women can tolerate more than they can. (See number 2)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Women can't throw and men have clumsy fingers.

2. Men are really sissies when it comes to enduring pain—women can tolerate more than they can.

3. Women have a harder time than men telling right from left.

4. Men react differently to threats than women do.

5. Men are better at judging distances and estimating the speed of moving objects.

ANSWERS

1. True. As one team of investigators has noted in evaluating the findings of leading researches, men generally outclass women in "speed and coordination of gross bodily movements in climbing, jumping, catching and throwing balls, etc." This is attributed to the male's greater strength and quicker reflexes, his ability to bring his muscles into play more quickly and with more power and accuracy. But women have it over men when it comes to manual dexterity—the swift and skillful use of the hands and wrists. It's suggested that "the female's more delicate physique and her greater tactile sensitivity are the assets that contribute to her superior manual dexterity."

2. False—as evidenced by a study sponsored by the U.S. Public Health Service. A test of pain tolerance was included in the routine health examinations given to more than 40,000 persons of both sexes. Pain was induced by a specially designed instrument that gradually increased pressure on the subject's ankle tendon. Each person was told: "This test cannot injure you in any way. Try to stand it as long as you can. It will be stopped as soon as you request it." Results: "Men tolerated more pain than did women. Pain tolerance decreased with increasing age for both sexes... but even the oldest men had a higher average pain tolerance than the youngest women."

3. True. Studies of hundreds of men and women at the University of Southern California Medical School have demonstrated that "Right-left confusion occurs often in adults—even with gifted individuals of superior intellect—and is commoner in women."

4. True. A university study that compared the behavior of men and women students in response to various forms of threats found that "males are somewhat more likely to comply with a threat. But of the non-compliers, males are more likely to behave aggressively and attack the other. Evidence indicates that females respond to a hostile situation by passively resisting or withdrawing."

5. True. Consensus of studies shows that men are superior to women as far as space-perception abilities are concerned. This includes judging distances and estimating the size of stationary objects or the speed of moving ones.

BEFORE YOU BUY A CHEAP PIANO, THINK ABOUT RENTING A BALDWIN.

Low-priced pianos have a way of becoming lower priced pianos in a hurry. They can depreciate fast. And well they should, because they are built to be sold, not played.

Baldwin, on the other hand, is not a low-priced piano. But a Baldwin is a bargain, because it holds its value. It holds its value so well that we can afford to let you rent a Baldwin piano for a very reasonable payment—a perfect plan if someone in your family has started the piano, but might not finish. Then, if you should decide you no longer need a piano, you're not out a great deal of money, and we take back the instrument. But if you decide to keep the Baldwin piano, all payments will be applied to the purchase price.

If you want a piano in your home, we'd like nothing better than to sell you a Baldwin piano—a sound investment for a lifetime. But before you settle for something less, think about renting a Baldwin piano. After all, if you buy a cheap piano, it won't be long before you're singing the blues.

BALDWIN

To receive a copy of the booklet entitled "I wish I had started playing the piano when I was a child", visit your local participating Baldwin dealer, or send 25¢ for postage and handling to P.O. Box 2525, Department FW, Cincinnati, Ohio 45202. It contains some sound advice for parents who are thinking about piano lessons for their child.

NOTE: all applications are subject to review and Columbia House reserves the right to reject any application.

Yes, it's true! — no matter what kind of record or tape buyer you are...whether you buy regularly or just occasionally during the year...you can now join the Columbia Record & Tape Club under the membership plan that best suits your music needs!

And just look at the wide range of recorded entertainment you have to choose from— not only the best and the latest from the huge Columbia catalog...but also new releases and old favorites from A&M, ABC/Dunhill, Bell, Epic, MCA, Mercury, MGM, Parrott, United Artists and many other labels. So no matter what your musical tastes may be, you're sure to find the albums you want when you enroll under either plan.

Membership Plan No. 1...if you join under this plan, you may have ANY 12 of these records or tapes—all 12 for only $1.97. Just fill in the application provided here and mail it in an envelope, together with your check or money order for $1.97 as payment. In exchange, you agree to buy just eight more selections (at regular Club prices) in the next three years...and you may cancel membership any time after doing so.

Membership Plan No. 2...if you're an occasional buyer, this trial membership plan is ideal for you. Just mail the application, together with only $1.00—and you may have ANY 6 of these records or tapes. In exchange, you agree to buy just four more selections (at regular Club prices) during the coming year...and you may cancel membership any time after doing so.

Your own charge account will be opened upon enrollment. The selections you order as a member will be mailed and billed at the regular Club prices: cartridges and cassettes, $6.98 or $7.98; reel tapes, $7.98; records, $5.98 or $6.98—plus processing and postage. (Multiple unit sets and Double Selections may be somewhat higher.)

You may accept or reject selections as follows: every four weeks (13 times a year) you will receive a new copy of the Club's music magazine, which describes the Selection of the Month for each musical interest...plus hundreds of alternate selections from every field of music. In addition, about six times a year we will offer some special selections (usually at a discount off regular Club prices). A response card will always be enclosed with each magazine.

...if you do not want any selection offered, just mail the response card provided by the date specified

...if you want only the Selection of the Month for your musical interest, do nothing—it will be shipped automatically

...if you want any of the other selections offered, just order them on the response card and mail it by the date specified.

You will always have at least 10 days in which to make a decision. If for any reason you do not have 10 days to decide, you may return the Selection of the Month at our expense and receive full credit for it.

You'll be eligible for our bonus plan upon completing your enrollment agreement—a plan which enables you to save at least 33% on all your future purchases. Act now!

At last! Doctor reveals new 6-days-a-week diet that Doesn't Just Shrink Fat Cells, But Destroys Them!

Controversial? Yes! But it may also be the most important reducing discovery of our day! Because here at last is a simple diet that doesn't just empty out the contents of those ugly fat cells, distributed all over your body . . . but destroys, in case after case, the fat-cells themselves!

So—this time—when you start eating normally again, there's no place for that new fat to stay in your body! It can't be drawn up into those empty fat cells as though they were miniature sponges! And you don't blow up like a balloon once you've stopped dieting!

And Best Of All, You Eat Whatever You Want! Anything At All You Want! One Full Day A Week!

So you never really give up a single one of your favorite foods at all! You never really miss the ice cream . . . chocolate . . . pastries . . . desserts . . . pasta . . . creams and sauces . . . and every other single one of the dishes you love now! NONE of them are cut out of your diet! Any one of them you want—any combination of them you want—are completely allowed on that one "FREE DAY" every week!

And You Get Your Choice Of HOW FAST You Want To Peel Off The Weight!

And remember, with this diet, you are not just losing liquid fat—the content of those ugly fat cells that have swelled your body since you were a child—but you are now actually dissolving those very cell walls themselves!

It's exactly as though your body—like the body of every naturally overweight person—had millions upon millions of tiny fat-sponges distributed all over it! And when you over-eat, these tiny sponges "soak up" the excess fat that's carried to them by your bloodstream!

Now you can see why ordinary diets don't last! Because, when you go on an ordinary diet, no matter how torturous it is, that ordinary diet is designed simply to drain out the liquid fat from the INSIDE of those "sponge" cells! It's exactly as though you'd squeezed them dry! They shrink alright! But the "sponge" cells themselves are still there, waiting to soak up MORE AND MORE NEW FAT, once you go off that diet and begin eating normally again!

But Dr. Collins' diet works on an entirely different principle! It is specifically designed to eliminate the building blocks of those cells, at exactly the same time that it eliminates the liquid fat stored within them! So both liquid and solid fat pour out of your body at the same time! The "sponge" is destroyed right along with ugly liquid that swelled it up! And—this time—(to quote Dr. Collins himself), "When you resume a normal diet, you will STAY THIN more consistently"! (Emphasis ours.)

Ingenious? Yes! But Still Only The Beginning! Because The Real Pay-Off Comes Now— In The Breathtaking New Flood Of Health That Pours In To Your Entire Body!

For you must understand this—Dr. Collins developed this powerful diet as only one part of an all-over HOME HEALTH PLAN, designed to give average man and woman, everywhere, who are worried about their weight or any other threat to their continued good health, SIMPLE MEDICAL TOOLS THAT GIVE THEM, AT HOME, NEW MEDICAL POWER TO DEAL WITH THEM!

Yes, Dr. Collins gives you, not only new weight-control, but new disease-control . . . new pain-control . . . new infection-control . . . new fatigue-control! Administered by yourself, at home, with startling results, in case after case, like this:

For each of the major and minor diseases that may attack you or your family, Dr. Collins tell you at a glance: what really causes it . . . how to prevent it . . . how to treat it if it should strike . . . and (perhaps most important of all) when you should do absolutely nothing, leave it alone, and let your body get rid of it itself!

For example—

Most people think severe chest pain is the first warning sign of serious lung or heart disease, and therefore run immediately to their doctors. Dr. Collins, however, gives you a simple 30-second test that usually rules out heart trouble almost completely! And then goes on to how an incredibly easy adjustment to your body may make that pain evaporate—for good!

Most people spend small fortunes trying to overcome chronic constipation, and go through needless agony that only grows worse and worse every year! Dr. Collins shows you a simple way to substitute natural food for those harmful laxatives, and let gastrocolic reflexes give you the relief you want—in many cases, almost immediately! And with no harmful side effects!

Yes, most people never dream of the simple dietary way to banish excruciating migraine pain . . . or how you can let your rheumatoid arthritis burn itself out, without treatment, and without drugs . . . or why many diabetics can treat themselves (unbelievable? See page 148) . . . or how 70% to 80% of kidney stones don't have to be operated on at all to stop them from causing pain . . . or how even multiple sclerosis can often be coaxed to clear itself up, with nothing more than the gentlest home treatment!

But The List Of Pain-Saving, Health-Saving, Dollar-Saving New Revelations Goes On And On! For Example . . .

Why, and when, you can treat the following illnesses, without your doctor: Acute diarrhea (as long as there is no temperature) . . . upset stomach . . . most hay fever . . . shingles . . . hemorrhoids . . . dizziness . . . athlete's foot . . . acne . . . gout . . . diverticulitis . . . phlebitis . . . even to a great extent Parkinson's disease and asthma and many more—if you know the right way to do it!

World's most effective way to relieve fatigue—without getting more sleep or spending one cent for medical or psychiatric treatments!

New hope for back sufferers! Including how to live with even a herniated disk for years, without needing surgery!

An almost foolproof way to wipe out anemia—the natural way!

What you can do to prevent pneumonia! And tuberculosis! And high blood cholesterol!

Two deadly cancers that can now be wiped out completely!

A new, superfast treatment for hangover—far more powerful than any other you can use!

How women who wish to, can delay menopause—for years!

Why "old age diseases" are actually a myth! And why you can simply laugh at them!

And More! And More! And More! Everything You MUST Know To Protect Your Vitality and Health! PLUS THE REVOLUTIONARY NEW DIET THAT GIVES YOU BACK THE FIGURE OF YOUR DREAMS . . . FOR GOOD!

Once again, perhaps the best way to prove the overwhelming benefits this book will give you, is simply to turn at once to page 88, and start on the most exciting new diet of your entire life!

Remember, THIS diet not only drains out the liquid fat from your body, but destroys the fat cells themselves! And does it, without your giving up a single one of the foods you love on that blissful Free Day each week!

Just think what you'll look like, without those ugly fat cells spread out in lumpy pockets all over your body!

And then imagine HOW MUCH BETTER YOU'LL FEEL AT EXACTLY THE SAME TIME—because THIS book not only takes care of your fat-problem, but all your other health problems as well!

Why not get started on the new, beautiful life it offers you—today!

*Recipe given

WURSTSALAD

2 cans (1 lb. size) sauerkraut, drained
1 lb. knockwurst, julienne cut
¼ lb. sliced salami, julienne cut
1 cup coarsely chopped kosher dill pickles
½ cup sliced large pimiento-stuffed green olives
⅓ cup sugar
⅔ cup vegetable oil
⅓ cup kosher dill-pickle liquid
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¾ teaspoon celery seed
¾ teaspoon salt
Few twists freshly ground black pepper
Crisp lettuce leaves

1. In 3-qt. bowl, combine sauerkraut, knockwurst, salami, pickles, olives and sugar.

2. In a jar combine vegetable oil, dill-pickle liquid, mustard, Worcestershire sauce, celery seed, salt and pepper. Cover tightly and shake until well mixed.

3. Pour dressing over sauerkraut mixture. Toss well. Chill.

4. Serve in lettuce-lined salad bowl.

You don't even have to leave home!!! No age limits!

Start learning NOW. At home, or in the garage, in your spare time — no outside classes to attend. If you can tie a knot and drive a tack, you can learn this business, quickly, easily. You start learning the basics right away through the proven MUI Home Training Plan. And before you're barely into it, you can start doing the simple upholstering, refinishing and restyling jobs that are all around you waiting to be done. Chairs, cushions, seats, footstools. Even before MUI students finish their training, people start bringing jobs to them, and remember — the world is full of furniture that needs fixing and reupholstering and more is wearing out all the time!

COUPLES WELCOME

Special Plan enables you to learn & earn together

"What started as a hobby, now pays me up to $16.00 on hour." Yes, many MUI graduates make better than $10 an hour turning old worn out furniture into bright new decorator pieces! Stack it up against what you're doing now! Are you making $150 a week? $200? $250? Do you put in long hours of dull work with small raises? Is that the way you want to spend the rest of your life? Just imagine, you can make $150, $200, $250 upholstering, refinishing or restyling just one chair or sofa these days! And if you're the kind of person who likes to work and earn, you can sometimes finish a job like this in a day. That's pay . . . and it beats what most college graduates make!

Just IMAGINE! Refinishing included!

INTO A BEAUTIFUL SHOWPIECE LIKE THIS WORTH $250, OR MORE!

As you learn, you just slip into the immense flow of upholstery work! Think of all there is! . . . Sofas, lounging chairs finished in beautiful fabrics, which MUI tells you how to get at the right price — even leather and all the new vinyls. And then you have built-ins and breakfast nooks, boats, trailers and all the millions of automobiles in America. Yes, you learn all this and more! When we finish teaching you (in your spare time), and when you get our California state approved diploma, you know this business . . . as a real professional! You will then have one of the most fantastic money-making skills in America built into your head and hands! No one can ever take this skill away from you . . . and no one can ever fire you, because you're the boss of a business that you can take with you . . . You can make big money from then on . . . any time, any place you want to put out your shingle!

6 LEARN-BY-DOING — REAL FURNITURE KITS INCLUDED WITH YOUR TRAINING — NO EXTRA COST!

IT'S AUTOMATION PROOF!

When you read the papers and see there's a strike here, a lockout there, Detroit lays off 150,000 men. A plant is shut down and moved out of state. A new automated machine eliminates 5,000 jobs. They talk about dislocated workers and try to do something about it. Who pays the bills if you get caught up in one of these situations? When you know upholstering, life gets very simple and lots of fun. It's simple because where there are people, there are upholstery jobs and lots of them. It's fun because life is fun when the bills are paid and there's money in the bank, even enough to buy those things you've always wanted for yourself.

Maybe you'll smoke them for the same reason I do.

There's been a lot of words in the papers about smoking.

Kind of reminds me of that old line — 'everything I like is either illegal, immoral, or fattening.'

Now I won't say that I wasn't hassled by what I read.

But, I just didn't want to give up smoking. I guess I enjoy it too much. But it sure was enough to get me thinking.

So I tried one of those low 'tar' menthols. It was like sucking a straw of hot air.

Then I noticed that a lot of guys I knew smoked Vantage Menthol. Its special filter didn't make Vantage the lowest 'tar' and nicotine menthol. Just the lowest they enjoyed.

So I tried it, and liked it. And discovered something else I liked, too. The tobacco taste comes through the menthol.

Now I can feel I'm still smoking a cigarette. Not a piece of menthol candy.

If you like Vantage Menthol as much as I do, you could wind up writing their next ad.

How to Make Up to Fall's Fabulous Clothes

Autumn's fuller silhouettes fairly wrap you up—here's how to keep your face and hair the showstoppers.

By Rosalyn Abrevaya
Women's Feature Editor

The big loose look is here this fall. Lots of full coats and swashbuckling capes will be wrapped with yards of scarves and mufflers that go on and on. Heads will be covered with real hats, schoolgirl berets or bulky-knit caps.

After-five clothes will be a breeze, with flowing chiffons or jerseys often wrapped with ostrich feathers. Tentlike cover-ups will flow over styles eased away from the body, and the evening pajama will play on for another season.

The fall colors often will be somber, running the gamut from deep navy, wine and bottle green to earthy neutrals.

Will your face get lost above layers of muted dressing? Not if you wear brighter, natural-looking makeup. Then attention will be focused where it really belongs: on you, not the fashion.

Hair will be more important than ever, too, worn soft, often fluffed at the sides, and casually placed to balance the wider silhouettes.

Wigs with the look of real, healthy hair will be one way to achieve an instant frame for your face above the fuller proportions. Experiment with the many new reds. Even non-redheads can have auburn tresses or flaming locks with a wig and appropriate makeup. (Nancy Dziuban, shown here, is wearing a trio of Elura wigs that look and feel like the real thing.)

How do you achieve a captivating face for the current fall season and beyond? Turn to the complete beauty lesson on page 16.

Makeup by Evelyn Marshall. Jewelry: Alexis Kirk
Hair Stylist: André Douglas

For evening wear, try a deeper eye shadow—accented by a full hairstyle that's rolled and anchored into a wig.

The sweeping line of her hairdo offsets this season's bulky look. A highlighter rouge enchances skin tone.

Bright color on your face contrasts with the new earth-tone clothes to bring out a more natural look. Why not add a fresh and full short red-haired wig, too?

Would You Wear a Wig?

By Arlene Dahl

For a completely authentic look with a wig your own color, sweep your hair back into the wig.

Why not, says this beauty celebrity, when you've seen what a long way they've come!

4 months ago I was a gray, plump mother of 3. Now I'm a trim, brunette college freshman.

I'm still a mother of 3. But I'm a whole lot more. And nobody's happier about it than Jim and the children! I guess it all happened because I saw my "babies" growing up so fast, needing me less and less.

If they missed a meal my whole day would seem shot. And I knew I had to do more with the next decade of my life than sit around counting my birthdays and gray hairs, making my children feel guilty for leading their own lives!

I think the whole thing got going the day I got the courage to color my hair. I'd always been a little afraid of haircolor, but I'd heard that Loving Care® lotion was a very different proposition. And it is!

It's not a permanent dye or a peroxide thing. It doesn't change your own color. It just rinses away the gray. And looks really natural—with soft natural highlights.

Well, it was so exciting to get my own brunette color back it gave me the encouragement for once to really stick to my diet. And now here I am—starting college! Of course, I only go part time. But it's a start.

But that's what's so great. To see, at this point in my life, so many things ahead. To feel, in so many ways, I've only just begun!

Loving Care®

Dress up with a different color and style of hair. You can scratch your head through the mesh!

Far left: Give your hair a beauty rest under a wig. To change your mood, go blonde. Left: Whose hair is this? It's as natural as Arlene's own—because it is!

If two heads are better than one, then why not three, four or five!

I'm speaking of wigs, the instant chic for those occasions when:

- You've run out of time and your husband is bringing the boss home to dinner.
- That handsome new VP in the office asks you to dinner and your hair isn't "done."
- You're going on your first business trip and want to make a good impression day and night.

Wigs are the answer. Fashion-conscious women are adding wigs to their wardrobes in multiples – the way they buy dresses, pants suits, shoes—to mirror their changing moods and complement their lifestyles; to alter their image with a smashing new color; to bring out another facet of their personality. New hairstyles and colors are translated into wigs the instant they make news, which means you can find the exact style and color you want, as well as the special effects of tipping, frosting or streaking.

HOW WIGS PERFORM

Wigs today are no longer a luxury but a necessity. They bear no resemblance, either in performance, price, upkeep or comfort, to the wigs of yesterday. They are made of synthetic fibers that look so much like real hair that no one, not even an "expert," can detect the difference. (I know, I've actually won bets on this!) Anything your hair can do, a synthetic wig can do—sometimes better. Since both color and style are permanent, you can wear your wig in the sun without changing its color or in the rain without damaging its set. Synthetic materials also shun dirt and dust, so you only have to wash your wig a few times a year—a quick, easy task performed in minutes with cool water and a mild shampoo. An occasional shaking out and brushing is all the additional attention it needs. And it travels beautifully. Just turn it inside out and toss it in your suitcase.

ARE WIGS COMFORTABLE?

In the past, wearing a wig was a hot and heavy experience that made heads ache and in some cases damaged hair and scalp. Not anymore. Heavy, tight caps have given way to lightweight lacy bands or honeycomb stretch nets into which the strands of hair are sewn. These innovations allow the scalp to breathe naturally while they stretch gently in all directions to fit any head size or shape. (You can even scratch your head through them!)

DO WIGS HARM HAIR?

Wigs are not harmful. In some cases they can actually improve the condition of your hair. Hair that is dry, sun-damaged, overteased or overbleached can "rest up" under a wig. I even wear a wig while treating my hair with an oil conditioner—and no one's the wiser. I apply the conditioner, massage it through my hair and into my scalp. Next I cut off the upper half of an old stocking, tie a knot at one end, slip it over my head and tuck my hair under it. Then I put on a wig that duplicates my usual hairstyle.

HOW TO PUT ON A WIG

Putting on a wig takes practice. This is how I do it:

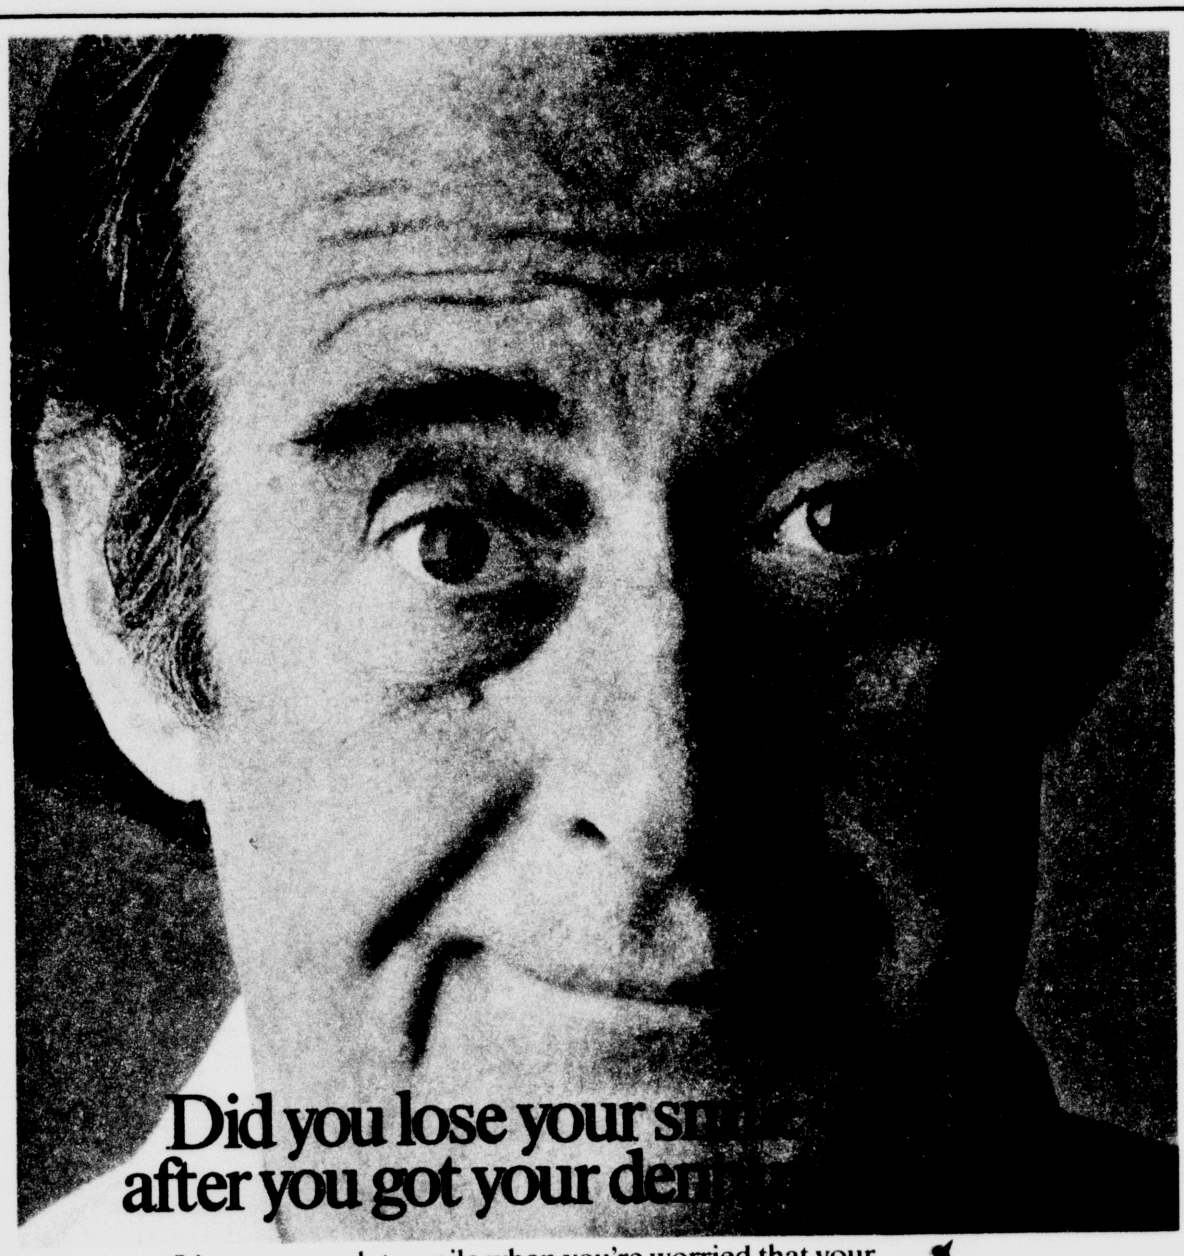

First, pin up every strand of hair firmly. A stray end sneaking out from under your wig will give your secret away. (I use bobby pins to arrange my hair in a French knot in back.)

Now take hold of the temple pieces inside the wig (the small bits of buckram attached to the lining on both sides) and, keeping the label at the back, put on the wig as you would a bathing cap—from the forehead on back (the buckram pieces should be in front of your ears). Once the wig is in place, set it slightly back from your hairline and secure it at the crown, in back of each ear and at the nape of the neck with hairpins or bobby pins. (Be sure the pins match the color of the wig and are completely covered by the hair.)

Now, with the tail of your comb, bring out your front hair (about an inch from ear to ear should do) and comb or brush it back into the wig. If your wig is not an off-the-face style, brush your hair down onto your forehead into curls or waves. Ideally, your hair should be approximately the same length in front as the wig, as well as the same color. If your hair is a lighter shade, you can achieve a streaked effect, which can be flattering if you are prematurely gray or if you are a blonde and have chosen a light-auburn wig.

For practical reasons (no time for extra fussing after work, swimming or tennis) or for fashion reasons (instant chic, a new image, variety), the important fact about wigs is that they can help every woman to look properly groomed at all times.

Make Up to Fall

Cosmetic genius Evelyn Marshall, who has made up more than one Hollywood star (including Greta Garbo) in her time and has her own makeup-consultant business, believes in the natural look. "Sometimes it takes the application of more makeup for a face to look as if it has none on," she says.

Here's how to get a "total beauty" effect:

Foundation: Choose a color as near to your complexion as possible. The correct texture is important, too. Here's how to judge your current foundation: If it skids into the expression lines on your skin after a few hours, it is too oily. Or if it changes color and looks mottled (yellow or rose-splotched in certain areas), it is because the foundation is too oily or the moisturizer used before makeup should be eliminated.

Cheek Color: Find your true blush tone by rubbing a spot on the inside of your wrist at the base of the thumb (do this when choosing a foundation, too) until it feels warm. Your blood will surface and give you your natural tone. When using rouge, if your nose is wide, keep the color away from the center of your face, applying it no closer to your nose than under the outer corner of your eyes, then over the cheekbones. If your nose is too narrow, bring the rouge closer.

Eyeshadow: If your eyes are too deep-set, you can apply a pale pastel, beige or off-white to the lids. To disguise a hooded or puffy lid, use a gray-brown shadow applied with a thick, slanted shadow brush, following exactly the shape of the top of eyeball under the brow bone.

Compare photos. A defined eye makeup and blusher help when wearing a new tuck-in beret.

Eyeliner: The proper use of eyeliner can make your eyes appear larger and your lashes look longer. The idea is to choose a color near to your own hair color (but not a harsh black) in a cake liner (for a softer look). Use an extra-fine brush, dipping it in water, then working it into the cake; roll the brush to a fine point against the cake and apply the liner in the thinnest line possible from the inside corner to the outer. Do not extend the line beyond the outer corner.

A marvelous trick for any eye: Softly etch a blue pencil inside the lower rims. The color reflects into the eyes, making them appear whiter and brighter.

Eyebrows: Properly contoured brows, which Evelyn Marshall believes can "make or break" a total look, should be brushed and groomed into a natural shape (tweezing stray hairs from below the brows), with sparse areas filled in with a brush-on-brow powder. Use a back stroke to apply the powder from the outer end of the brows inward, then brush them back into place. Do not round off the brows at the ends—it calls attention to jowls at the chin line.

Lipstick: Finally, for the fall fashions, choose one of the new muted lipsticks in a brownish-red or medium-toned copper shade. Too light a lipstick is aging and accents facial shadows; a too bright one detracts from the desired big-eyed look.

To finish off your cosmetic effort (this includes eyelids), blot your face with a moist sponge. Your makeup will last longer.

COOKIE ROJAS:
The Gallant Saga of Cookie, a Hero Back From Defeat

Baseball players may not have nine lives but Octavio "Cookie" Rojas has proved they have at least two. The 35-year-old Rojas was an infield star for years with the Philadelphia Phillies and was even voted Philadelphia's greatest all-time second baseman. Then he began to slip and the Philadelphia management decided that old age had caught up with him. They traded him away, and he wound up with Kansas City in the American League. But instead of quitting, he embarked on a physical-conditioning program that included losing weight and playing winter baseball to improve his legs. The treatment worked—he regained his old skills and became a four-time selection for the American League's All-Star team. . . . A native of Havana, Rojas came to the U.S. in 1956, but became homesick and returned to his homeland to play for the Havana Sugar Kings. When Castro broke off relations with the U.S., the Sugar Kings were moved to Jersey City. Rojas returned to the States to stay, and when he moved up to the major leagues tried to arrange for his family to join him here. The Castro government refused to allow them to emigrate. For seven years Rojas expended a great deal of time, energy and money trying to get them out. His efforts finally paid off when his father, mother and three sisters were allowed to come to America and share in his success. . . . Homesickness has not been Rojas' only ailment. In 1971 he suffered a cracked bone in his right ankle and was knocked out for the last portion of the season. There was fear that he was through, but he disproved this in the years that have followed. He reached new major highs in runs-batted-in, doubles and stolen bases in 1973, but then was jolted by the discovery that his wife Candy had an abdominal tumor. He said if she failed to recover, he would not return to baseball. But surgery proved successful, and Rojas has been the spark plug for the Kansas City team throughout the current season.—By Barry Abramson

($3.49 VALUE)

Here's how our computer can build your youngster's love of reading!

READ ABOUT ME™ Books are the nicest thing ever for youngsters 3 to 9. When your child reads a book in which he's the leading character, with adventures that occur right on his own street with his own friends, the effect is spectacular. It's more than just fun—it's the best kind of learning motivation. No child ever outgrows his interest in himself and what's close to him!

What does our computer write about? Well, each beautifully illustrated hardcover book features your child's name... his brothers, sisters and friends... his pets... his street address... his town and state. Even his birthday appears in the stories. All told, each book is personalized in over 55 places throughout its pages.

READ ABOUT ME™ introduces a new dimension in children's learning: personalized reading. Never before have there been books that relate your child to himself and to specific people and places he knows. The result: stories that your child will cherish... will read over and over ...will be eager to share with all his young friends.

Just imagine how thrilled your favorite youngster will be when his name appears time after time in books that are filled with family, friends and great adventures. READ ABOUT ME™ Books will hold his attention as no ordinary books can. And his interest in reading is likely to increase dramatically, so he can learn with more enjoyment than ever before.

A recent experiment in California proved that children enjoyed reading, and learned more, when the book was personalized throughout. One teacher, Ms. Juliette Lang, said that her children had been given other new storybooks during the school semester, but had reacted far more to the READ ABOUT ME™ Book. "Personalization was the key." Said group supervisor Roberta Smith, "What an amazing difference personalization makes. It's an entirely new experience." In a report by reading specialists Helen Petrie and Sue Schrager, READ ABOUT ME™ Books were highly praised as a great way to help children develop positive reading habits. Their comment: "To enjoy reading one book is a strong incentive to read other books."

Act now. Help your child discover the most interesting books he's ever read or had read to him: books about himself. And remember—the first volume is yours FREE, with no obligation to purchase anything, ever!

Demond Wilson: Sanford's Son Talks About Everything But Sanford

Pictorial Parade

Demond has just recently been married to actress-model Cicely Johnston.

"Cicely and I get along well. In fact, she's the only real friend I have. I don't mix well. I never did."

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

We met at the Hollywood Brown Derby for lunch. Demond Wilson looked dapper, dressed in the latest fashion—and was enjoying it.

FAMILY WEEKLY: Demond—what kind of a name is that?

DEMOND: Kind of odd, isn't it? I was named after a love of my aunt's. She was a dancer, and during the Depression she went to Paris hoping to find work. Instead, she found a boyfriend—a Frenchman named Demond. When Mother became pregnant with me, my aunt suggested that she name me Demond if I was a boy. My mother said, "That's a name I never heard of and it sure isn't a name for a black kid, especially not my black kid."

FW: So how did you get it?

DEMOND: My aunt told my mother if she didn't name me Demond, she'd never talk to her again.

FW: Did your mother push you into show business?

DEMOND: You mean, was she a stage mother? She certainly was. Thanks to her I did my first Broadway play when I was four and a half.

FW: What does your father do?

DEMOND: He's a tailor in the cleaning business. He's a very simple man. I often tell him, "Pa, you're a very simple man." He's also a great-looking guy. I get my good looks from him.

FW: You've played Redd Foxx's son since "Sanford and Son" started on TV. How did you feel when he refused to go on?

DEMOND: Sorry, but I won't answer any Redd Foxx questions, except to say he's a great guy and I love him dearly.

FW: How far did you go in school?

DEMOND: I had two and a half years of college. I left when I was drafted.

FW: Did you go to Vietnam?

DEMOND: Yeah, I ended up near Pleiku,

Do you suffer from painful elimination?

If you do, you're not alone. Thousands of people experience pain from dry, hard stools. The reason is often constipation or hemorrhoids. What you need is something that will soften intestinal waste for smooth, comfortable relief.

That's exactly what Serutan does. Serutan is a softening laxative that helps to relieve painful elimination. It forms a smooth,mild gel that supplies moisture and bulk to bring effective relief without strain or griping.

Serutan is the same formula as the laxative prescribed by many doctors to give their patients the relief they want with real comfort.

Do you suffer from painful elimination? Get gentle, effective Serutan today.

FW: Is it true you were badly hurt when you were in the service?

DEMOND: I don't want to talk about my time in the service. But I can tell you one thing: I came back bitter and depressed. That's why I wouldn't stay in the States then. I was so full of hostility I had to leave.

FW: Where did you go?

DEMOND: I went to Europe, mostly to Paris and Copenhagen. I think I had something like 75 cents on me when I arrived in Paris. I stayed in Europe for 16 months.

FW: What made you come back?

DEMOND: I thought I was kind of hypocritical. On the one hand, I wanted nothing to do with anyone or anything that reminded me of Vietnam. On the other hand, I kept buying American magazines and newspapers. So I decided I might as well come back and get adjusted to starting life all over.

FW: You just got married recently to Cicely Johnston. What does your wife do?

DEMOND: She's a model. She's been on a lot of album covers.

FW: Obviously there must be a lot of things about her that you like. Is there anything that you don't care for?

DEMOND: We get along well. In fact, she's the only real friend I have. I don't mix well. I never did. Of course, there are times when I get bored with her. I am sure there are times when she gets bored with me. I think that's rather normal.

FW: Why don't you have any friends?

DEMOND: Probably because I am not a man's man. I never got along too well with men. With ladies—that's a different thing. The only time I got along with men was in Vietnam because we were in a situation where we had to learn to lean on one another out of necessity.

FW: How did you ever get the nickname Peter Prep?

DEMOND: Because I like clothes. Nice clothes. It would be kind of difficult to be dressed in sandals and blue jeans and then have a great big Cadillac like I do.

FW: Where do you live now?

DEMOND: We have a house in Beverly Hills, and a housekeeper and a Japanese gardener to take care of it.

FW: Didn't you spend some time in Japan?

DEMOND: Lots of it. But black people in Japan are like double outcasts.

FW: What do you mean?

DEMOND: Well, it seems to me that to most Japanese, except in cities like Tokyo, Americans are no-nos. If you are a black American, you are a no-no-no. When I was in Yokohama, kids would stare at me. Adults, too. But I liked it better than Hong Kong. Everything is so smelly there. So dirty. So crowded. And so many clip joints.

FW: What do you want out of life?

DEMOND: To fulfill myself, to enjoy what I'm doing. I don't like being bored. Mostly I like to do things that make me happy without hurting other people in the process.

FREEDOM FROM FEAR

FREEDOM OF WORSHIP

FREEDOM FROM WANT

FREEDOM OF SPEECH

AN IMPORTANT NOTICE TO ALL AMERICANS AND ART COLLECTORS

THE HAMILTON MINT PROUDLY PRESENTS

Norman Rockwell's Four Freedoms

A Memorable New Limited Edition of 1000 Grain Pure Silver Ingots
The Largest and Heaviest Ever Struck by The Hamilton Mint

A Strictly Limited Edition.
Orders must be postmarked
by November 30, 1974
LIMIT: ONE SET PER SUBSCRIBER

NORMAN ROCKWELL, by far America's greatest and best loved artist, has for more than fifty years brought joy to millions of Americans young and old.

Now, by exclusive permission of The Saturday Evening Post, The Hamilton Mint is extremely proud to issue, and thus preserve, forever, in stunningly beautiful silver ingots, the greatest of all his works, "The Four Freedoms."

Rockwell created the original masterpieces during World War II in a burst of patriotic fervor. They depict ever so wonderfully those great values held very dearly in the hearts of all Americans. And they are just as truly inspiring now as they were then.

The Hamilton Mint believes that in these troubled times, our nation sorely needs to rededicate itself to these great beliefs: Freedom of Speech, Freedom of Worship, Freedom from Fear and Freedom from Want. So with purpose, and with great pride, we present this magnificent collection.

Mr. Rockwell Talks About His Four Freedoms

"When Roosevelt and Churchill issued their famous Atlantic Charter, with its Four Freedoms proclamation, I tried to read it . . . but I hadn't been able to get beyond the first paragraph. The language was so noble. Then one night . . . I thought, that's it! I'll illustrate the Four Freedoms using my Vermont neighbors as models. I'll express the ideas in simple, everyday scenes . . . put them down in terms everybody can understand."

Norman Rockwell depicted these great beliefs with his own inimitable and unique brand of genius. Freedom of Speech is portrayed by a man unafraid of reprisal as he speaks his mind at a town meeting . . . Freedom of Worship shows all people free to worship according to their own dictates . . . Freedom from Want is depicted by a family sharing their Thanksgiving meal together and Freedom from Fear is shown tenderly by a mother and father as they snuggle their children safely in bed for the night. Rockwell himself says "The Four Freedoms was the best idea I ever had."

A Strictly Limited First Edition

This First Edition will be of special interest to knowledgeable collectors. Not only because they represent Rockwell's greatest work but traditionally, first editions have always been the most valued. To insure the integrity of this edition, ingots will be struck to fill orders postmarked by November 30, 1974. Once those orders are filled, no more first edition ingots will ever be minted.

An Exclusive Treasury in .999 Fine Silver of Rockwell Masterpieces

The original Rockwell paintings shown at right, are of epic proportions. And so will be the ingots. Each beautifully sculptured ingot will measure 1¾" x 2¼" and will contain 1000 grains of .999 fine silver, the purest and finest silver available. These ingots will contain more than twice the silver of our standard ingot. Each magnificent ingot will be struck in high bas-relief with a satiny image and antique finish to clearly show every detail of the great art. These will be the largest and heaviest art ingots ever struck by The Hamilton Mint.

Quotations from "My Adventures As An Illustrator" by Norman Rockwell

Your Valuable Personal Serial Number

Your First Edition Collection will be minted expressly for you and each ingot will be inscribed with your personal matching serial number along with The Hamilton Mint Hallmark. As an advance subscriber you will anticipate the same thrill that all art sponsors feel as they await their commissioned art. In addition, you will receive a certificate of authenticity to certify the limited edition status and precious metal content of each ingot.

Significant Investment Potential

We feel that many limited edition silver mintings are good investments but none do we feel has the potential of this particular Rockwell collection. And this important artistic and historic collection comes at a time when leading economists are predicting that silver and gold will continue to become more valuable in the years to come. Collectors have already realized bonanzas. For example, a 1970 Christmas Ingot was issued for $12.00 and now brings $195.00. A 1972 Thanksgiving Ingot containing 1 oz. of silver originally sold for $4.50 and now brings about $25.00. So please act promptly to share in the excitement of owning this magnificent collection.

Guaranteed Price Protection

Subscribers to The Four Freedoms are guaranteed the original purchase price, no matter how high the price of silver may escalate. You will receive your first ingot soon after your application is accepted and the three additional ingots at monthly intervals thereafter. The Hamilton Mint will not accept any orders postmarked after November 30, 1974, but if your application is postmarked by the deadline and accepted, your subscription price is guaranteed.

Deluxe Edition of 24 KT. Gold on .999 Fine Silver

This special edition is the ultimate in beauty and combines the Pure Silver ingots with a layer of 24 KT. Gold. To further enhance the potential value of this edition, it is being offered to a very restricted number of subscribers. Only those orders postmarked by November 30, 1974 will be accepted. Each ingot will also be individually hallmarked and serially numbered.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

I DIDN'T MAKE THIS UP

My wife makes up our beds each morning.
She needs no prompting, scolding, warning.
From side to side and foot to head
With every move the task is sped.
She has the skill, the strength, endurance;
She does the job with great assurance.
And as she gives the final touch
And smooths the covers just so much,
I wish (a thought I shall not tell)
She made her mind up half as well.

Boy to friend on school bus: "This morning I woke up with chills, fever, headache, sore throat and upset stomach, but it didn't work."
—Conrad Fiorello

Two infants were reminiscing and one said, "Goo-goo-da-da [Remember when the doctor raised his huge hand to slap your behind]?" The other said, "Goo-goo? Wa, ga-ga [Remember? Why, my whole life flashed in front of me]." —Robert Brault

My life is an open book – and my wife is the editor. —Robert Orben

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES

Kids see life differently. Send original contributions to "Child," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022. $10 if used—none returned.

My six-year-old daughter was looking forward with excitement to her first day in school. When the great day dawned, she bounced out of bed at seven and was outside waiting for the bus at eight. She was still enthusiastic when she got home that afternoon. The next morning, however, when my wife woke her at 7:30, she wasn't quite so happy. "What?" she protested angrily. "Again?" —Richard T. Krajecki

PSYCHIC DAVID HOY
New "readings"

Kentucky psychic David Hoy, who has used his ESP powers to make thousands of dollars in real estate and investment interests, made these "readings" for FAMILY WEEKLY:

- A tennis star will turn TV star in a series to begin shooting in late September.
- Patty Hearst will turn up—outside the country!
- A ship collision in the approach to New York; oil spill will be minor.
- Another outbreak of hostilities in the Middle East (but not involving Israel) in the early fall.
- A conglomerate of African nations will explode a nuclear device in the summer of 1975.
- A political assassination in the winter of 1975 will send shock waves all the way to Peking.
- Gerald Ford will not be the Republican nominee for President in 1976.

PRINCESS CAROLINE
Rumors and smiles

No sooner did Californian Mary Jo Watkins return from England where she visited Prince Charles, than rumors started up again linking Charles with Princess Caroline, daughter of Grace Kelly and Prince Rainier of Monaco. Reporters say Caroline and Charles have met recently. Whatever is really going on, however, remains to be seen.

How can anyone who's heard of Budd Rice, Jr., criticize young people as creatures with a tendency to sit around all day? Over 300,000 of them from 1,500 schools participate in the Marine Corps Youth Physical Fitness program every year. This year, Budd Rice, a 16-year-old high school sophomore from Seneca, Pa., was one of the finalists in Washington, D.C. He completed 100 sit-ups in two minutes and 60 push-ups in the same amount of time. He also made a standing broad jump of 9 feet, 9¾ inches and ran a 300-yard shuttle course in 47.4 seconds. What have you done for exercise today?

BIG BROTHER BELT
It takes your temperature

A fascinating belt that keeps a watchful eye on your body temperature, the air temperature and the level of air pollution has been developed by Dr. Thomas Davison, James Fergason and Maryann Scherr of Akron, Ohio. It is made out of stainless steel inlaid with silver and is decorative as well as useful. The belt works this way: Its five circles are filled with liquid crystals. As soon as there is a marked difference in atmospheric or body conditions, the crystals change color from red to blue or back again. The visual effect is informative as well as intriguing.

FOR A PRIZE WINNING ROSE GARDEN

—the world's hig

ALL 12 ROSES for $11.88 — ONLY 99¢ each
ANY 6 for $6.95 — ANY 3 for $3.55

Already Selected and Tried . . . These Are The Best Roses You Can Buy . . . Now at Low, Low Prices.

Only the rose has such great beauty of form, pleasing color range, delightful fragrance and is so adaptable to almost every flower garden. However, since there are thousands of different roses, you can only be sure of beautiful blooms by selecting varieties that continually rate high and prove popular year after year by amateur and expert alike. That is why the American Rose Society official rose rating system has been our guide in bringing you this outstanding rose offering. Not only is every rose offered here recognized as rated, six have been honored as "ALL AMERICA ROSE SELECTION" winners. All are offered at final money saving "last call" prices. Check your selections on the coupon below and mail now. You will receive a PROMPTNESS BONUS of a double-flowering ROSE OF SHARON when your roses arrive for fall planting.

EVERY ROSE GUARANTEED TO BLOOM

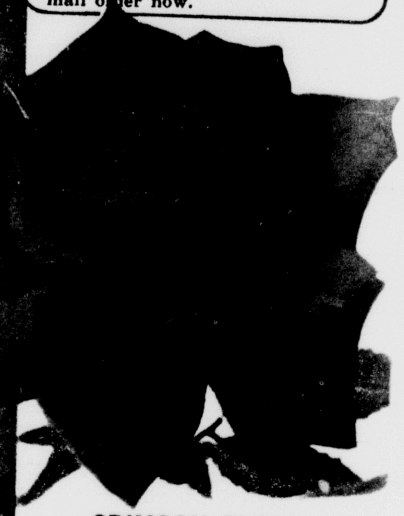

1. Be satisfied on arrival for fall planting or return within 10 days for purchase price refund.
2. Any fall planted rose not blooming this year and for 5 years, replacement is free.
3. If you purchase from us and see the same rose variety in the same size at a lower price, upon receipt of proof we will refund the difference in cash.

FREE DOUBLE FLOWERING ROSE OF SHARON SHRUB Without Extra Cost

CRIMSON GLORY

Deep velvety blooms are highest red of all . . . and most fragrant, too. Blooms in profusion all summer long. Rated 8.3 and ever popular. Only $1.19 each.

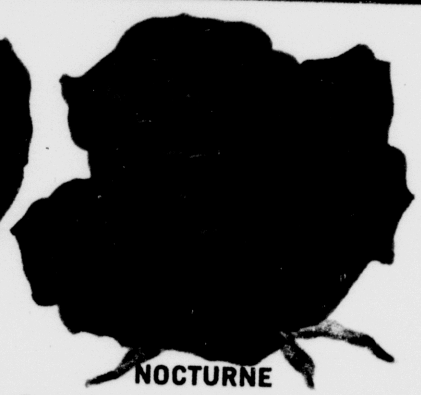

CHARLOTTE ARMSTRONG

Another former "ALL AMERICA ROSE SELECTION" winner rated 8.4. Long buds open to wavy-petaled, high centered, light reddish-pink blooms. Consistent bloomer. Only $1.19 each.

FORTY-NINER

Blooms all summer long with brilliantly contrasting petals that are vivid Oriental red inside and chrome yellow outside. Grows to 3 feet high. Former "ALL AMERICA ROSE SELECTION" winner rated 6.1. Only $1.19 each.

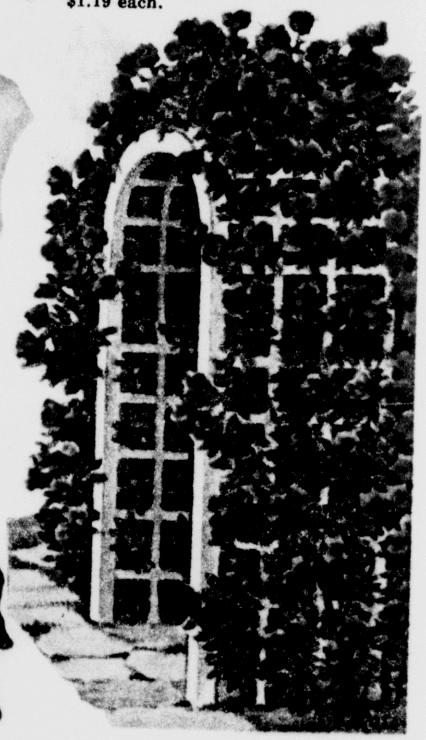

NOCTURNE

This velvety deep cardinal-red rose has one of the longest, most perfectly formed buds of any rose in its color range. Pleasantly fragrant, Nocturne is a former "ALL AMERICA ROSE SELECTION" winner. Rated 7.3. Only $1.19 each.

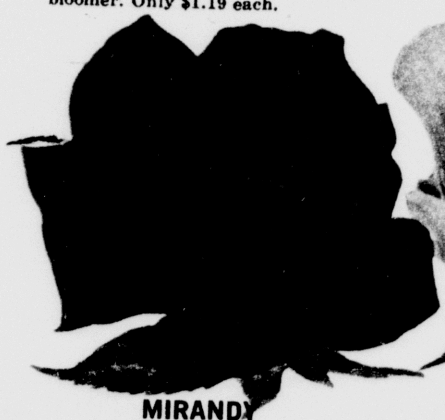

QUEEN ELIZABETH

Truly one of the most breathtakingly beautiful roses, its lovely pink flowers bloom early June to frost. Delightfully fragrant. Former "ALL AMERICA ROSE SELECTION" winner, very highly rated at 9.3. Only $1.19 each.

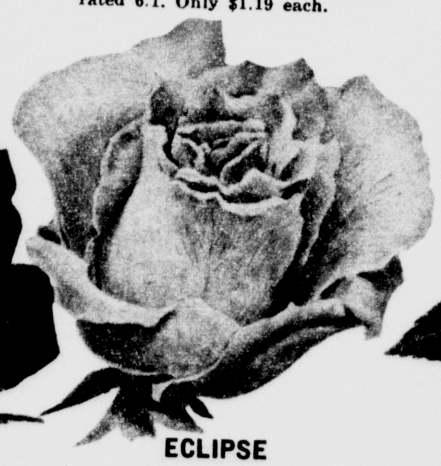

CLIMBING BLAZE

This champion climber produces a living blanket of big, 2 to 3 inch scarlet-red double blooms on many branched canes. Blooms again and again summer into fall, covering trellis, walls, fences with vivid color. Rated 7.9. Only $1.19 each.

MIRANDY

Strong, vigorous grower produces many surprisingly large well formed blooms, as befits a past "ALL AMERICA ROSE SELECTION" winner. Purplish-red maroon color. Rated 7.1. Only $1.19 each.

ECLIPSE

Profuse and remarkably long pointed buds open to deep-cupped, long-lasting doubled golden yellow blooms that come in waves far into fall. Eclipse is showy, alternately green, then yellow. Rated 7.5. Only $1.19 each.

THE DOCTOR

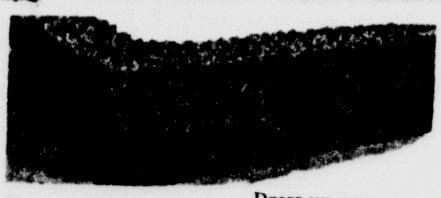

Long pointed buds expand to enormous blooms of silvery, satiny pink. Light green soft foliaged bush grows into a compact mound 2 to 3 feet high. Rated 6.9. Only $1.19 each.

RED PINOCCHIO

Rated 7.9, this free-flowering rose complements any garden with its clusters of double petaled, cup-shaped scarlet blooms up to 3 inches across. Extremely hardy. Only $1.19 each.

ANOTHER FALL PLANTING BARGAIN

100 FOOT PRIVET HEDGE

Check order on coupon and mail today.

SEND NO MONEY

Under 3-way guarantee you order literally "on-approval" and plant on trial. These are strong, vigorously healthy Rose Bushes . . . all highly rated by the American Rose Society . . . graded #2 standard size, 1 to 2 years old, branched and with 2 or more canes. To get your choices delivered prepruned for fall planting, simply check coupon. If C.O.D., postage is extra. Cash orders add 75¢ so we can send roses prepaid. Mail your order before deadline and your valuable Rose of Sharon Shrub will come in same package. Roses are the exciting provider of garden beauty. Check and send coupon . . . now!

Rose varieties selected by our own experts as being suitable for most parts of the U.S.A. In severely cold climates check for hardiness. Blooms illustrated are reasonably accurate but may vary because nature often turns out shapes and color found nowhere else. Rose of Sharon and Privet Hedge planting stock is 1-2 years old 1-2 feet tall, nursery grown from seed or cuttings, never transplanted. Officially inspected in state of origin. Mail coupon today.
